

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. the 1990s, the number of people in the UK who are aged 65 and over has increased by 1.5 million, and the number of people aged 75 and over has increased by 1.2 million (Office of National Statistics 1999). The number of people aged 85 and over has increased by 0.5 million.

There is a growing awareness of the need to address the needs of the ageing population. The Department of Health (1999) has published a strategy for ageing, which sets out the government's commitment to improve the lives of older people. The strategy is based on three main principles: (1) to ensure that older people have the opportunity to live independently and actively; (2) to ensure that older people have access to the services and support they need; and (3) to ensure that older people are treated with respect and dignity.

The strategy is based on the following assumptions: (1) that older people are a diverse group with different needs and interests; (2) that older people should be able to live independently and actively; (3) that older people should have access to the services and support they need; and (4) that older people should be treated with respect and dignity. The strategy sets out a range of measures to be taken to improve the lives of older people, including: (1) to improve the physical environment for older people; (2) to improve the social environment for older people; (3) to improve the financial environment for older people; and (4) to improve the health and social care services for older people.

THE LIFE AND WORKS OF SCHILLER

By Prof. CALVIN THOMAS. With six photogravure illustrations. 481 pp. Large 12mo. Gilt top. $3.25 net (postage 21c.).

"An eminently sympathetic study, which will commend itself to the general reader for its avoidance of the minor pedantries into which writers on German subjects—not excluding Carlyle—are prone to fall. Particularly interesting is Professor Thomas's discussion of the philosophy of Schiller."

PREFACE

IN preparing this new edition of my German Grammar I have taken advantage of the resetting of the type to subject the work to a careful revision from beginning to end. My aim has been to bring the book up to date and improve it in matters of detail without in any way changing its essential character. Aside from the correcting of some trifling errors which either had escaped my notice hitherto or were of such a character that they could not be corrected in the stereotype plates, I have tried to improve the form of presentation, simplifying or amplifying according as the one process or the other seemed to be required. I have sought to profit by the very numerous suggestions that have come to me during the past ten years from teachers in all parts of the country. To all these helpful critics, who have taken an interest in improving the book, I wish to return my thanks. I have, of course, introduced the official German spelling, according to the convention of 1901, and I have also adopted the few simplified English spellings recommended by the National Educational Association in 1898. If it was my duty, as the author of a German grammar, to take cognizance and help spread the knowledge of what the Germans are doing for the improvement of their spelling, it seemed to me that it was no less my duty, as an American teacher, to support such well-directed and authoritative efforts as are being made in our country for the improvement of English spelling, where the need of improvement is so much more pressing.

As is intimated above, I have not tried to make a new book of a different sort, but to revise the old one in matters of detail. The general plan and arrangement of the grammar, even the paragraph numbers, to which teachers have become accustomed, and which are referred to in other extant publications, remain unchanged. The exercises and vocabularies of Part I have been left substantially as they were, because they were prepared originally with very great care, and I saw no reason to believe that I could improve upon them. On the other hand, the exercises at the end of Part II have been much more radically dealt with, for there I found that I had made a mistake. In selecting sentences from the classics for their illustrative value I had been guided too much by literary, and not enough by practical considerations. The consequence was that many of the sentences, while admirably illustrative of syntax, were not well adapted for translation into German by students unacquainted with the classics. In revising I have endeavored to get rid of such sentences and to replace them with others better suited to the needs of the learner.

The principles upon which the book was originally built were set forth in the preface to the first edition (1895), as follows:

"This book is divided, on purely pedagogical grounds, into two parts. Part I is designed as a beginner's manual, and embodies those ideas of method which commend themselves to the author after some fifteen years of constant attention to the subject. I am of the opinion that learners who have passed the age of childhood should have grammar-lessons from the first, or at least after a sufficient preliminary drill upon pronunciation. At the same time it has to be remembered that the object of study is the language, not the grammar. The latter is only the means to an end. The learner should accordingly begin at once to read, hear and use the language, letting the grammatical textbook save his time by systematizing his knowledge and showing him what to look for. This means that the beginner's grammar-lessons should deal only with matters of fundamental importance and should avoid all confusing details. And the knowledge gained should be applied at once in the reading, memorizing and repetition of appropriate exercises upon the language.

"Part I of this work, therefore, aims to present the fundamental facts of the grammar without omitting anything necessary, or including anything unnecessary, to a bird's-eye view of the subject such as will fit the learner to begin reading easy prose. All minutiae of grammatical scholarship, word-lists that do not need to be learned, and syntactical principles that can best be studied in connection with the reading of literature, are postponed to Part II. The order of presentation is that usually followed in scientific grammars, it being my conviction that for students who have reached the high-school age, a systematic treatise has decided advantages over a lesson-book in which the matter is presented in arbitrary installments.

"Great care has been bestowed upon the exercises, since it is here, as it seems to me, that the existing grammars fail to meet the present demand. What the learner of a living language most needs to develop is a sensitive and trustworthy feeling for the language. This is of more importance than anything else, whatever the object in view may be, whether speaking, writing, reading or scholarship. From this it follows that he should occupy his mind and store his memory with nothing but natural forms of expression as they occur in use. Anything else is not German. He should be taught that the sentence, not the word, is the real unit of language, and that he must learn German by learning sentences such as Germans use. He should not waste his time upon mechanical Ollendorffian preparations, such as are never heard or seen outside the schoolroom, nor should he get the idea that he can make German of his own by piecing together words with the help of his grammar and dictionary. His task and his ideal of progress should be simply to reproduce, orally and in writing, what he hears and reads; first to reproduce it intelligently with the aid of his grammar, and then to reproduce it frequently, until it becomes second nature. This means that for a long time his efforts at translating from English into German should be confined to easy variations upon a German original. I am fully persuaded that the disconnected, vacuous, often puerile sentences with which the most of the school grammars require the beginner to concern himself do more harm than good. They blight the sense for idiom, lead to mechanical habits of translating, which are difficult to break up, and furnish nothing valuable for the memory to appropriate."

After the lapse of ten years, during which textbooks have multiplied and the literature of method has greatly increased, I find in this earlier confession of faith nothing that I wish to recant or to modify. There is no doubt room for different kinds of books, varying with the age and ability of the pupil and with the idiosyncrasy of the teacher. Such a thing as the best method does not exist, and it is unwise to pin one's faith too strenuously to any routine or set of dogmas. The capable teacher will always wish to prove all things and hold fast to that which he personally finds to be good. I am convinced, however, that for learners who take up the serious study of German under the conditions ordinarily presented by our American high schools and colleges — where the problem is the best use of a limited time — a book planned on the general lines above described will prove most serviceable.

As for the grammatical statements in Part I, there is nothing that I have so much aimed at as simplicity and clearness. I do not think it possible to present the essentials of German grammar in simpler language — there is of course room for some difference of opinion as to what the essentials are — except by dividing the subject up into smaller bits, more or less arbitrarily arranged, as is done in the lesson-books. But what is by that means gained in simplicity as the student advances from day to day is lost later when he looks back and tries to get a general view. He then finds that fragments of subjects that belong together have been treated fragmentarily here and there. He does not know what he has learned nor where to find things. His knowledge is not clear and well ordered. It lacks Übersichtlichkeit.

With respect to the exercises in Part I, finally, I wish to say that I should not myself think of using all of them with any one class. They have been made numerous and diversified in character in order to meet different requirements. I have wished to give the teacher an opportunity to test the value of different kinds of drill, all of which have their advantages and their advocates, to determine for himself what is best for his pupils, to vary the lessons from year to year or with different classes, and to progress more or less rapidly according to the amount of time that is to be devoted to a first survey of German grammar.

CALVIN THOMAS.

GERMAN GRAMMAR

INTRODUCTORY

1. German and English. German and English are sister languages. Both descend from a language spoken by an Aryan people who, long before the beginning of the Christian era, had settled in north-central Europe, where its various tribes became known to the Romans under the collective name of Germani. In the fifth century A.D. Germani from the northwestern lowlands occupied Britain and introduced there their own language, which came to be known as 'English.' Those descendants of the continental Germani that have remained in the old home now speak various languages, of which the most important is the one called 'German' by us, but Deutsch by those who use it. It is the language of the entire German Empire, of a large part of Austria and Switzerland, and of numerous colonies.

1. Deutsch is historically the same word as our 'Dutch,' but the latter term has come to be applied exclusively to the language of Holland. Dutch is not German, nor a dialect of German, but a distinct language.

2. Owing to their common origin German and English have in common a great many words that belonged to the language from which both descend. Such words are called

'cognates.' Cognates may resemble each other closely in form and meaning, or they may not. Thus the German word Bruder is cognate with brother and means brother, while Baum is cognate with beam, but means tree.

3. On the other hand, in spite of this common origin, German grammar seems at first to have little resemblance to English grammar. This is because English has lost nearly all those grammatical distinctions which were once common to both languages, whereas German has preserved them more fully.

2. The German Alphabet. The Germans often print their language in Roman letters like those employed for English; more commonly, however, they use the so-called 'German' characters, which developed out of the Roman previous to the invention of printing. The letters and their German names, by which it is advisable that they be always called, are as follows:

German form	Roman form	German name	German form	Roman form	German name
A a	A a	ah	N n	N n	en
B b	B b	bay	O o	O o	oh
C c	C c	tsay	P p	P p	pay
D d	D d	day	Q q	Q q	koo
E e	E e	ay	R r	R r	er (very)
F f	F f	eff	S s	S s	ess
G g	G g	gay	T t	T t	tay
H h	H h	hah	U u	U u	oo
I i	I i	ee	V v	V v	fow (fowl)
J j	J j	yot	W w	W w	vay
K k	K k	kah	X x	X x	ix
M m	M m	em	Z z	Z z	tset

1. Of the two forms ſ and ß, the latter, called 'final s,' is used at the end of a word, or of a stem-syllable; elsewhere the 'long s' is used. Thus: daß, the, and daßſelbe, the same; weiße, wise, but Weisheit, wisdom.

a. In foreign words and proper names the form ß is preferred at the end of a syllable before other consonants than p, t or f; thus Preßbyter, Dißkurs, Bißmarck, Jeßland, but Reßpekt, Mußik, Boßton, Geßenz. (But see Appendix I.)

2. To the above list of alphabetic characters should be added: (1) the digraphs ch = ch, ck = ck, ng = ng, pf = pf, ph = ph, ss = ss, th = th, and tz = tz; (2) the trigraph sch = sch; (3) the diphthongs ai = ai, au = au, ei = ei, eu = eu; and (4) the vowels with umlaut, ä = ä or æ, ö = ö or œ, ü = ü or ue, and äu = äu or æu.

a. The digraphs, trigraph and diphthongs are named by combining the names of their component parts (thus ch is called tsay-hah); the vowels with umlaut by pronouncing the sounds they denote, or by saying 'a=umlaut,' 'o=umlaut,' etc. They are also called 'modified a,' 'modified o,' etc.

3. The character ß, called ess-tset, takes the place of ſß at the end of a word and of ſſ before t or after a long vowel or a diphthong; thus, wißen, to know, but wußte, knew, and iß weiß, I know; ſchuß, shot (with short u), plural ſchüße, but fuß, foot (with long u), plural füße. In Roman letters ß appears variously as ss, sz, sz, or B. The official rules (see below) recommend B, but the learner is advised to use ss both for ſſ and for ß.

3. Orthography. There has long been in German, as in English, more or less difference of usage in the spelling of certain words and classes of words. In recent years several of the German governments have adopted official rules regulating doubtful points. At an important conference held in 1901 a general agreement was reached, so that we now have a uniform official spelling accepted in all Germany and also in Austria and Switzerland. This grammar follows the new official spelling. For an account of it, in its relation to older or divergent spellings, which will often be met with in print, see Appendix I.

4. Initial Capitals. German, like English, uses a capital letter at the beginning of sentences, lines of poetry, direct quotations, proper nouns and most adjectives derived from them, and adjectives of title. The important principles peculiar to German are as follows :

1. Every noun and word used as a noun begins with a capital ; as das Haus, the house ; das Schöne, the beautiful ; das Geben, giving ; etwas Gutes, something good.

a. But a noun-form not used substantively takes a small initial ; as Abend, evening, but abends, in the evening ; Paar, pair, but ein paar Minuten, a few minutes. The same is true of nouns forming a part of certain phrases ; as Teil, part, but teilnehmen, participate ; Statt, place, but stattfinden, take place.

2. The pronoun Sie, meaning you, and its possessive Ihr, meaning your, are written with a capital to distinguish them from sie, they or she, and ihr, their or her. The rule applies to all the case-forms of Sie and Ihr, but not to the reflexive sich. With regard to du, thou, dein, thy, and their case-forms, usage varies ; but it is customary to write them with a capital in letters, where the words are to fall under the eye of the person addressed.

3. Adjectives denoting nationality have a small initial ; as die deutsche Sprache, the German language ; das amerikanische Volk, the American people.

5. Syllabication. Words are divided at the end of a line in accordance with the following principles :

1. Between two vowels any simple consonantal sign, or any combination (except ng) denoting a simple consonantal sound, goes with the following vowel. Examples: ge=hen, fe=hen, la=chen, grü=ßen, ha=ſchen, rei=zen, He=re, Städ=te; but ſin=gen, Hun=ger.

2. Of two or more consonants occurring between two vowels only the last goes with the following vowel. Examples: Al=ter, Ap=fel, frat=zen, Knoſ=pe or Knoß=pe, Stüf=fe (for Stüc=fe, f being always resolved into f=f).

3. Excepted from these rules are (1) compounds, which should keep their parts intact, and (2) cases in which a strict application of the rules would result in breaking up a natural sound-group; thus dar=in, not da=rin, therein; Baum=ast, not Bau=maſt, branch of a tree; ge=pflegt, not gepf=legt, from pflegen. So also one writes A=pri=loſe, A=ſtro=nom, Mi=ſtro=ſtop, Di=ſtink=tion.

6. Punctuation. The ordinary marks of punctuation are the same in German as in English, but the comma is used more freely to set off subordinate clauses of all kinds. The hyphen is a double stroke (=) and is employed, in addition to the uses familiar in English, to take the place of a suppressed member of a compound; thus Land= und Waſſertiere, land-animals and water-animals. In ordinary compounds the hyphen is not used; e.g. Fenſterſcheibe, window-pane. Quotation-marks ordinarily appear thus: „Ende gut, alles gut," all's well that ends well. Emphasis is indicated by spaced type; e.g. bedenke erſt das Wie, dann das Warum, think first of the HOW, then of the WHY.

7. The German Script. There is a peculiar script, or written alphabet, which is employed by most Germans in their ordinary writing, tho they also read and write the Roman script. The letters are as follows: *

* It is not important that a beginner learn the German script at once, tho he should certainly learn it sooner or later. Script texts for practice in reading will be found in Appendix III.

PRONUNCIATION

8. The Standard. Since German has a long history and is spoken over a large area, the pronunciation of the language naturally varies considerably in different localities. This is especially true of the less educated, whose local dialects differ greatly from one another and from the speech of the more refined. The best standard is not the dialect of any one locality, but rather the average pronunciation of educated and careful speakers in all parts of Germany. In general such speakers try to avoid all distinctively provincial or dialectic peculiarities.

1. 'The standard' is thus only a name for what is supposed to be the prevailing practice. Where good usage varies there is no court of appeal whose authority is generally recognized. The student must be prepared for considerable differences of opinion as to what 'the best German' is. Some recommend the pronunciation heard on the stage in the serious drama as the best model for imitation; the ground being that actors give careful attention to their utterance and, playing in all parts of Germany, tend to rid their pronunciation of all peculiarities that might give offence anywhere.

9. Learning to Pronounce. The beginner is sure to pronounce at first with a marked English 'accent,' which it should be his aim to get rid of. This he may hope to do only by long practice in the imitation of good models. Even then, unless the practice begins in infancy, one's foreign 'accent' seldom disappears entirely, tho it is possible for any careful student to acquire a pronunciation so good that it will not offend even a fastidious German ear. What is called 'accent,' or 'brogue,' is mainly due to slight errors in adjusting the organs of speech to the foreign sounds. Hence it is a great help in learning to pronounce to know just how the foreign sounds are produced and how they differ from the English sounds with which they are most likely to be confounded.

1. We therefore proceed to describe the German sounds in detail; but since several of them are not heard in English, we can not describe them adequately by means of English key-words. Moreover, the pronunciation of English itself differs greatly in different parts of the English-speaking world. These facts necessitate the use of a few technical terms which the student should master if he is not already familiar with them. First, however, attention may be called to

10. A General Rule. Excepting h, medial or final, and e in the digraph ie = long i, there are no silent letters in genuine German words. Every letter is to be pronounced; e. g. the R in Rnabe, the G in Gnade, and the final e in both.

THE VOWELS

11. Rounded Vowels. Let the learner pronounce ah, and then, while uttering a continuous vowel-sound, gradually round the lips to the position required for the oo of pool. He will thus produce a series of vowel-sounds as follows: (1) a in ah; (2) aw in awe; (3) o in poetic; (4) o in note; (5) u in full; (6) oo in pool. This process is called 'rounding'; and since rounding brings the lips closer together, a vowel which is more 'rounded' is also said to be 'closer' or 'less open.'

12. Fronted and Raised Vowels. Returning to the ah position, pronounce a continuous vowel-sound while gradually raising the front part of the tongue to the position required for the ee in eel. A series of vowel-sounds will be produced as follows: (1) a in ah; (2) a in hat; (3) e in met; (4) ay in day; (5) i in it; (6) ee in eel. This process is called 'fronting,' and involves also an act of 'raising.' The e in met is said to be 'higher' than the a in hat, and 'lower' than the i in it. And since raising the tongue closes the air-passage above it, a vowel that is 'higher' is also said to be 'more close,' and one that is 'lower' is also called 'more open.'

13. Slurred Vowels. In English we tend to pass very lightly over any vowel in the syllable next after a strongly accented syllable. By this process, which is called 'slurring,' we deprive the vowel of its distinctive character, and convert it into an 'obscure' sound resembling that of u in but. Note the identical sound of the unaccented a, e, i, o, u in the penult of separate, celery, visible, ebony, awfully.

1. In German no vowel except unaccented e should ever be obscured.

14. Quantity of Vowels. The quantity of a sound, properly speaking, is simply the relative length of time taken in uttering it; in common usage, however, the words 'long' and 'short' imply quality as well as quantity, a short vowel being usually more open than the corresponding long. In German, as in English, vowel-quantity is often indicated by the spelling of the word. The important rules are these:

1. A vowel doubled or followed by h is thereby shown to be long. Examples: Maal, Mhle, Beet, geht, ihn, Boot, Stuhl, fühn.

a. The only vowels ever doubled are a, e and o, and even with these the inserted h is the more usual device for indicating length. Long i appears as ih only in some pronouns and proper names; elsewhere usually as ie.

b. Vowels brought together by composition are not to be regarded as doubled vowels, but are pronounced separately; e. g. beehren, to honor, as if written be-ehren.

2. An accented vowel that ends a syllable, or is followed by a single consonant, is generally long; if followed by two consonants, it is short; thus the vowel is long in bu, Plan, rot, but short in dumm, Band, Rost; it is long in the accented syllable of Be'sen, ho'len, Gebe't, Verbo't, but short in that of we'ssen, so'llen, gebe'ttet, versto'rben. But a long stem-vowel remains long in derived forms; thus the first vowel being long in le'gen, lay, and e'del, noble, it is also long in lege't, laid, and edler, nobler.

a. A syllable ending in a vowel is said to be 'open'; one ending in a consonant, 'closed.' It is an important rule that the vowel of an accented open syllable is long.

b. Observe, however, that ch, ng and sch, tho each denotes a simple consonantal sound, can not be doubled. Before ch the vowel may be short, as in brechen, or long, as in brachen. Before sch it is short, as in mischen (unless it be a diphthong, as in rauschen). Before ng it is always short. x = ks, z = zz, and ff = ff, count as two consonants. Before ß the vowel may be short, as in Ruß, füßte, or long, as in Gruß, grüßte.

c. Other exceptions to the rule in § 14, 2, are not uncommon, especially among monosyllables; thus the vowel is short in an, mit, ob; long in Bart, Magd, stets; long in büster, Wüste; short in Gramma'tis, Kapi'tel.

15. U. U has but one sound, which, however, may be long or short. Long u is like a in ah; short u is the same sound uttered more quickly.*

1. U should never be raised, rounded or slurred. Thus pronounce the u of man, als, langsam, each time as a quick a in ah, not like the sounds heard in man, alter, handsome.

2. Do not prolong short u: distinguish clearly between fann, can, and Raßn, boat.

16. E. E has three sounds: (1) an open short sound like that of e in met; (2) a close long sound like that of ay in day; (3) an 'obscure' sound more or less like that of a in mature. The first two are heard in accented, the third in unaccented, syllables.

1. Do not change the quality of open short e before r: pronounce ber, ßer, ßerz with the vowel as in herring, not as in her.

2. Do not make a diphthong of close e by raising it during the act of utterance, thus giving it a vanishing i-sound. (Many speakers of English habitually make a diphthong of the so-called 'long a' in day, fate).

3. Do not fail to slur unaccented e: make De'ſe rime with Mecca, not with flecky; ſo'fe with sofa; e'del with ladle; gu'tem with shoot 'em; lei'ten with frighten; ſi'mmer with glimmer. Give the same sound also in ha'ndeln, ha'n=belte, wa'ndern, wa'nderte. The obscure sound is heard especially when final, or before l, m, n, r, and in final eſ (neueſ riming with joyous). In other positions unaccented e sometimes approaches a sound between e and i; thus make beteſt rime with latest, rebet with made it. So also be in bee'len.

4. Final e is never silent except in some borrowed words, as Revue (= Revü).

17. ſ. ſ has two sounds: (1) an open short, like that of i in bit; (2) a close long, like that of i in police.

1. Do not slur unaccented i, nor change its character before r: distinguish between ſirtin, shepherdess, and ſirten, shepherds, and make neither of them rime with certain.

2. Long i usually appears as ie; e. g. in tief, nieder, riming with chief, feeder. At the end of borrowed words this ie is generally accented, and has then its regular sound; e. g. Chemie', Harmonie', Philosophie'. But some words throw the accent back, and the ie is then pronounced in two syllables as i-e (e obscure); thus ſami'lie (ſa-mi'=li-e), ſi'lie (ſi'=li-e), ſtu'die (ſtu'=di-e).

a. A similar difference appears in borrowed words in ier. In most of them this syllable rimes with cheer, as Offizier, Barbier; but others drop the r and separate ie into i-e', as Banquier (Ban-fi-e'), Portier (Por-ti-e').

18. o. o has two sounds: (1) an open short, not heard in standard English in accented syllables, and intermediate in roundness between the aw of awe and the o of note; (2) a close long, like the o of note.

1. Do not fail to round short o and do not round it too much: toſſ must not rime with doll, nor with toll, but lie between the two.

2. Do not make a diphthong of long o by rounding it during the act of utterance, thus giving it a vanishing u-sound. (Many speakers of English habitually make a diphthong of the 'long o' in note, know).

3. Do not slur unaccented o: pronounce Do'ktor with two short o's, not with the sounds heard in doctor.

19. u. u has two sounds: (1) an open short, like that of u in full; (2) a close long, like that of oo in pool.

1. Never give to u the sound of English u in union, cube.

2. Do not slur unaccented u: pronounce ſu'fuſ, ſlu'buſ with a duly rounded short u.

20. y. y occurs only in proper names and borrowed words, and has the sound of ii (§ 24).

1. But it is also proper to give to y the sound of i, especially in common words and where it is not accented; e. g. Cyl'nder, tall hat.

21. The Vowels with Umlaut, or Modified Vowels. The term umlaut (some prefer the name 'mutation') is applied to a peculiar modification of the vowels a, o, u and the diphthong au, due originally to the influence of an i or j in the next syllable. The effect of this i or j was to make the preceding vowel more like itself, i. e. to raise and front it.

1. The sign of umlaut was at first an e written above the vowel affected, but in time this e became reduced to two dots; thus: ä, ö, ü, äu. In the old spelling Ä, Ö, Ü, and Äu were often written Æ, Œ, Ŭ, Neu. In Roman letters one often sees æ, œ, ue and au.

2. Umlaut was once a living principle in English. We owe to it such variations as man — men, mouse — mice, full — fill, cool — chilly.

22. Ä. Ą has two sounds: (1) an open short, identical with open short e, as in Ĥände, which rimes exactly with Ĥnde; (2) an open long, like that of ei in their, as in Ĥäter. The latter is more open than close e, but not quite so open as short e.

1. Distinguish between Ĥhre, honor, and Ĥhre, ear of corn; between mehren, increase, and Mähren, mares.

23. Ō. Ō has two sounds, neither of which is heard in English: (1) an open short, (2) a close long. To get the long sound, as in Ĥöhle, pronounce the a of day with the lips in position for the o of pole. The sound is a rounded long e, or a fronted long o. The open short sound is the same, only a little less rounded.

1. Do not fail to round ö properly: distinguish between fennen, know, and fönnen, be able; between Ĥöhlen, caves, and hehlen, hide.

2. Do not fail to front ö properly: distinguish between fonnte, was able, and fönnte, might be able; between hohlen, a case-form of hohl, hollow, and Ĥöhlen, caves.

24. ũ. ũ has two sounds, neither of them heard in English: (1) an open short, (2) a close long. To get the latter, as in über, pronounce the ee of eel with the lips in position for the oo of pool. The sound is a rounded long i or a fronted long u. The short sound is similar, but a little opener.

1. Do not fail to round ü properly: distinguish between liegen, lie (recline), and lügen, lie (speak falsely); between Riffen, cushion, and küssen, kiss.

2. Do not fail to front ü properly: distinguish between mußte, had to, and mußte, would have to; between Flüsse and Flüße, both case-forms of Fluß, river.

25. Nasal Vowels. These occur only in words borrowed from the French; but since the words containing them are both numerous and common, the sounds require explanation. A vowel is made nasal by lowering the veil of the palate during the act of utterance, thus allowing the vocal current to vibrate in the nasal passage. There are four such vowels having respectively the tongue-position of (1) a in man, as in Bassi'n; (2) a in ah, as in Comme'nt; (3) aw in awe, as in Ballo'n; (4) u in but, as in Barfu'm.

1. In German, as in English, speakers unacquainted with French often pronounce the nasal vowels as ordinary oral vowels followed by ng; calling Bassin, bassa'ng, Saison, say-zo'ng, etc. But this is hardly to be approved.

THE DIPHTHONGS

26. Nature of the Diphthongs. The diphthongs are combinations of certain vowels with a short i or u, the two elements being uttered as one syllable. The first element is always phonetically an a-sound or an o-sound, ei being pronounced as ai, and eu as oi. Thus the five signs ai, au, ei, eu and äu really represent but three different diphthongs, äu being the same as eu.

27. Ai. Ai consists of short a plus short i. Its sound is like that of i in pine.

1. In French words ai has the sound of ä, as in Affai're, Saison.

28. Au. Au consists of short a plus short u. Its sound is that of o in now, as pronounced with a quick a, as in ah, for its first element.

1. Do not raise the first element of au to a sound like that of a in man. (This is a common pronunciation of the ow in now.)

2. In French words au and eau have the sound of o, as in Chaussee', Plateau'.

29. Ei. Ei is pronounced like ai.

1. Ey and ay were once common for ei and ai, but are now used only in proper names.

30. Eu. Eu consists phonetically of short o plus short i. Its sound is like that of oi in oil, save that the first element is a little more rounded.

1. Pronounce eu with a pure short o as its first element, not exactly as in English oil, which is usually made to sound like aw-il.

31. Äu. Äu is the umlaut of au and has the sound of eu.

32. Non-diphthongal Combinations. Those just described are all the true diphthongs that occur in German, but there are certain other vowel-combinations that require notice. Except in the interjections hui and pfui, pronounced hwee, pfwee (but see § 49), ua, ue, ui and uo occur in native German words only after q; for their sound see under q (§ 50). In French words the u of these combinations is usually silent, as in Guita'rre, Bouque't. Oi and ou occur mostly in French words, oi sounding like wah, as in Toile'tte, and ou like long u, as in Tour, Bouque't.

THE CONSONANTS

33. Definitions. A 'stop' is a consonantal sound produced by a complete closure of the oral passage at some point, as k, d, p; it consists always of a slight explosion and can not be prolonged. A 'fricative' or 'spirant' is produced by a nearly complete closure, as s, v, th; it is made by the rubbing of the breath against the walls of a narrow gateway and can always be prolonged. L and r are sometimes called 'liquids,' m, n and ng 'nasals.'

1. A consonantal sound produced with the vocal chords vibrating, as g, d, z, v, is said to be 'voiced'; if produced with the chords quiescent, as k, t, s, f, it is 'voiceless.'

2. A consonant produced between the back part of the tongue and the opposite portion of the soft palate, as g in go, ck in duck, is called a 'guttural'; produced in a similar way, but farther forward, it is a 'palatal'; produced between the fore part of the tongue and the upper teeth or gums, as d, th, s, it is a 'dental'; produced between the lips, as p, b, it is a 'labial' or 'bilabial,' and produced between the lips and teeth, as f, v, a 'labio-dental.'

34. General Rules. Of the two following rules, the first is applicable to English as well as German, the second to German only:

1. Doubled consonants are to be pronounced like the corresponding single consonants; e. g. the tt in bitter just like the t in mit.

a. The doubling of a consonant is simply a device (as in English) to indicate that the preceding vowel is short. The only consonants never doubled are ϕ, j, [ϕ, v and w.

b. The rule does not apply to two consonants brought together by composition; pronounce the tt in mitteilen as in cat-tail, not as in bitter.

2. A voiced consonant when final becomes voiceless; thus ab, as if written ap; Tod, as if Tot.

a. In applying this rule a consonant is to be understood as 'final' not only when it ends a word, but when it ends a stem-syllable that is followed by a suffix beginning with a consonant; e. g. lieblich, Mädchen (pronounce liep-lich, Mät-chen).

35. B. B has two sounds: (1) when initial or medial, that of b in by, as in beben, albern; (2) when final, that of p in pen, as in ab, lieblich.

36. C. C occurs only in borrowed words and has three sounds: (1) before low vowels (a, o, u, au) and before consonants, that of k, as in Café, Clique; (2) before high vowels (e, i, y, ä, ö), that of ç = ts, as in Ceder, Cylinder; (3) before e in a few French words, that of voiceless s, as in Chance.

1. A foreign c which is to sound like f is often written f, and one which is to sound like ç is written ç. In some cases, however, usage is unsettled and the official rules are not consistent. Thus we have Circus or Zirkus, Comité or Komitee; Kommo'be, but Coupé.

2. The combination cf always sounds like f.

37. Ch. Ch has in native German words two sounds, neither of them heard in English: (1) after a low vowel (a, o, u, au), that of a guttural fricative, as in Dach, auch; (2) after a high vowel (e, i, ä, ö, ü, eu, äu) or a consonant, that of a palatal fricative, as in ich, durch. To pronounce Dach utter English dock, but without the complete closure necessary for the final click. Instead of the click let the breath make an audible sound of rubbing or rasping. To pronounce ich press the tip of the tongue firmly against the lower teeth and try to say ish.

1. Avoid making guttural ch either a f or a silent h: distinguish the final sounds of roch, roh, Roß.

2. Avoid making palatal ch either a f or an sch: distinguish the final sounds of bich, bich and Tisch.

3. In words from the Greek ch before a, o, i or r is usually pronounced like f, as in Charakter, Chor, Chronis; before e or i, like ch in ich, as in Chemie, Chirurg.

4. In words from the French ch sounds like ʃ, as in Cha'mois, Chaussee'.

5. Chs belonging to one and the same stem sounds like ʃ, as in ʒuchʃ, Dʃʃe; but when the ʃ belongs to a suffix ch has its separate fricative sound, as in wachʃam.

38. D. D has two sounds: (1) when initial or medial, that of d in do, as in du, Widder; (2) when final that of t in to, as in Tod, ländlich, Wildniß.

1. Dt sounds like t, as in Stadt.

39. ʒ. ʒ is always like English f in for; e. g. faʃʃ, offen, tief.

40. G. G has in native German words five sounds: (1) when initial, or before a consonant, or doubled, that of a guttural stop like English g in go, as in gehen, Glück, Dogge; (2) when final after a low vowel (a, o, u), that of a voiceless guttural fricative = guttural ch, as in Tag, ʃlog, ʃchlug; (3) when final after a high vowel (e, i, ei) or a consonant, that of a voiceless palatal fricative = palatal ch, as in König, Teig, Berg; (4) when medial after a low vowel, that of a voiced guttural fricative, as in Tage, Lauge; (5) when medial after a high vowel or a consonant, that of a voiced palatal fricative, as in Könige, Beschäftigung, Berge.

1. There is good usage in favor of pronouncing g always as a stop, and giving it the sound of k (instead of ch) when final or before a voiceless consonant; thus Tag, Zug, Berg, ſagte, as Taf, Zuf, Verſ, ſaſte, and not as Taʃ, Zuʃ, Verʃ, ſaʃte. This pronunciation is common in South Germany and is favored by the stage; but the use of the fricative g, as described above, is far more common, especially in the northern and midland provinces.

2. The voiced spirants are somewhat difficult. To get the g in lagen first pronounce laſen; then learn to voice the sound by keeping up the glottal buzz of the a. By placing the finger against the glottis (just above the 'Adam's apple') the buzz will be distinctly felt if the consonant is properly voiced.

3. In words from the French g before e has usually the sound of z in azure, as in Genie', Passa'ge, Dra'nge; and g with following n that of ni in union, as in Champa'gner.

41. ſ. ſ at the beginning of a word or a suffix sounds like h in his, as in ſerr, Freiſheit; after a vowel it is silent and serves to indicate that the vowel is long, as in ſhle, ſehr. Between vowels h has the effect of a dieresis; thus ruhig = ru'ig.

42. ſ. ſ has the sound of y in yes, as in je, Sahr.

1. In a few French words j sounds like z in azure; e. g. ſourna'l.

43. ſ. ſ has the sound of k in kiss, as in ſahſ, Glück (ſ being written for double f).

44. l. l is nearly like the English l in let, but should be very clearly articulated, with the front part of the tongue lifted high and the lips opened; e. g. Leben, Ball.

1. Do not drop l in any position; e. g. not in half, Qualm, Palme.

2. In words from the French ll sounds like lli in William, as in Wille't, Bouillo'n.

45. m. m is like English m in met, as in mehr, ſehm.

46. n. n is regularly like English n in no, as in nie, an.

1. n before f sounds, as in English, like ng; thus ſinſen = ſingſen, just as in English think = think.

2. In words from the French, n after a vowel (except between vowels) is not pronounced as a consonant, but serves to indicate nasality in the vowel (§ 25); e.g. Saisi/'n.

47. Ng. Ng is not a compound of n and g, but a simple sound. It is always like ng in singer, never like ng in linger. Examples: lang, länger. Pronounce separately in compounds, as *u'n=ger*n, *a'n=ge*ht.

48. ß. ß is always like p in pen, as in ßech, Mappe.

1. ßh occurs only in borrowed words and sounds like f, as in ßylph, ßhiloßophie'.

49. ßf. ßf is like English pf in cupful. Initially the combination does not occur in English, but is common in German. Examples: ßflanze, ßfeil, ßfropf.

50. Qu. Qu occurs, as in English, only before u, the combination qu being pronounced like fu, the w being sometimes bilabial and sometimes labio-dental (§ 58). Examples: Quelle, *erqui'*den.

1. German qu is not exactly like qu in quit, nor like kv in black vest. It differs from the former in that the lips are less rounded, and from the latter in that the labial element is weaker, that is, produced with less friction. Pronounce Quell at first as kvell rather than like quell (see § 58).

51. R. There are several ways of pronouncing r: (1) The 'trilled' r, made in the front part of the mouth by the vibration of the tip of the tongue; (2) the 'uvular' or 'velar' r, made in the back part of the mouth by the vibration or flapping of the uvula between the tongue and the soft palate; (3) the 'glottal' r, made in the throat by a very slow vibration of the vocal chords.

1. The trilled r is the approved stage pronunciation and is often heard off the stage, but the velar r is now far more common; is, in fact, the usual r. The learner may safely ignore the glottal r, but should try to learn both the others. The front r differs from the ordinary English r in red, true, only in that the vibratory trill should be distinctly heard. The velar r is known in England as the 'Northumbrian burr.' It is hard to acquire after childhood and must be learned by imitation.

2. In parts of Germany, notably in Berlin, it is very common to drop final r, or convert it into obscure e, as many speakers do with final r in English. In this pronunciation, which seems to be growing in favor, there is no difference between dar and da, Messer and Messe; nur becomes nue, Bier rimes with siehe, vor with boa, etc.

52. С. С has three sounds: (1) when final, or medial with a consonant following, that of s in sit, as in daß, ist; (2) when initial before a vowel, or between two vowels, that of z in zeal (only a little less forcibly voiced), as in Seele, Rose, langsam; (3) before p or t at the beginning of a word, that of a quickly uttered sch = sh, as in Stand, Sprache.

1. The voiced f is never doubled, whence ff and ß are always voiceless.

2. A voiced f occurring between vowels, as in Rose, Nase, Weise, becomes almost voiceless in derivatives such as Röslein, Näschen, Weisheit; that is, it is there 'final' (§ 34, 2, a), and hence written ß.

53. Сђ. Сђ sounds like sh in ship, as in schnell, Kausch.

1. But where ch begins a suffix, as in Näschen, from Nase, ch has its separate palatal sound.

54. Т. Т in native German words has always the sound of t in tin, as in mit, treten.

1. In words from the Latin t before unaccented i sounds like ts; e. g. Ratio'n, partia'l; but not when following j, as in bestia'lisч.

55. Th. Th has always the sound of t, never that of English th in this or in thin; e. g. Thea'ter, Theologie'.

1. Th appears in some foreign words like Than, thane, including Greek words, in which it represents θ, but in genuine German words it is now everywhere replaced by t; hence tun, not thun, Tor not Thor, and Tee rather than Thée.

56. Tz. Tz is simply double z and has the same sound, namely, that of ts; e. g. Schatz, sitzen.

57. V. V has in native German words the sound of f, as in Vater, vor.

1. But in words from the French or Latin, except when final, v sounds like v in vat, as in Vase, Pulver (but like f in brav, Crediti'v).

58. W. W has two sounds: (1) when initial, or after a vowel, that of a labio-dental fricative like v in vat, as in Welle, Löwe; (2) after a consonant, that of a bilabial fricative, as in zwei, Schwelle.

1. The bilabial w sounds at first much like English w in win, but differs from it in that the lips are less rounded. The student will do best to pronounce zwei, Schwelle, as also Quelle, at first with a v-sound rather than a w-sound, the latter being the harder to correct. In large parts of Middle and South Germany the bilabial w is the only one used.

59. X. X is like English x in fox; e. g. in Xrt, Xenien.

60. Z. Z has always the sound of ts in fits, as in zu, Herz, sitzen (z being the written form of zz).

ACCENTUATION

61. Kinds of Accent. Accent is special stress in pronunciation. Word-accent is special stress upon one or more syllables of a word; sentence-accent (often called ‘rhetorical accent,’ or simply ‘emphasis’) is special stress upon one or more words of the sentence.

1. Word-accent is either strong or weak, and there are different degrees of weakness; thus in constitutionality the strong stress is upon al, and there is a weak stress upon tu, and a still weaker one upon con. Such shades and more are heard also in German, but the beginner may safely ignore all but two and think of every syllable as having either chief stress (ˈ), weak stress (ˌ), or no stress at all; e. g. Freuˈde, joy; freuˈbloˌs, joyless; Freuˈbloˌfigkeiˈt, joylessness.

62. Simple Words. An uncompounded word, if of native German stock, has the chief stress on the root-syllable, and not on any suffix; e. g. haˈndeln, act; haˈndelte, acted; Köˈniginnen, queens; Altˈertümer, antiquities.

1. This statement does not apply to words that are wholly or partly of foreign origin. These are apt to accent the last syllable, or the penult of a dissyllabic ending: thus stuˈbieˈren, Photograˈph, Ballaˈde. See § 64.

2. Even in native words there are a few anomalous exceptions to the general rule: as lebeˈndig, from Leˈben; waˈhrhaˈftig, from waˈhrhaft.

63. Compounds. German forms compounds very freely and in great variety, and their accent can not be brought under any simple rules. The beginner will do best to be guided at first by English analogy, which will cover multitudes of cases; e. g. Freˈchtzuˈg, freight-train; Bluˈmengaˈrten, flower-garden; Feˈstlaˈnd, main-land; roˈtfarˈbig, red-colored; Berˈgißmeiˈnlichˈt, forget-me-not. Then let the following points be noted:

1. Compound particles generally accent the second member; as heˈrauf, (here)up; daˈrunter, thereunder; fl̥oˈmaˈb, downstream.

2. The six prefixes be, ent (emp), er, ge, ver and zer are never accented.

3. The prefix un, un, is very often, but not always, accented; e. g. u'ntreu, untru'e; u'ngern, unwill'ingly; but une'ndlich, une'nding.

64. Borrowed Words. In the very numerous words derived from other languages, especially from the Latin, Greek and French, the tendency is to accent the ultima, or the penult of a dissyllabic suffix. The following examples are typical: Stu'de'nt, student; A'strono'm, astronomer; Ge'nera'l, general; Meta'll, metal; Pa'la'it, palace; Progra'mm, program; Medizi'n, medicine; Suri'st, jurist; Mu'f'f, music; Natio'n, nation; Partie', party; Litanei', litany; Baga'ge, baggage; Limona'de, lemonade; Prinze'sse, princess; Nov'e'lle, novellette; Epi'so'de, episode; huma'n, humane; elega'nt, elegant; famo's, famous; absolu't, absolute; plausi'bel, plausible; familiä'r, familiar.

1. But not a few borrowed words, especially those in or, el, er, and some of those in if and ie, are exceptions; as Do'ktor, doctor; Be'stie, beast; Fami'lie, family; Rö'rper, body; Ti'tel, title; Gramma'tik, grammar; Rheto'rik, rhetoric.

PRONUNCIATION OF VOWELS

NOTE. — Accent the first syllable unless the accent is marked. Words connected by an English hyphen are to be carefully distinguished in pronunciation.

Long a. — Mal, Hahn, Draht, lahm, Fraß, Bart, Papst.

Short a. — Als, balb, Band, Gast, Ball, hart, Lamm, kann — Rahn, Mannen — mahnen.

Long e. — Beere, fehlen, Ehre, beben, Gebe't.

Short e and ä. — Es, Ende, Hände, gefä'ßt, Äpfel, Blätter, Ärger, E'rbhe'r'r, Ä'bende'ssen, Be'ttbe'de.

Obscure e. — Habe, Gatte, Gema'hl, Gesa'ng, Kaba'le, Mantel, altem, Garten, Vater, handeln, handelte.

Long ä. — Bäter, Taler, gähren; Ähre — Ehre, Mähren — mehren, Säle — Seele, wahren — wehren.

Long i and ie. — Mir, Igel, ihnen, hier, viel, gebie'nt.

Short i. — Ist, mit, irren, Gebi'ß, Inse'kt, gebi'ssen.

Long o. — Boot, Ohr, ohne, Moos, rot, gelo'bt, Ratio'n.

Short o. — Toll, Boß, fort, Dogge, Gasse, Folge, Morgen, verdo'rben, geko'nnt, Offizie'r, sollen — Sohlen, Rotten — roten.

Long u. — Du, tun, Huhn, Ruhe, Bude, Gruß, gebu'ht.

Short u. — Ruß, Brust, dunkel, Duzend, gemu'rrt.

Long ö. — Öl, böse, hören, gekrö'nt, größer; Söhnen — sehen, lesen — lösen, böte — Bote — Beete — bäte, Mühren — Mähren — mehren — Möhren.

Short ö. — Böcke, Körner, Töpfer, Förster, Gewö'lke; können — kennen, Hölle — Helle, könnte — konnte — konnte.

Long ü. — über, müde, grün, Gefühl; spulen — spielen — spülen.

Short ü. — Bücken, müssen, mürbe, Hülle, bürgen; Lüfte — Lüste, mußten — mußten — mußten, Rüsse — küssen — Rissen.

Ä and ei. — Bai, Hain, Beil, keimen, Ei'telkei't; sei — sie, lieblich — leiblich, reiten — rieten.

Au. — Baum, aus, Maul, sausen, au'fgebaut.

Eu and äu. — Freude, Bäume, Beute, Mäuse, Eule; baute — Beute, heute — haute.

EXERCISE 2

PRONUNCIATION OF CONSONANTS

B, voiced. — Bibel, beben, Ebbe, Gebo't, Verba'nd.

B, voiceless. — Ab, ob, liebt, lieblich, lie'brei'ch, Lo'bre'de.

C = k. — Casus, Coder, Cousi'ne, Carrie're, Coupé.

C = ç. — Cirkus, Cessio'n, Cicero, Ciga'rre, Cyli'nder, centra'l.

Ch as voiceless guttural fricative. — Ach, auch, Buch, doch, lachen, machen, suchen, beda'cht, Rau'chlo'ch; wachsen — waschen, roß — roh — Rost, rauhen — rauchen — rauschen.

Ch as voiceless palatal fricative. — E^{ch}t, i^{ch}, B^äch^e, B^üch^e, e^{uch}, r^eich, le^{uch}tet, d^äuch^tet, d^{ur}ch, R^ech^t, m^anch^er, M^ädch^en, gri^echⁱsch; dⁱch – dⁱck, L^öch^er – l^eck^er, Kⁱrch^e – Kⁱrsch^e, fr^ech – frⁱsch, r^ach^en – R^eck^en.

Chs = ɣ. — A^{ch}se, D^ach^s, D^öch^e; w^ach^sen – w^asch^en – w^ach^en.

D, voiced. — D^u, d^enn, e^del, o^der, Wⁱb^der, g^er^e'd^et.

D, voiceless. — E^d, T^od, uⁿd, A^bend, r^edⁱch, M^ädch^en, b^ere'dⁱam, T^odfeind.

G as voiced guttural stop. — G^anz, G^ruß, F^lagge, gl^ühen.

G as voiceless guttural fricative. — T^ag, B^ug, f^log, F^lug, M^agd, r^agt, w^agt, g^etau'gt, g^enu'g, B^efu'gnis.

G as voiceless palatal fricative. — K^önig, eⁱnig, ru^hig, T^eig, flⁱegt, b^eugt, s^agt, l^ügt, B^alg, B^erg, g^enu'gt.

G as voiced guttural fricative. — T^age, B^ogen, A^ugen, fl^ogen, t^rugen, l^agen, T^ugend, J^ugend, L^auge, T^au'g^enⁱ'ch^ts.

G as voiced palatal fricative. — K^önige, eⁱnige, ru^hige, flⁱegen, b^eugen, s^agen, l^ügen, B^alge, B^erg^e, M^orgen, B^esch^a'f^tigung.

G as voiced ʃ. — B^aga'ge, E^ta'ge, P^assa'ge, G^enie', G^elee', G^enda'rm, D^ra'nge.

Ng. — E^{ng}, b^ang, l^ang, fⁱngen, Fⁱnger, S^anger.

Pf. — P^fahl, P^flanze, A^pfel, h^üpfen, P^fro'p^fenzie'her.

Qu. — Q^uark, Q^uelle, q^uer, erquⁱ'cken.

R. — E^r, d^er, h^er, r^ot, r^ügen, B^rot, gr^öß^er, h^art, H^erz, Dⁱrne, F^ürsten, h^arter, veri'rr^en.

S, ʃ, voiced. — S^aal, S^ee^ele, S^ohn, B^esen, B^usen, g^raus^am, R^ose, N^ase, T^rübs^al, H^ö'r^saa'l.

S, ʃ, ʃ, voiceless. — Ist, Ast, R^est, lⁱsp^eln, a^ls, d^as, H^aß, b^ess^er, gr^öß^er, R^ös^lein, R^aschen; r^eis^en – r^eiß^en, w^eis^en – w^eiß^en.

Sp, ʃ, initial. — S^tark, S^tände, S^pra^{ch}e, sp^ülen, B^au's^tei'n, S^ta'h^lstⁱ'ch, S^pru'ch^spre'ch^er, G^ei's^ter^spu'f.

Sch. — Schelle, Schimpf, Marsch, löschen, rauschen.

T, Th. — Tau, Tod, treu, Rat, Theorie, Theologie'.

T = z. — Ratio'n, Portio'n, partia'l, Patie'nt, Curtius.

V = f. — Vater, viel, vor, Vogel, brav, relati'v.

V = w. — Vase, Verb, viole'tt, Pulver, revidi'e ren.

W as labio-dental voiced fricative. — Wachz, Wage, Wehen, weise, Wurst, Löwe, verwi'rt, gewa'ndt.

W as bilabial voiceless fricative. — Dwall, zwei, Zwerq, Zwirn, Schwalst, schwarz, geschwo'llen, verschwi'nden.

PRONUNCIATION OF CONNECTED DISCOURSE

NOTE.—This exercise is intended to cultivate fluency in reading. Practice upon it until it can be read without hesitation. To assist the beginner the emphatic words (those that bear the sentence-accent) are here printed in spaced type, tho that would not ordinarily be done.

Guten Morgen! Good morning!

Wie befinden Sie sich? How do you do?

Danke, recht gut. Very well, thank you.

Und wie geht es Ihnen heute? And how are YOU to-day?

So ziemlich; nur habe ich ein wenig Kopfschmerz. Pretty well; only I have a little headache.

Das tut mir leid; es ist doch nicht schlimm? I am sorry for that; it isn't bad, I hope?

O nein; es wird auch schon besser. Oh no; it is getting better, too, already.

Aber wo gehen Sie jetzt hin? But where are you going now?

Ich gehe nur spazie'ren; kommen Sie mit. I am only taking a walk; come along.

Sehr gern; aber sagen Sie mir erst, wie viel Uhr es ist. With pleasure; but tell me first what time it is.

Oh, Sie haben noch Zeit genug; es ist erst halb neun. Oh, you have still time enough; it is only half-past eight.

Schönes Wetter heute, nicht wahr? Fine weather to-day, isn't it?

Prächtig; wir haben nur selten solche Herbsttage. Splendid; we but rarely have such autumn days.

Sehen Sie nur dort h'in; ist das nicht eine herrliche Aussicht? Just look yonder; isn't that a glorious view?

Wu'n der schön! ich glaube, ich könnte sie stundenlang betrachten. Wonderfully fine; I believe I could look at it for hours.

Was treiben Sie denn eigentlich in der letzten Zeit? What are you doing, pray, these days?

Ich lerne jetzt Englisch. Das ist meine Hauptbeschäftigung. I am learning English now. That is my principal occupation.

Da haben Sie gewiß genug zu tun. Englisch lesen ist zwar leicht, aber die Aussprache ist fürchterlich. Then you certainly have enough to do. To be sure it is easy to read English, but the pronunciation is fearful.

THE PARTS OF SPEECH AND THEIR VARIATIONS

65. Inflection. Of the nine parts of speech — they are the same in German as in English — the article, noun, adjective, pronoun and verb are subject to inflection; that is, variation of form to denote different grammatical relations. The uninflected parts of speech, or 'particles,' are the adverb, preposition, conjunction and interjection.

66. Declension. The inflection of the article, noun, adjective and pronoun is called 'declension.' Declension shows how a word varies for gender, number and case.

67. Conjugation. The inflection of the verb is called 'conjugation'; it shows how a verb varies for voice, mode, tense, person and number.

68. Gender. There are three genders, the masculine, feminine and neuter, which may or may not correspond to the sex of the object designated.

1. For example, Weib, woman, is neuter, Stein, stone, is masculine, and Rose, rose, is feminine. This gender which is out of relation to sex is sometimes called 'grammatical,' in distinction from 'natural,' gender.

69. Number. There are two numbers, the singular and the plural.

70. Case. There are four cases: the nominative, which is the case of the subject; the genitive, corresponding to the English possessive, or objective with of; the dative, corresponding to the English objective with to or for, and the accusative, which is the case of the direct object.

1. This is only a rough general statement. Each of the cases has its peculiar uses, which are expressed in English in various ways.

71. Variations of the Verb. The verb has an active and a passive voice, and each voice has four modes: the indicative, the subjunctive, the conditional and the imperative. There are two infinitives and two participles, a present and a perfect. The indicative and subjunctive mode have each six tenses: the present, the preterit, the perfect, the pluperfect, the future and the future perfect. Each tense has two numbers, a singular and a plural, and each number has a first, second and third person.

THE ARTICLE

72. The Definite Article. The definite article der is declined fully in the singular to agree with the case and gender of its noun; in the plural it varies for case only, not for gender. The declension is as follows:

	Singular			Plural
	Mas.	Fem.	Neut.	M. F. N.
Nom. the	der	die	daß	die
Gen. of the	deß	der	deß	der
Dat. to the	dem	der	dem	den
Acc. the	den	die	daß	die

1. Certain case-forms of der often combine with certain prepositions into one word. Thus we have am for an dem, in for in dem, zur for zu der, aufß for auf daß, etc.

2. The use of der corresponds in general to that of the, but with many exceptions. Sometimes it is used where English does not use the, and again it is omitted where the is required. Often it takes the place of an English possessive. (For details, when they are needed, see Part II.)

73. The Indefinite Article. The indefinite article ein, a, an, is used in the singular only, the declension being as follows:

	Masc.	Fem.	Neut.
Nom. a	ein	eine	ein
Gen. of a	eines	einer	eines
Dat. to a	einem	einer	einem
Acc. a	einen	eine	ein

1. In the phrases ein paar, a few, and ein wenig, a little, ein is uninflected; e. g. in ein paar Minuten, in a few minutes.

2. The use of ein corresponds in the main to that of a, but it is sometimes omitted where a is required in English.

EXERCISE 4

SENTENCES SHOWING THE USE OF THE ARTICLE

Learn the present tense of haben, to have, and sein, to be, as follows:

ich habe, I have	ich bin, I am du hast, thou hast	du bist, thou art er hat, he has	er ist, he is
wir haben, we have	wir sind, we are
ihr habt, ye have	ihr seid, ye are
sie haben, they have	sie sind, they are
Sie haben, you have	Sie sind, you are

Der Mann ist ein Engländer. — Das Buch ist interessant. — Die Feder gehört¹ dem Lehrer. — Haben Sie einen² Bleistift oder eine² Feder in³ der Tasche⁴? — Sehen⁵ Sie den Mann da im Garten? — Der Mann ist wohl Lehrer⁶; er hat immer⁷ ein Buch in der Hand. — Die Zeit⁸ ist lang, aber das Leben⁸ ist kurz.

VOCABULARY

NOTE. — English cognates are printed in black letter, and put in [] when they are not in common use or do not properly translate the German cognate. Italics mean that the word so printed is borrowed from the same source as the German equivalent.

aber, conj. but, however.	kurz, adj. short [curt].
der Blei'sti'ft, lead-pencil.	lang, adj. long.
das Buch, book .	das Leben, life [live].
da, adv. there.	— der Lehrer, teacher.
— der E'nglä'nder, Englishman.	— der Mann, man .
die Feder, pen, feather .	oder, conj. or.
— der Garten, garden [yard].	sehen, v. see .
gehören, v. (dat.) belong to.	die Tasche, pocket.
die Hand, hand .	und, conj. and .
immer, adv. always.	wohl, adv. probably, I presume, in, prep. (dat. and acc.) in, into.	well .
interessant, adj. interesting.	die Zeit, time [tide].

NOTES. — ¹ gehört, belongs to; the verb is 3. pers. sing. and takes the dat. — ² einen, eine; the article has to be repeated because the nouns are of different gender. — ³ in; in takes the dat. when it means in, the acc. when it means into. — ⁴ in der Tasche, in your pocket; der takes the place of an Eng. possessive, there being no doubt as to whose pocket is meant. So one says: ich habe es in der Tasche, I have it in my pocket. — ⁵ Sehen Sie, do you see; German gets along without an auxiliary corresponding to our do. — ⁶ Lehrer,

A teacher; a noun denoting vocation and standing alone in the predicate is generally used without ein. — ⁷ hat immer; note that the German says has always instead of always has. — ⁸ die Zeit, das Leben, not THE time, THE life, but simply time, life. This is the so-called 'generic article.'

THE NOUN

74. Variations of the Noun. The declension of a noun shows how it varies its form for case and number. The endings of declension are applied to the 'stem,' which for practical purposes may be regarded as identical with the nominative. The nominative never has a case-ending.

1. The plural of some nouns is further characterized by umlaut of the root-vowel, as in Baum, tree, but Bäume, trees. A few such plurals with umlaut exist in modern English, as foot—feet, mouse—mice, goose—geese. In German they are far more numerous.

2. Nouns are divided into declensions with reference to their form and gender. It is of importance to remember the gender of every noun learned.

75. The Determination of Gender. The gender of a noun depends, first, upon its meaning. Names of males, of the seasons, months and days of the week are in general masculine. Names of females, flowers, trees and German rivers are mostly feminine, and names of metals and countries are mainly neuter. But these rules are not without exceptions.

1. If a noun has more than one syllable its gender can often be told with certainty from its ending. The most helpful rules of this kind will be given as they are needed.

2. In very many cases, however, particularly of monosyllables, the gender of a noun can not be told either from its meaning or from its form, but must be learned from the dictionary.

3. Compound nouns have the gender of their final element; e. g. der Fruchtgarten, the fruit-garden; die Gartenfrucht, the garden-fruit. But there are a few exceptions to this rule.

4. Some words have two genders, sometimes with difference of meaning; e. g. das or der Pult, the desk; der Tor, the fool; das Tor, the gate.

DECLENSION

76. Systems of Declension. There are three declensions, the Strong, the Weak and the Mixed, the classification being as follows:

2 { 1. A noun is of the Strong Declension if its genitive singular has the ending (e)ß, or no ending at all if the word be feminine, and its nominative plural is not formed by means of the ending (e)n.

2. A noun is of the Weak Declension if its genitive singular has the ending (e)n, or no ending at all if the word be feminine, and its nominative plural the ending (e)n.

3. A noun is of the Mixed Declension if its genitive singular has the ending (e)ß and its nominative plural the ending (e)n.

a. A borrowed word that has become fully naturalized is brought under the one or the other of the three declensions, but so long as it is felt to be foreign it is apt to retain its foreign inflection; thus Park, park, from French parc, has the German plural, die Parke, but more usually the French plural, die Parks.

77. General Rules. The following general rules, applicable to all declensions alike, will be helpful.

3 { 1. Feminine nouns never vary in the singular.

2. The dative plural always ends in n.

3. The nominative and accusative singular of a strong noun are always alike.

4. The nominative, genitive and accusative plural of any noun are always alike.

78. Classes of Strong Nouns. Nouns of the strong declension are subdivided, with reference to the formation of the nominative plural, into three classes, the First Class having no ending in the nominative plural, the Second Class the ending e, and the Third Class the ending er.

FIRST CLASS, STRONG DECLENSION

79. Membership. The first class embraces: (1) all masculine and neuter nouns ending in el, en, er, together with the two feminines Mutter and Tochter; (2) diminutives in chen and lein, which are always neuter; (3) neuter nouns having the prefix Ge and the suffix e.

1. Some additional members of the first class, of less importance to remember, are mentioned in Part II, § 274.* Note that the class contains, in general, no monosyllables, no words accented on the last syllable, and only two feminines.

80. The Singular Cases. The genitive singular adds s (never es) to the nominative; the other cases have no distinctive ending, but are like the nominative.

81. The Plural Cases. Most nouns of the first class have the nominative plural like the nominative singular, as das Fenster, the window; die Fenster, the windows; der Bürger, the citizen, die Bürger, the citizens. A certain

* The plan of this grammar is to include in Part I everything that the beginner needs to learn and remember. The occasional references to Part II may be ignored for the present; they are inserted merely to apprise the learner where fuller information is to be found when he shall need it in his reading.

few, however, modify the root-vowel, as der Vater, the father, die Väter, the fathers; der Vogel, the bird, die Vögel, the birds.

1. The nouns that have or may have umlaut as a plural-sign number nearly thirty. The list (it will be found in § 274) embraces the most of the masculines with a, o or u for a stem-vowel, the two feminines Mutter and Tochter, and one neuter, namely Kloster, convent.

2. The dative plural adds n unless the stem already ends in n; thus from Vogel the dative plural is Vögeln, but from Mädchen, Mädchen.

82. Examples.

1. Without plural-sign: Kasten, box; Gebäude, building; Fräulein, young lady, Miss.

Singular

Nom.	✓ der Kasten	das Gebäude	das Fräulein
Gen.	des Kastens	des Gebäudes	des Fräuleins
Dat.	dem Kasten	dem Gebäude	dem Fräulein
Acc.	den Kasten	das Gebäude	das Fräulein

Plural

Nom.	die Kasten	die Gebäude	die Fräulein
Gen.	der Kasten	der Gebäude	der Fräulein
Dat.	den Kasten	den Gebäuden	den Fräulein
Acc.	die Kasten	die Gebäude	die Fräulein

2. With umlaut as plural-sign: Vater, father; Mutter, mother; Kloster, convent.

Singular

Nom.	✓ der Vater	die Mutter	das Kloster
Gen.	des Vaters	der Mutter	des Klosters
Dat.	dem Vater	der Mutter	dem Kloster
Acc.	den Vater	die Mutter	das Kloster

Plural

Nom.	die Väter	die Mütter	die Klöster
Gen.	der Väter	der Mütter	der Klöster
Dat.	den Vätern	den Müttern	den Klöstern
Acc.	die Väter	die Mütter	die Klöster

EXERCISE 5

Learn the inflection of wohnen in the present tense. It will serve as a model for most verbs, tho not for all.

ich wohne, I live	wir wohnen, we live
du wohnst, thou livest	ihr wohnt, you live
er wohnt, he lives	sie (Sie) wohnen, they (you) live

READING LESSON *: STRONG NOUNS, FIRST CLASS

Ich schreibe diesmal aus einem Dörfchen¹ im Harzgebirge.² Ich besuche³ hier einen Onkel, einen Bruder⁴ des Vaters.⁵ Die Bewohner des Dörfchens sind meistens Arbeiter. Der Onkel ist Schriftsteller⁶ und wohnt nur im Sommer hier. Das Leben der Dorfbewohner ist nicht sehr interessant. Ich gehe morgen nach⁷ dem Süden.⁸

EXERCISE 5 a

1. Ich bin Arbeiter. 2. Er ist Schriftsteller. 3. Er wohnt in einem Dörfchen. 4. Der Sommer im Gebirge ist sehr interessant. 5. Das Leben in einem Kloster ist nicht sehr interessant. 6. Wir sind Brüder. 7. Der Kasten gehört einem Arbeiter. 8. Die Kasten gehören den Arbeitern. 9. Gehen Sie morgen nicht ins Gebirge? 10. Hat das Fräulein eine Mutter? 11. Haben Sie einen Bruder? 12. Ich habe einen Bruder, aber er wohnt nicht hier.

EXERCISE 5 b

1. He is a workingman. 2. He is a brother of the author. 3. The building there is a convent. 4. The buildings there are convents. 5. The young ladies live in a convent. 6. The young lady is going into a convent.⁹ 7. The father of the young lady is an author. 8. I am visiting a brother of my mother. 9. I am going into the mountains to-morrow.¹⁰ 10. The little villages here in the mountains are very interesting.

* The reading lessons may be thought of as extracts from letters written by an American boy who goes to Germany for study and travel.

VOCABULARY

NOTE. — The abbreviation s. after a noun means 'strong'; w. 'weak'; mx. 'mixed.' The figure gives the class. If a noun has umlaut as plural-sign the fact will always be indicated.

- | | |
| ✓ der Arbeiter, s. ¹ workingman. | meistens, adv. most-ly. ¹¹ |
| aus, prep. (dat.) from, out of. | ✓ der Morgen, s. ¹ morning; as |
| besuchen, v. visit [-seek]. | adv. morgen, to-morrow. |
| ✓ der Bewo'hner, s. ¹ inhabitant. | nach, prep. (dat.) after, to [nigh]. |
| ✓ der Bruder, s. ¹ (pl. ü), brother. | nicht, adv. not [naught]. |
| diesmal, adv. this time [-mole]. | nur, adv. only, just. |
| ✓ der Do'rfbewo'hner, s. ¹ villager. | ✓ der Onkel, s. ¹ uncle. |
| das Dörfchen, s. ¹ little village | schreiben, v. write [shrive, scribe]. |
| [thorp]. | ✓ der Schri'ftste'ller, s. ¹ writer, |
| das Gebi'rge, s. ¹ mountains; | author. |
| Ha'rzgebi'rge, Harz Mountains. | sehr, adv. very [sore]. |
| gehen, v. go. | ✓ der Sommer, s. ¹ summer. |
| hier, adv. here. | ✓ der Süden, s. ¹ south. |
| das Leben, s. ¹ life [live]. | wohnen, v. dwell, live. |

NOTES. — ¹ Dörfchen, diminutive of Dorf, village, which is cognate with thorp, now preserved in proper names only. Observe that the suffixes chen and lein when appended to a noun cause umlaut of the root-vowel. The suffix chen is cognate with kin in lambkin. — ² Gebirge, from Berg, mountain. The prefix Ge here denotes a number or mass taken together; hence 'collection of mountains,' 'mountain-range.' — ³ Ich besuche, I am visiting; German has not the 'progressive' tense-forms of English, so that, e. g., ich gehe must be translated by I go, or by I am going, according to the connection. — ⁴ Bruder, in apposition with Onkel, with which it must agree in case. — ⁵ des Vaters, my father (Ex. 4, n. 4). — ⁶ Schri'ftsteller, a writer (Ex. 4, n. 6). — ⁷ nach translates Eng. to before names of places and points of the compass. — ⁸ dem Süden, with nach, to the south, southward. One might also say nach Süden, the def. art. being usually omitted in this phrase. So also nach (dem) Osten, to the east, nach (dem) Westen, to the west, etc. — ⁹ into a convent; idiom requires ins, instead of in ein. — ¹⁰ to-morrow; the adv. morgen comes directly after the verb. — ¹¹ most-ly ; this mode of printing means that the root meist is cognate with most, while the ending enß is not cognate with the ending ly.

COLLOQUY : STRONG NOUNS, FIRST CLASS

Wer ist das Fräulein im Garten dort?
 Das ist Fräulein Berta, die Tochter des Gärtners.
 Und das Mädchen da am Fenster des Häuschens — wer ist sie?
 Sie ist auch eine Tochter des Gärtners; er hat zwei Töchter.
 Kennen Sie¹ die Mutter der Mädchen?
 Nur ein wenig; aber ich kenne den Vater sehr gut.

Who lives in the cottage yonder?
 That is the gardener's cottage.
 And who are the young ladies at the window?
 They are² the gardener's daughters.³
 Do you know the girls?
 Only a little; but I know the father and mother⁴ very well.⁵

EXERCISE 6a

1. Wer wohnt in dem Häuschen? 2. Wer sind Sie?
 3. Wer sind sie? 4. Wer ist sie? 5. Der Garten gehört dem Kloster.
 6. Die Gärten gehören den Bewohnern des Dörfchens.
 7. Kennen Sie das Mädchen? 8. Hat der Gärtner eine Tochter?
 9. Die zwei Mädchen sind Töchter des Gärtners. 10. Wer geht⁶ da im Garten?
 11. Sie geht in den Garten. 12. Das Mädchen hat zwei Brüder.
 13. Wir haben ein Sommerhäuschen im Garten. 14. Der Gärtner ist nicht nur Gärtner; er ist auch ein wenig⁷ Schriftsteller.

EXERCISE 6b

1. The girls are daughters of a workingman. 2. The girl is in the garden. 3. The little house has only two windows. 4. The life of a gardener is very interesting. 5. Do you know the girl's brother? 6. We have a cottage in the mountains. 7. The young ladies are daughters of a gardener. 8. The girl's father is an Englishman. 9. The father and mother of the girl are yonder in the garden. 10. I know the mother but not the father.

VOCABULARY

an, prep. (dat. and acc.), ⁸ on ,	das Häuschen, s. ¹ little house , by, at.	cottage.
auch, adv. also, too [eke].	kennen, v. know [ken].
daß, pron. (dem.) that .	das Mädchen, s. ¹ girl, maid-en .
dort, adv. yonder, there.	Sie, pron. you; fie , she , they.
das Fenster, s. ¹ window.	die Tochter, s. ¹ (pl. ö), daughter .
der Garten, s. ¹ (pl. ä), gar-	wenig, adj. little; ein wenig, a den .	little.
der Gärtner, s. ¹ gardener .	wer, pron. (inter.) who .
gut, adj. good ; as adv. well.	zwei, num. two .

NOTES. — ¹ Kennen Sie, do you know. Sie is used for you in speaking to any one who is not a relative nor a very intimate friend. It takes its verb in the 3. pers. pl. Notice, therefore: Sie kennen, you know; fie kennen, they know; fie kennt, she knows. — ² They are, fie sind, or, better, daß sind, those are. Daß, tho neut. sing., can be used without reference to the gender or number of the predicate noun. — ³ the gardener's daughters; either des Gärtners Töchter, or die Töchter des Gärtners, or, making a compound, die Gärtnerstöchter, but not die Gärtners Töchter. So above, the gardener's cottage = des Gärtners Häuschen, or das Häuschen des Gärtners, but never das Gärtners Häuschen. — ⁴ the father and mother; the article must be repeated (see Ex. 4, n. 2). — ⁵ very well, sehr gut, rather than sehr wohl. — ⁶ geht; here = is walking. — ⁷ ein wenig, something of, on a small scale. — ⁸ an; when a prep. takes both dat. and acc., the dat. is used in answer to the question 'where?' and the acc. in answer to the question 'whither?'

SECOND CLASS, STRONG DECLENSION

83. Membership. The second class embraces: (1) a very large number of monosyllabic nouns, mainly masculine, but with a few feminines and some neuters;

(2) nouns ending in ig, ing, ling, niß, fal, and some other not very common suffixes.

1. The phrase 'monosyllabic nouns' must be understood to include compounds in which the final element would belong to this class if uncompounded; e. g. Zu'fall, accident, and Bor'stadt, suburb, as well as Fall, case, and Stadt, city.

2. Nouns in ig and ling are masculine; those in niß and fal are mainly neuter, but a few are feminine.

3. This class is, then, pre-eminently the class of monosyllabic masculines.

84. The Genitive and Dative Singular. The genitive has the ending eß or ß; the dative the ending e or no ending at all.

1. The ending eß is used regularly with monosyllables, but may always be reduced to simple ß unless the stem ends in an s-sound (ß, þ, z, tz, ſch); thus Baum, tree, has usually Baumesß, but very often Baumß, while Fluß, river, always has Flusseß. The ending ß belongs regularly to words of more than one syllable that do not end in an s-sound; thus König, king, Jüngling, youth, have Königß, Jünglingß.

2. The use of e in the dative is largely optional, being dependent on habit or the sense of euphony. In general, monosyllabic words are apt to have it, other words to be without it; hence, normally, dem Tage, dem Baume, but dem König, dem Monat.

85. Formation of the Plural. The nominative plural always has the ending e, with umlaut of the root-vowel in some words, without it in others. The dative plural adds n to the nominative plural.

1. Of the monosyllabic nouns all the feminines and the most of the masculines have umlaut in the plural if the vowel admits it. Of the neuters only three or four have umlaut. For lists see § 275.

a. Nouns having aa or oo in the stem drop one vowel when they undergo umlaut, as Saal, hall, pl. Säle; Boot, pl. Boote or Böte.

2. Nouns in niß double the s in inflection; e. g. Bündniß, covenant, gen. Bündnisses, pl. Bündnisse.

86. Examples.

1. Without umlaut in the plural: Tag, day; Mo'nat, month; Jahr, year.

Singular

Nom.	✓ der Tag	✓ der Monat	das Jahr
Gen.	des Tages	des Monats	des Jahres
Dat.	dem Tage	dem Monat	dem Jahre
Acc.	den Tag	den Monat	das Jahr

Plural

Nom.	die Tage	die Monate	die Jahre
Gen.	der Tage	der Monate	der Jahre
Dat.	den Tagen	den Monaten	den Jahren
Acc.	die Tage	die Monate	die Jahre

a. So also das Bündniß, covenant, des Bündnisses, die Bündnisse; die Wildniß, wilderness, der Wildniß (§ 77, 1), die Wildnisse; das or die Trübsal, affliction, des Trübsals, or der Trübsal, die Trübsale.

2. With umlaut in the plural: Baum, tree; Nacht, night; Chor, choir.

Singular

Nom.	✓ der Baum	die Nacht	das Chor
Gen.	des Baumes	der Nacht	des Chores
Dat.	dem Baume	der Nacht	dem Chore
Acc.	den Baum	die Nacht	das Chor

Plural

Nom.	die Bäume	die Nächte	die Chöre
Gen.	der Bäume	der Nächte	der Chöre
Dat.	den Bäumen	den Nächten	den Chören
Acc.	die Bäume	die Nächte	die Chöre

87. Rule of Order I: The Inverted Order.* If a sentence begins with any other element than the subject, the subject must follow the verb; e. g. da ist er, there he is; daß verstehe ich nicht, that I do not understand; schön ist sie nicht, beautiful she is not.

1. This order, verb before subject, is called 'inverted,' the 'normal' order being subject before verb, as in er ist da; ich verstehe das nicht.

2. Inversion occurs in English, e. g. in said I, great is Mammon; but while it is somewhat rare in English, it is exceedingly common in German. German tends to begin the sentence with that element which is most prominent in the speaker's thought; and when this is done and the word so put first does not happen to be the subject, inversion must follow. In translating do not imitate the German inverted order at the expense of English idiom.

3. The general connectives und, aber and denn constitute an important exception to the above rule. They do not cause inversion.

READING LESSON: STRONG NOUNS, SECOND CLASS

Ich bin¹ nun zwei Tage² in einer Stadt. Ich habe ein Zimmer mit einem Ofen, einem Tische und ein paar³ Stühlen. Durchs Fenster sieht⁴ man einen Park mit allerlei Bäumen. Die Stadt liegt an⁵ einem Flusse. Auf⁶ dem Flusse sieht man heute ein paar Rähne. Wir sind am Anfang des Herbstes, aber die Luft ist noch immer⁷ warm.

EXERCISE 7a

1. Haben Sie einen Rahn? 2. Ich habe zwei Rähne auf dem Flusse. 3. Wer ist das in dem Rahn dort? 4. Der Stadtpark liegt am Flusse. 5. Wir haben einen Tisch und ein paar Stühle

* The important rules of word-order will be inserted as they are needed for the Exercises. They will be found together at the end of Part I.

im Garten. 6. Der Kasten liegt auf dem Tische. 7. Im Herbst gehen wir nach der Stadt. 8. Am Anfang des Sommers gehen wir ins Gebirge. 9. Ich bin nun zwei Jahre und einen Monat in der Stadt. 10. Im Park sieht man allerlei Bäume. 11. Wir haben nur noch ein paar Tage des Herbstes. 12. Die Arbeiter wohnen meistens in den Städten.

EXERCISE 7b

1. The days are long in the summer. 2. In the summer the nights are short. 3. I write this time from the city. 4. I am living in a little house by the river. 5. In the garden are tables and chairs. 6. I am writing at a table in the garden. 7. Yonder one sees the river and all sorts of boats. 8. One sees also the beginning of the park. 9. Father has a boat on the river. 10. In a few days I am going into the mountains.

VOCABULARY

a'llerlei', adj. all sorts of.	man, pron. (indef.) one [man].
der Anfa'ng, s. ² (pl. ä), beginning.	mit, prep. (dat.) with.
auf, prep. (dat. and acc.) on, up-on.	noch, adv. yet, still (of time).
durch, prep. (acc.) thru.	nun, adv. now, well.
der Fluß, s. ² (pl. -üßse), river.	der Ofen, s. ¹ (pl. ö), stove [oven].
der Herbst, s. ² autumn [har-vest].	das Paar, s. ² pair; ein paar; a few.
heute, adv. to-day.	der Park, s. ² (§ 76, 3, a), park.
der Kahn, s. ² (pl. ä), boat, row-boat.	die Stadt, s. ² (pl. ä), city.
liegen, v. lie, be situated.	der Stuhl, s. ² (pl. ü), chair [stool].
die Luft, s. ² (pl. ü), air.	der Tisch, s. ² table [dish].
	warm, adj. warm.
	das Zimmer, s. ¹ room [timber].

NOTES. — ¹ Ich bin, I have been. German uses the present tense, generally with an adverb referring to present time, to denote that which has been and still is. In such a case English uses the perfect. — ² Tage, acc. of measure; duration of time is expressed by the acc. — ³ ein paar; §§ 4, 1, a and 73, 1. — ⁴ sieht, sees; from sehen, which changes its root-vowel in the 2. and 3. pers. sing., the inflection being as follows: ich sehe, du siehst, er sieht, wir sehen, ihr seht, sie sehen. See § 184. —⁵ an, auf; both these words mean on, auf in the sense of over and upon, and an in that of close to. Thus a boat is auf dem Flusse, a city an dem Flusse. On the spelling Fluß — Flusse, as compared with Fuß — Füße, see § 2, 3. —⁶ noch immer; the two words together mean still, even now; said of that which has been and still is.

COLLOQUY: STRONG NOUNS, SECOND CLASS

Der Park ist schön am Abend,¹ nicht wahr?²

Ja wohl³; setzen wir uns⁴ einen Augenblick. Da ist eine Bank unter dem Baume dort.

Sehr gern⁵; aber gehen Sie noch heute abend⁶ nicht ins Konzert?

Wohl nicht; die Plätze sind zu teuer. Am Schlusse des Monats bin ich immer arm.

Das ist also⁷ das Hindernis! Nun, zum Glück⁸ habe ich zwei Billette.⁹ Kommen Sie nur mit.¹⁰

It is lovely in the park to-night, isn't it?²

Yes indeed; let⁴ us sit down a moment. There are chairs yonder.

Very well¹¹; but only a moment. I am going to the concert yet this evening.¹²

Have you a seat already?¹³

Yes, I have two tickets. Pray come along.

EXERCISE 8a

1. Die Abendkonzerte im Park sind sehr gut. 2. Ich komme in einem Augenblick. 3. Haben Sie ein Billet zum Konzert? 4. Der Arbeiter hat allerlei Hindernisse im Leben. 5. Der Kasten liegt unter dem Tische. 6. Die Plätze sind sehr teuer, nicht wahr? 7. Am Schlusse des Tages sieht man allerlei Arbeiter auf den Bänken im Park. 8. Kommen Sie mit uns in den Park; es ist sehr schön unter den Bäumen. 9. Ich bin nur am Tage im Zimmer, nicht in der Nacht.

EXERCISE 8 b

1. In the daytime the air is very warm. 2. He lives two months of the year in a little house on the river. 3. I see Fräulein Berta yonder under the trees. 4. We are already at the beginning of the end. 5. Come¹⁰ along to the concert; luckily I have two seats. 6. Are the tickets very expensive? 7. There is¹⁴ still a place at the table. 8. Here you have a chair and yonder are two seats on the bench. 9. I see difficulties right at the¹⁵ beginning.

VOCABULARY

also, adv. so, then [also].	✓ der Platz, s. ² (pl. ä), place, seat .
arm, adj. poor.	✓ der Schluß, s. ² (pl. Schlüsse), end, close .
✓ der Augenblick, s. ² moment .	schon, adv. already, quite .
die Bank, s. ² (pl. ä), bench .	schön, adj. beautiful, lovely das Billet, s. ² (pl. Billette, also Billets), ticket .	[sheen].
es, pron. it, there.	setzen, v. set, seat .
gern, adv. willingly, gladly .	teuer, adj. dear, expensive .
das Glück, s. ² (no plural), luck, fortune .	uns, pron. (dat. and acc.) us .
das Hindernis, s. ² hindr-ance, difficulty .	unter, prep. (dat. and acc.) un-der, among .
ja, adv. yes .	wahr, adj. true .
kommen, v. come .	zu, prep. (dat.) to, at, for; as adv. too .

NOTES. — ¹ am Abend, in the evening; so, also, am Tage, in the daytime. — ² nicht wahr, isn't it? for ist es nicht wahr, is it not true? a very common phrase, implying that an affirmative answer is expected. — ³ Ja wohl, yes indeed; wohl is often added to break the abruptness of a simple ja. — ⁴ setzen wir uns, let us sit down; literally, seat we us. The verb is subjunctive, 1. pers. pl., best translated by let. — ⁵ Sehr gern, all right, very well. — ⁶ heute abend, this evening (§ 4, 1, a). — ⁷ Das ist also, so that is; remember that also never means also. — ⁸ zum Glück, luckily; literally, for luck. Glück is for Ge-lück; it is only -lück that is cognate with luck. — ⁹ Billette; t doubled to mark the preceding vowel as short (§ 14, 2, and 34, 1, a). Pronounce Bil-yét-e. — ¹⁰ Kommen Sie nur mit, pray come along. The verb is imperative, 2. pers. pl. With this form of address Sie can not be omitted as you is in English. Nur with an imperative means just or pray. — ¹¹ Very well, not sehr wohl, nor sehr gut (see note 5 above). — ¹² I am going, etc. The order is: I go yet this evening to, etc. — ¹³ already; the order: Have you already, etc. — ¹⁴ There is; da ist, if 'there' means 'in that place,' otherwise es ist. — ¹⁵ right at the, schon am.

THIRD CLASS, STRONG DECLENSION

88. Membership. The third class embraces: (1) a large number of monosyllabic nouns, mainly neuter, but with a few masculines; (2) all nouns in tum; (3) a few neuters of foreign origin with accent on the ultima; e. g. Spita'l, hospital, pl. Spitä'ler.

1. Note that this class contains no feminines. It is pre-eminently the class of monosyllabic neuters. See § 276, 1.

2. Nouns in tum (cognate with dom in kingdom) are neuter; but note the exceptions, der Reichtum, riches, and der Irrtum, error.

89. The Genitive and Dative Singular. The genitive has the ending es or s, the dative the ending e or no ending at all, precisely as in the second class.

90. Formation of the Plural. The nominative plural always has the ending er, to which the dative adds n. The vowel preceding er always has umlaut, if capable of it, nouns in tum making the plural in tüner.

1. A number of nouns belong both to the third and to the second class, having two plurals, one in er, the other in e, usually with difference of meaning; thus das Band means either bond or ribbon, but in the plural Bände means bonds, while Bänder means ribbons. See § 276.

91. Examples. Mann, man; Haus, house; Altertum, antiquity.

Singular

Nom.	der Mann	das Haus	das Altertum
Gen.	des Mannes	des Hauses	des Altertums
Dat.	dem Manne	dem Hause	dem Altertum
Acc.	den Mann	das Haus	das Altertum

Plural

Nom.	die Männer	die Häuser	die Altertümer
Gen.	der Männer	der Häuser	der Altertümer
Dat.	den Männern	den Häusern	den Altertümern
Acc.	die Männer	die Häuser	die Altertümer

EXERCISE 9

Learn the inflection of sein and wohnen in the preterit tense. The latter will serve as a model for the very large class of verbs called 'weak.'

ich war, I was	ich wohnte, I lived du warst, thou wast	du wohntest, thou livedst
er war, he was	er wohnte, he lived
wir waren, we were	wir wohnten, we lived
ihr wart, you were	ihr wohntet, you lived
sie waren, they were	sie wohnten, they lived

READING LESSON: STRONG NOUNS, THIRD CLASS

Die Leute hier im Hause¹ sind sehr freundlich. Der Wirt ist Kaufmann² und ein Mann von Geist und Gemüt. Also ist er natürlich ein Freund von Büchern³ und Bildern. Er hat zwei Kinder, einen Sohn und eine Tochter. Ich war gestern mit den Kindern auf dem Lande⁴ und besuchte das Schloß eines Edelmanns. Vom Turme des Schlosses sieht man über Täler und Wälder bis ans Gebirge.

EXERCISE 9 a

1. Die Bücher auf dem Tische gehören einem Freunde des Hauses. 2. Da kommen zwei Männer durch den Wald. 3. Sie ist die Mutter von zwei Kindern. 4. Das Haus eines Edelmannes ist ein Schloß. 5. Edelleute sind nicht immer Kinder des Glückes und wohnen nicht immer in Schlössern. 6. Wer wohnt in den Häusern am Flusse? 7. Die Bewohner der Häuser sind meistens Arbeiter. 8. Der Anfang des Buches ist sehr interessant; den Schluß kenne ich noch nicht. 9. Das Bilderbuch gehört den Kindern. 10. Die Täler und Wälder des Gebirglandes sind sehr schön im Herbst.

1. That is the picture of a friend. 2. Those are pictures of⁵ friends. 3. She has two sons and two daughters. 4. People of⁵ intelligence are always friends of the country. 5. I see a few houses in the valley. 6. He has the intelligence of a man, the feeling of a child. 7. He has two castles in the country. 8. Do you see the castle yonder with the two towers? 9. The books and pictures belong to the man-of-the-house.⁶ 10. Are you a friend of⁵ children? 11. I know the men; they are friends of my father.

VOCABULARY

NOTE. — Since all nouns of the third class have umlaut in the plural, if possible, the modification of the vowel does not need to be specially indicated for words of that class.

das Bild, s. ³ picture.	das Land, ⁷ s. ²⁻³ land , country.
bis, prep. (acc.) up to, until;	Leute, pl. only , people.
bis an, clear to, as far as.	natürlich, adv. of course, naturally .
das Buch, s. ³ book .	das Schloß, s. ³ (pl. = öß-), castle.
✓ der Edelmann, s. ³ noble- man .	✓ der Sohn, s. ³ (pl. ö), son .
✓ der Freund, s. ² friend .	das Tal, s. ³ valley, dale .
freundlich, adj. friendly , kind.	✓ der Turm, s. ³ (pl. ü), tower.
✓ der Geist, s. ³ intelligence, spirit,	über, prep. (acc. and dat.) over , ghost .	about.
das Gemüt, s. ³ feeling, soul.	von, prep. (dat.) from, of.
gestern, adv. yester-day .	✓ der Wald, s. ³ forest [wold].
✓ der Kaufmann, s. ³ merchant	✓ der Wirt, s. ³ landlord, man-of-
[chapman].	the-house.
das Kind, s. ³ child.

NOTES.—¹ Im Hause, in the house; at home = zu Hause.—² Kaufmann; this and some other compounds of Mann have two plurals, one in -männer, the other in -leute, the latter being without reference to sex; thus Kaufmänner, merchants; Kaufleute, tradespeople.—³ von Büchern, of books; von with a dat. may take the place of a gen., ein Freund von Büchern, being = ein Freund der Bücher. One could not say ein Freund Bücher.—⁴ auf dem Lande, in the country, as opposed to in the city. Im Lande means in the country taken as a whole, including the cities.—⁵ of, von.—⁶ man-of-the-house; words thus joined by hyphens are to be translated in German as one word.—⁷ Land; the usual plural of Land is Länder; Lande is poetic, or used in compounds, as die Niederlande, the Netherlands.

EXERCISE 10

COLLOQUY: STRONG NOUNS, THIRD CLASS

Wie spät ist es wohl?¹ Gehen wir nicht bald nach Hause?²
Es ist wohl³ ziemlich spät; ich sehe schon Lichter in der Stadt dort.

Ja, es wird⁴ schon dunkel, und der Weg durch den Wald ist ziemlich lang.

Also gehen wir quer durch die Felder.

Sehr gern; aber was ist das Ding dort am Rande des Holzes?⁵

Ich weiß nicht; ein Gespenst vielleicht.

Da bist du wohl im Irrtum; für die Geister ist es noch zu früh am Abend.

Let us go⁶ home; it is getting late.

Yes, there is a light in the little house yonder already.⁷

It is pretty dark in the woods; do you know⁸ the way?

Not very well⁹; let us go across thru the field.

Very well; but what is that thing yonder among¹⁰ the leaves?

I do not know; perhaps it is a spook.

It is pretty early in the evening for spooks, isn't it?

EXERCISE 10 a

1. Ich sehe ein Licht durch die Blätter der Bäume. 2. Die Dinge auf dem Tische gehören den Kindern. 3. Gehen wir durchs Feld oder durch den Wald? 4. Ich sehe Lichter in den Fenstern des Schlosses. 5. Ich kenne zwei Wege von hier nach der Stadt. 6. Das Buch hat allerlei Bilder am Rande der Blätter. 7. Es sind allerlei Irrtümer in dem Buche. 8. Der Weg durchs Tal ist sehr gut bis an den Rand des Waldes. 9. Ich habe das Buch und die Bilder von einem Freunde. 10. Die Geister des Gebirges sind freundlich.

EXERCISE 10 b

1. I am going home. 2. Father is not at home. 3. Mother is in the house. 4. I see you know ¹¹ very little of ¹² books and pictures. 5. For the mother the children are the light of the house. 6. Do you know ⁸ the way thru the fields? 7. The thing is among the books on the table. 8. What do you know ¹¹ of ¹² ghosts and spooks? 9. The spirit of the book is good, but it has a few errors. 10. How long is the way from here to ¹³ the edge of the woods?

VOCABULARY

balb, adv. soon [bold].	✓ der Rand, s. ³ edge, border.
das Blatt, s. ² leaf [blade].	spät, adv. adj. late.
das Ding, s. ² thing .	vielleicht, adv. perhaps.
dunkel, adj. dark .	was, pron. (inter.) what .
das Feld, s. ³ field .	✓ der Weg, s. ² way .
früh, adv. adj. early .	werden, v. become; es wird, it is becoming.
für, prep. (acc.) for .	wie, adv. how, as [why].
das Gespenst, s. ³ ghost, spook.	wissen, v. know; ich weiß, I know das Holz, s. ³ wood, forest.	[to wit].
✓ der Irrtum, s. ³ error.	ziemlich, adv. pretty, tolerably.
das Licht, s. ³ light .
quer, adv. across.

NOTES. — ¹ wohl, I wonder. — ² nach Hause, home. — ³ wohl, probably, no doubt, I presume, I reckon, I guess. — ⁴ es wird, it is getting; 3. pers. sing. pres. of werden, which inflects thus: ich werde, du wirst, er wird, wir werden, ihr werdet, sie werden. — ⁵ Holzes; here = Wald, woods. The more common sense is wood, as a material. — ⁶ Let us go, gehen wir (see Ex. 8, n. 4). — ⁷ already, schon; directly after ist. — ⁸ do you know, kennst du; the use of du in this exercise, instead of Sie, presupposes that the speakers are very intimate friends. — ⁹ Not very well, nicht sehr gut; but in the next sentence very well = sehr gern. — ¹⁰ among, unter, with dat. — ¹¹ you know, du weißt; do you know, weißt du. The pres. of wissen inflects irregularly as follows: ich weiß, du weißt, er weiß, wir wissen, ihr wißt, sie wissen. — ¹² of, von; note that of with a verb, as in know of, speak of, etc., cannot be translated by the genitive. — ¹³ to, bis an, with acc.

THE WEAK DECLENSION

92. Membership. The weak declension embraces: (1) a considerable number of monosyllabic nouns, mainly feminine, but with a few masculines; (2) nearly all the feminines of more than one syllable; (3) masculines that end in e; (4) many foreign masculines that have the accent on the ultima.

1. There are no neuter nouns of the weak declension. While it contains numerous masculines, it is chiefly made up of feminines of more than one syllable, the only nouns of the latter class that do not belong to it being Mutter, Tochter, and a few in nis, sal and funst.

93. A Rule of Gender. The suffixes ei, heit, feit, in, schaft and ung invariably form feminine nouns of the weak declension.

1. This rule covers a very large number of words. The ending heit, cognate with hood in manhood, forms a multitude of abstracts from adjectives, as Freiheit, freedom, from frei, free; feit has a similar function (§ 387, 7); in forms feminines that correspond to masculines, as König, king, Königin, queen; schaft is cognate with ship in friendship = Freundschaft, and ung with ing in warning = Warnung.

2. The foreign suffixes ie, if and ion also form feminine nouns.

94. Formation of the Cases. Masculines add (e)n to the nominative singular to form all the other cases, singular and plural. Feminines add (e)n thruout the plural.

1. The case-ending is n if the noun ends in e, el, er or ar, otherwise it is en. But Herr, gentleman, sir, Mr., generally has in the singular Herrn, in the plural Herren.

2. Feminines in in have the plural in innen.

3. No weak noun has umlaut as a plural-sign.

95. Examples. Mensch, man, mankind; Knabe, boy; Frau, wife, Mrs.; Blume, flower.

Singular

N.	der Mensch	der Knabe	die Frau	die Blume
G.	des Menschen	des Knaben	der Frau	der Blume
D.	dem Menschen	dem Knaben	der Frau	der Blume
A.	den Menschen	den Knaben	die Frau	die Blume

Plural

N.	die Menschen	die Knaben	die Frauen	die Blumen
G.	der Menschen	der Knaben	der Frauen	der Blumen
D.	den Menschen	den Knaben	den Frauen	den Blumen
A.	die Menschen	die Knaben	die Frauen	die Blumen

1. So also der Stude'nt, the student: des Studenten, dem Studenten, den Studenten, pl. in all cases, Studenten.

96. Rule of Order II: Position of Adverbs. In the normal order an adverb must not come between the subject and the verb; thus I hardly know, ich weiß kaum; he never goes to church, er geht nie in die Kirche.

1. An adverb of time usually takes precedence of other adverbs; thus I knew him very well at that time, ich kannte ihn damals sehr gut; he is usually at home evenings, er ist abends gewöhnlich zu Hause.

EXERCISE 11

READING LESSON: WEAK NOUNS

Ich bin schon zehn Wochen in der Fremde,¹ und die Zeit vergeht mir sehr schnell über der Arbeit. Ich habe täglich eine Sprachstunde² und zwei Stunden wöchentlich in der Musik. Für die Sprache habe ich einen Lehrer, für die Musik eine Lehrerin.³ Über⁴ die Familie, besonders über den Hausherrn⁵ und die Kinder, schrieb⁶ ich neulich ein paar Zeilen. Die Frau Wirtin⁷ ist eine Weltdame⁸ und geht viel in Gesellschaft.

EXERCISE 11 a

1. Ich habe Arbeit auf⁹ zwei Wochen. 2. Das Leben des¹⁰ Menschen ist kurz. 3. Der¹⁰ Mensch ist immer das Kind der Zeit. 4. Die¹⁰ Menschen sind Kinder der Zeiten. 5. Wer ist der Vater des Knaben? 6. Ist die Dame eine Frau oder ein Fräulein? 7. Kennen Sie die Mutter der Knaben? 8. Es ist die Zeit der¹² Blumen. 9. Die Dame ist eine Freundin der Familie. 10. Die Mädchen sind Freundinnen der Musik. 11. Die Familie geht nach zwei Wochen in die Fremde. 12. Das ist Arbeit für eine Dame, nicht für einen Herrn. 13. Ich schreibe diesmal nur ein paar Zeilen; ich habe wenig Zeit.

EXERCISE 11 b

1. Work¹¹ is good for man.¹¹ 2. The lady is the mother of¹² ten children. 3. Two of¹² the ten children are boys. 4. The man-of-the-house is a friend of society.¹¹ 5. What do you know¹⁸ of¹² the language of flowers?¹¹ 6. The time is too short for a music-lesson. 7. Well, how goes it with the language-lessons? 8. The boy's mother is a teacher. 9. He is a student and knows¹⁴ all sorts of languages. 10. The weeks pass very quickly; it is already the beginning of the autumn-time.

COLLOQUY: WEAK NOUNS

Run, was gibt es in der Zeitung?
 Nicht viel; nur eine Menge ¹ Kleinigkeiten.
 Es ist ² doch wohl etwas darin über ³ Politik, über die Wahlen?
 Sehr wenig; aber die Nachrichten deuten auf einen Sieg für die Demokraten.

Meinen Sie in der Nation überhaupt, oder nur in der Stadt?
 Ich meine in der Nation; aber die Sache ist noch nicht gewiß.
 Wie groß ist die Mehrheit der Demokraten hier in der Stadt?
 Sie haben eine Mehrheit von etwa zweihundert Stimmen.

I see you have a paper. How is ⁴ the election going?
 The evening papers ⁵ have not much about politics.

But they surely have⁶ reports from the city, have they not?

Oh, yes; luck⁷ is on the side⁸ of the democrats.

How large is the majority?

According to⁹ the papers they have a majority of about two hundred votes.

On the spelling gibt, instead of giebt, see Appendix I. — ¹⁵ Is there, gibt es. — ¹⁶ language of flowers, Sprache der Blumen, or Blumenprache.

THE MIXED DECLENSION

97. Membership. The mixed declension comprises a number of masculine and neuter nouns (no feminines) that inflect the singular after the manner of the strong declension, but the plural after the manner of the weak. To it belong:

1. A small group of words having no common characteristic of form and represented below by der Staat and das Auge.

2. Nine or ten masculines in e which add n̄s for the genitive singular and n for all other cases.

a. The ending en̄s appears also in the genitive of das Herz, heart, the real stem being Herzen; the inflection runs: nom. and acc. Herz, gen. Herzens, dat. Herzen, pl. Herzen.

3. Latin nouns in unaccented or, with plural in o'ren.

4. A number of Latin and Greek neuters which make the plural in en, or ien if the Latin plural ended in ia.

98. Examples. Staat, state; Name, name; Doktor, doctor; Auge, eye; Drama, drama; Studium, study.

Singular

Nom.	der Staat	der Name	der Doktor
Gen.	des Staates	des Namens	des Doktors
Dat.	dem Staate	dem Namen	dem Doktor
Acc.	den Staat	den Namen	den Doktor

Plural

Nom.	die Staaten	die Namen	die Doktoren

READING LESSON: NOUNS OF THE MIXED DECLENSION

Von Tag zu Tag¹ mache ich allerlei Bekanntschaften unter den Nachbarn. Gestern abend war ich zu Tische² bei einem Herrn Namens Schmidt, einem Better meiner³ Wirtin. Herr Schmidt ist Doktor⁴ der Philosophie und Professor an⁵ der Universität. Die Gesellschaft bestand aus lauter Doktoren, Professoren und Studenten. Man redete⁶ viel von Büchern und Studien, aber auch von Angelegenheiten des Staates. Das Interesse für Politik⁷ ist jetzt sehr lebhaft. Wir leben noch im Frieden, aber vielleicht ist die Zeit des Friedens beinahe zu Ende.

1. Das Gebäude gehört dem Staate, nicht der Stadt.
2. Eine Nation besteht aus einem Staate, oder aus einer Menge Staaten.
3. Kennen Sie die Namen der Leute am Tische dort?
4. Ich schreibe ein paar Zeilen im Namen des Doktors.
5. Sie hat die Augen und die Stimme der Mutter.
6. Das Interesse für das Drama und für das Studium des Dramas ist jetzt sehr lebhaft.
7. Der Herr Doktor hat eine Menge Bettern Namens Schmidt.
8. Das ist die Arbeit eines Betters⁸ von dem Professor.
9. Das ist gewiß der Anfang des Endes.
10. An den Enden des Zimmers sieht man Bilder aus⁹ dem Familienleben.

EXERCISE 13 b

1. What is the gentleman's name?
2. That is the son of a neighbor.
3. The neighbors are very friendly.
4. The professor is writing a book on¹⁰ the study of the drama.
5. Music¹¹ is the language of the heart.
6. That is in the interest of the city, not of the state.
7. The interests of the majority are always on the side of peace.¹¹
8. The universities are here an affair of the states.
9. The eyes are the windows of the heart.
10. I am making a number of acquaintances among the students of the university.

VOCABULARY

machen, v. make.	die Universität, w. university.
mein, pron. (poss.) my.	der Vetter, mz. cousin.

NOTES. — ¹ von Tag zu Tag; in this phrase the e of the dat. is generally omitted. — ² zu Tische, at table; i. e. in this case, at supper. — ³ meiner Wirtin, of my landlady; mein is declined in the singular like ein. — ⁴ Doktor; see Ex. 4, n. 6. — ⁵ an; observe the preposition; one is a professor an einer Universität, but a student auf einer Universität. — ⁶ man redete viel, they talked much.. Reden inflects like wohnen in the preterit, except that it has a connecting-vowel e. — ⁷ für Politik, in politics. — ⁸ Vetter's; or one might say: Von einem Vetter des Professors. It is better to avoid two genitives (eines Vetter's des Professors). See § 247, 3. — ⁹ aus, from, i. e. pertaining to. — ¹⁰ on, über, with acc. — ¹¹ Use the generic article.

COLLOQUY: NOUNS OF THE MIXED DECLENSION

Ist Herr Doktor Schmidt zu Hause?

Ja wohl; aber er liegt noch im Bette. Was wünschen Sie?

Ich komme wegen eines Augenleidens.¹

Aber mein Vater ist kein Arzt; er hat nichts mit Augenkrankheiten zu tun.²

Wirklich? Er hat doch den Titel Doktor.

Richtig, aber er ist Doktor der Philosophie.

Hat er vielleicht einen Bruder oder einen Namensvetter³ in der Stadt?

Ja, freilich; ich kenne einen Arzt Namens Schmidt. Er ist ein Vetter des Vaters.

Is this the residence of Professor⁴ Schmidt?

Yes, but he is not at home; he is away on business⁵ of state.

You are perhaps the professor's son?

Yes; do you wish something from father?⁶ You are a student, I presume.⁷

No, I come from the museum; I am the son of the director. Perhaps then you have something for father.

Correct; the box here contains a quantity⁸ of minerals and fossils.

EXERCISE 14 a

1. Das war gewiß die Stimme des Herzens. 2. Er ist wie⁹ ein Kind und kennt die Herzen der Kinder. 3. Kennen Sie den Herrn Direktor des Museums? 4. Meinen Sie das Stadtmuseum? Es gibt zwei Museen und zwei Direktoren. 5. Das sind Studenten der Universität. 6. Wünschen Sie ein Zimmer mit ein¹⁰em¹⁰ Bette oder mit zwei Betten? 7. Hier lebt der Student nicht unter den Augen des Professors. 8. Der Friede ist immer ein Glück für die Nationen der Welt. 9. Zwei Zimmer des Museums enthalten Mineralien und Fossilien. 10. Der Kästen gehört in¹¹ die Wohnung des Direktors.

EXERCISE 14 b

1. I wish a room with two windows and two beds. 2. We have two castles and two museums in the city. 3. Physicians are always doctors, but doctors are not always physicians. 4. The windows are too large, the beds too short. 5. That is the affair of a workingman, not of a student. 6. Yonder is the residence of the director. 7. I am going home on account of the illness of my mother. 8. What have I to do with minerals and fossils? 9. It is a time of suffering among the workingmen. 10. The children are cousins.

VOCABULARY

✓ der Arzt, s.² (pl. ä), physician.

nichts, pron. nothing.	wünschen, v. wish.
richtig, adj. right, correct.

NOTES. — ¹ Augenleiden, eye-trouble, trouble with (my) eyes. — ² zu tun, to do. A dependent infinitive usually comes at the end of the sentence; see § 187. — ³ Namensvetter, namesake, in the sense of 'one having the same name.' — ⁴ of Professor, des Herrn Professor. — ⁵ on business of state, in Geschäften des Staates, or in Staatsgeschäften. — ⁶ from father, vom Vater (Ex. 4, n. 5). — ⁷ are a student, I presume, sind wohl Etudent. — ⁸ a quantity of, eine Menge (without prep.). — ⁹ wie, like. — ¹⁰ einem; here = one; see § 116, 3. — ¹¹ gehört in, belongs in. The box is not in place; so the acc. tells whither it must be taken to be where it 'belongs.'

DECLENSION OF PROPER NAMES

99. Names of Persons. Names of persons have, in general, no inflection except in the genitive singular; in all other cases the form remains the same, the article being used, if necessary, for the sake of clearness; e. g. ich lese (den) Schiller, I am reading Schiller; im Lande der Mozart und der Wagner, in the land of the Mozarts and the Wagners.

1. The genitive singular has the ending s — the rule applies to feminine as well as to masculine names — unless the name ends in an s-sound, when an apostrophe is commonly used; e. g. Schillers Werke, or die Werke Schillers, Schiller's works, the works of Schiller; Mariens Eltern, Marie's parents; Opitz' Gedichte, Opitz's poems. The ending ens, as in Mariens Eltern, Opitzens Gedichte, is going out of fashion, tho still often used.

a. But the ending s is omitted if the name is preceded by an article or pronoun in the genitive (an intervening adjective or noun makes no difference) and is not followed by the noun on which the genitive depends; e. g. die Werke eines Schiller, des Dichters Schiller, des jungen Schiller, meines geliebten Schiller, the works of a Schiller, of the poet Schiller, of the youthful Schiller, of my beloved Schiller; but des jungen Schillers Werke, the young Schiller's works.

100. Names of Places. Names of towns and countries are mostly neuter nouns, used without the article unless an adjective precedes. They have no inflection except an s in the genitive singular, and the use of this follows the rule given above for names of persons; e. g. die Mauern Roms, the walls of Rome; but die Mauern des alten Rom, der Stadt Rom, the walls of ancient Rome, of the city of Rome.

1. If the name ends in an s-sound the genitive is best replaced by von with the dative, unless one prefers an adjective construction; e. g. die Straßen von Paris, or die Pariser Straßen, the streets of Paris.

2. But some names of countries, provinces, mountain districts, etc., and all names of rivers, are regularly used with the article. Such names, if masculine or neuter, often retain the s of the genitive even after the article; e. g. der Gipfel des Brodens, the summit of the Brocken; die Ufer des Rheins, the banks of the Rhine. Feminine names of countries are, of course, without inflection; e. g. die Berge der Schweiz, the mountains of Switzerland.

EXERCISE 15

READING LESSON: PROPER NOUNS

Ich war neulich im Theater bei einer Vorstellung von Schillers „Wilhelm Tell.“ Ein Schauspieler Namens Müller spielte die Rolle des Tell, ein Fräulein Braun die Rolle der Berta. Die Vorstellung war sehr gut, besonders der Apfelschuß Tells und der Tod Gefßlers. Nur war die Liebescene¹ zwischen Berta und Ruden; etwas kalt, denn² Bertas Stimme war unangenehm. In Deutschland, dem Lande der Wagner und der Beethoven, war die Musik natürlich auch gut. Ich lese jetzt Schillers Werke; er ist groß, aber er hat nicht die Kraft eines Shakespeares.⁸ In ein paar Tagen mache⁴ ich eine Reise über⁵ Weimar nach Leipzig⁶ und Dresden. Weimar war vor hundert Jahren⁷ der Wohnort der Dichter Goethe und Schiller. Es liegt an der Ilm, einem Nebenflusse der Saale.

EXERCISE 15 a

1. I am reading Schiller's dramas. 2. I have also the works of Goethe. 3. Germany is a land of music. 4. The journey from Göttingen to⁸ Weimar is not very interesting. 5. This evening there is⁹ a performance of Shakespeare's Hamlet. 6. An actress from Dresden plays the part of Ophelia.¹⁰ 7. Weimar is interesting on account of the poets Goethe and Schiller. 8. The park of Weimar belongs among¹¹ the works of Goethe. 9. There is⁹ a Life of Schiller by¹² Thomas Carlyle. 10. Werther's Sufferings is the title of a book by¹² Goethe.

NOTES. — ¹ Liebes-scene; pronounce ze'ne. A feminine noun in composition sometimes takes the ending s, thus constituting an exception to § 77, 1. — ² denn at the beginning of a sentence means for, elsewhere then. On the order see § 87, 3. — ³ Shakespeare; pronounce as in English. — ⁴ make ich, I shall make, I am going to make; the pres. tense denoting here a present purpose. — ⁵ über, by way of. — ⁶ Leipzig, Leipsic. But some prefer to use in English the German form Leipzig. In most cases the form of the name is the same in both languages. — ⁷ vor hundert Jahren, a hundred years ago; lit. before a hundred years. — ⁸ to, nach; see Ex. 5, n. 7. — ⁹ there is, es gibt (or gibt es, § 87). — ¹⁰ of Ophelia, der Ophelia. — ¹¹ among, unter with acc. — ¹² by, von.

THE ADJECTIVE

INFLECTION

101. Inflected and Uninflected Adjectives. The adjective is inflected only when it qualifies a following noun, expressed or understood, or is itself used substantively; if used alone in the predicate, or after its noun, or adverbially, it is uninflected. Thus: ein hübsches Mädchen, a pretty girl; but das Mädchen ist hübsch, the girl is pretty; nennt sich hübsch, calls herself pretty; trägt sich hübsch, carries herself prettily. So also, poetically, as in English, ein Mädchen hübsch und jung, a maiden fair and young.

1. When inflected, the adjective agrees with its noun, unless it is itself used as a noun, in gender, number and case.

2. Almost any adjective can be used in its uninflected form as an adverb.

3. Participles when used as adjectives have the inflection of adjectives.

102. Strong and Weak Inflection. Adjectives are inflected in two different ways, according as they are or are not preceded by an article or pronoun having a distinctive ending. The inflection used when such a word precedes is called 'weak'; the inflection used when no such word precedes is called 'strong.'

1. The terms 'strong' and 'weak' do not mean, as in the case of nouns, that some adjectives are declined in one way, and others in another, but that any adjective, in any particular case, takes the one or the other of two endings, according to what goes before. The use of the weak inflection is to avoid the unnecessary repetition of grammatical distinctions. Thus in das neue Haus, the new house, das shows the gender; hence the adjective does not need to show it and becomes weak. But in ein neues Haus, a new house, ein is not a distinctive form, since of itself it is either masculine or neuter; hence the adjective is given the strong, or distinctive ending.

103. The Endings. The endings are as follows:

	STRONG				WEAK
	Sing.		Plur.		Sing.		Plur.
	Mas.	Fem.	Neu.	M. F. N.	Mas.	Fem.	Neu.	M. F. N.
N.	er	e	eß	e	e	e	e	en
G.	eß	er	eß	er	en	en	en	en
D.	em	er	em	en	en	en	en	en
A.	en	e	eß	e	en	e	e	en

1. Observe that in four cases, namely, the nominative and accusative singular feminine, the accusative singular masculine and the dative plural, there is no difference between the strong and the weak inflection.

2. Before the e of the endings a final e of the stem is dropped; as in ein weiser Mann, from weise, wise. Words in unaccented el, en, er, generally drop the e of the stem; e. g. ein edles Herz, from edel, noble; ein offnes Fenster, from offen, open; ein heit(e)rer Tag, from heiter, bright.

104. Use of the Strong Endings. An adjective has strong inflection if no distinctive form of an article or pronominal modifier precedes; e. g. guter Wein ist teuer, good wine is dear; mit frohem Herzen, with happy heart; zwei frohe Herzen, two happy hearts; ein frohes Herz, a happy heart; etwas Gutes, something good.

a. But in the genitive singular, masculine and neuter, it is now customary to use weak inflection, even tho no article or pronominal modifier precedes, in order to avoid a repetition of the ending es; e. g. sei frohen Mutes, be of good cheer. Observe, however, that strong inflection also occurs in this case.

1. A 'distinctive form' is one that sufficiently shows gender, number or case. The forms of der are all distinctive and hence always followed by weak inflection. The forms of ein and its negative kein are all distinctive except three, namely, the nominative singular masculine and the nominative and accusative singular neuter. In these three cases, then, ein and kein are followed by strong inflection.

a. What is true of ein and kein is also true of the six possessives mein, dein, sein, unser, euer, ihr (and Ihr), all of which are inflected like ein in the singular; hence mein lieber (never meiner liebe) Freund, my dear friend; Ihr neues (never Ihres neue) Haus, your new house.

2. The other 'pronominal modifiers' which affect the inflection of a following adjective are the so-called indefinite pronominals (§ 146 ff.), such as all, all; manch, many; solch, such; viel, much; wenig, little. These words are generally inflected like any adjective, but have the peculiarity that they may drop the inflectional ending. When this happens the following adjective is strong, otherwise it is weak; e. g. mancher gute (or manch guter) Mann, many a good man.

a. After a neuter pronominal an adjective not followed by a noun is itself treated as a substantive and written with a capital; e. g. etwas Gutes, something good; nichts Neues, nothing new.

b. After the nominative and accusative plural of several pronominals usage varies, the preference being on the whole for strong inflection; e. g. viele gute (or guten) Männer, many good men (see § 288, 3 a).

3. The personal pronouns are followed by strong inflection in the nominative and accusative singular; e. g. du glücklicher Mann, you happy man; dich armes Kind, thee poor child.

105. Examples.

1. The adjective not preceded by an article or pronoun :
Guter Kopf, good head; gute Seele, good soul; gutes Herz, good heart.

Singular

Nom.	guter Kopf	gute Seele	gutes Herz
Gen.	{ guten Kopfes gutes Kopfes	guter Seele	{ guten Herzens gutes Herzens
Dat.	gutem Kopfe	guter Seele	gutem Herzen
Acc.	guten Kopf	gute Seele	gutes Herz

Plural

Nom.	gute Köpfe	gute Seelen	gute Herzen
Gen.	guter Köpfe	guter Seelen	guter Herzen
Dat.	guten Köpfen	guten Seelen	guten Herzen
Acc.	gute Köpfe	gute Seelen	gute Herzen

2. The adjective preceded by an uninflected form of ein, sein, mein, dein, sein, unser, euer, ihr.

Singular

	Mas.	Neut.
Nom.	ein guter Kopf	ein gutes Herz
Acc.		ein gutes Herz

All the other forms are weak. For a complete paradigm of an adjective after one of these eight words see § 107, 2.

EXERCISE 16

READING LESSON : STRONG ADJECTIVES

Mein lieber Freund !¹ Ich bin jetzt auf kurze Zeit² in Leipzig. Ich habe ein kleines freundliches³ Zimmer mit guter Bedienung zu billigem Preise. Der Hauswirt ist ein interessanter alter Herr mit weißem Bart und weißen⁴ Haaren. Vor Jahren⁵ war er reich, aber jetzt hat er nur ein kleines Vermögen. Seine Frau ist tot, und die Stütze seines Alters ist seine Tochter, ein lebenswürdiges Mädchen von seltner Schönheit. Vater und Tochter nehmen ein freundliches Interesse an meinen Studien; sie verbessern mein schlechtes Deutsch und erzählen mir allerlei Interessantes⁶ von der Stadt.

EXERCISE 16 a

1. Er ist ein sehr reicher Mann. 2. Ist das aber⁷ ein schönes Mädchen! 3. Ich habe ein neues Haus. 4. Ich gehe in kurzer Zeit nach Hause. 5. Wir sind alte Freunde. 6. Sind Sie ein Freund von seltenen Büchern? 7. Kennen Sie einen guten Arzt in der Stadt? 8. Die Sache hat eine gute und eine schlechte Seite. 9. Zwei lange Jahre wohne ich nun in Deutschland. 10. Armes Kind! du hast also keine Mutter? 11. Gute Äpfel sind jetzt sehr teuer. 12. Für einen jungen Knaben schreiben Sie sehr interessante Briefe.

EXERCISE 16 b

1. Poor man! that comes of⁸ bad company. 2. Dear old city! Mother of great men and fair⁹ women! 3. It is a very good book. 4. He is a good man, but no great poet. 5. The house is small, but it has two good large rooms. 6. Bad newspapers are nothing rare. 7. He writes with great power. 8. He is an old friend of the family. 9. We are good friends. 10. This is Herr Müller, my old teacher. 11. The book contains much (that is) good, but also all sorts of bad (things). 12. Great heart! Beautiful victory over¹⁰ long suffering!

VOCABULARY

NOTES. —¹ It is customary to use an exclamation-point after the formal address in a letter. —² auf kurze Zeit, for a short time — looking ahead. —³ freundliches, pleasant, cozy, as applied to a room. Observe that two adjectives occurring together have the same inflection; i. e. the first does not weaken the second. —⁴ weißen Haaren; 'the hair' of the head is either das Haar or die Haare. It is here used as a plural, whence the repetition of weiß. But one might also write mit weißem Bart und Haar(e). —⁵ Vor Jahren, years ago. —⁶ allerlei Interessantes, all sorts of interesting (things). —⁷ Ist das aber, but isn't that. —⁸ of, von. —⁹ fair, schön. —¹⁰ over, über with acc. —¹¹ The noun Deutsch, meaning the German language, is indeclinable, but the adjective deutsch is declined like any other adjective.

Guten¹ Morgen. Schönes Wetter heute, nicht wahr?

Es ist ein prächtiger Tag. Was sagen Sie zu einem Spaziergang?

Ein guter Gedanke; ich habe sonst nichts Wichtiges zu tun.

Nun, was gibt's² Neues? Sie sind offenbar in froher Stimmung.

Ja, das bin ich, und ich habe guten Grund; mein alter Freund Max kommt heute nach der Stadt.

Das ist freilich eine große Freude für Sie.

Where are you living³ now? Have you a good room?

Not a⁴ very good one. I am living⁵ at No. 2 Königstrasse.⁶

I think I know ⁷ the house; it is an old, low building, isn't it?

Well,⁸ it is not a⁹ royal palace, to be sure, but the rooms are cheap.

Do you have good fare? That is an important point.

No, the fare is bad too; good coffee is not to be had.¹⁰

Poor fellow! That is a miserable life.

106. Use of the Weak Endings. An adjective has weak inflection when it is preceded by a distinctive form of an article or pronoun; e. g. der alte Mann, the old man; jenes neue Haus, that new house; an jedem schönen Tage, on every fine day; meine lieben Freunde, my dear friends.

1. The words *der, dies, jen-, * jed- and jeglich-* are always followed by weak inflection.

2. The words ein, fein, mein, dein, sein, unser, euer, ihr (and Ihr) are followed by weak inflection except in the nominative singular masculine and the nominative and accusative singular neuter.

* The hyphen means that these words do not occur in the stem-form, but always have an inflectional ending.

3. The indefinite pronominals all, manch, solch, etc. are followed by weak inflection if they have a distinctive ending. But see § 104, 2, b.

4. The personal pronouns are followed by weak inflection except in the nominative and accusative singular; e. g. wir armen Leute, we poor people.

107. Examples of Weak Inflection.

1. After der, dies, jen-, jed-, or jedlich- :

Singular

N.	der gute Kopf	die gute Seele	das gute Herz
G.	des guten Kopfes	der guten Seele	des guten Herzens
D.	dem guten Kopfe	der guten Seele	dem guten Herzen
A.	den guten Kopf	die gute Seele	das gute Herz

Plural

N.	die guten Köpfe,	Seelen,	Herzen
G.	der guten Köpfe,	Seelen,	Herzen
D.	den guten Köpfen,	Seelen,	Herzen
A.	die guten Köpfe,	Seelen,	Herzen

2. After ein, kein, or a possessive :

Singular

N.	[kein guter Kopf]	keine gute Seele	[kein gutes Herz]
G.	keines guten Kopfes	keiner guten Seele	keines guten Herzens
D.	keinem guten Kopfe	keiner guten Seele	keinem guten Herzen
A.	keinen guten Kopf	keine gute Seele	[kein gutes Herz]

Plural

N.	keine guten Köpfe,	Seelen,	Herzen
G.	keiner guten Köpfe,	Seelen,	Herzen
D.	keinen guten Köpfen,	Seelen,	Herzen
A.	keine guten Köpfe,	Seelen,	Herzen

108. The Adjective used Substantively. Adjectives are often used substantively, and when so used they have the capital initial of a noun, but the inflection of an adjective; as der Alte, the old man; die Alte, the old woman; die Alten, the old people; das Alte, the old, that which is old.

1. As the examples indicate, the masculine and feminine singular and the plural of a substantive adjective designate persons. The neuter singular generally denotes the quality abstractly, and has to be translated in different ways; e. g. er liebt das Schöne, he loves the beautiful (die Schöne would mean the beautiful woman, die Schönen, the fair sex); das Buch enthält Altes und Neues, the book contains old (matter) and new; er hat Großes getan, he has done great (things); er hat mir ein Leides getan, he has done me a grievous (turn).

109. Irregular and Defective Inflection. The most important cases are as follows:

1. The stem of the adjective hoch, high, changes to hoh in all inflected forms; e. g. ein hoher Baum, a high tree.

2. Adjectives in er from names of towns are indeclinable; e. g. der Kölner Dom, the Cologne cathedral.

3. Ganz, all, and halb, half, when not preceded by the article are uninflected before neuter names of places; e. g. ganz England freute sich, all England rejoiced; durch halb Berlin, thru half of Berlin.

4. Some adjectives are used only in the predicate, and hence are never declined; as bereit, ready; feind, hostile.

5. The first of two adjectives forming a compound adjective is uninflected; e. g. der deutsch-französische Krieg, the Franco-German war; dunkelbraunes Haar, dark-brown hair.

110. The Predicate Adjective. A predicate adjective if it stands alone is uninflected; e. g. mein Schicksal ist schwer, my fate is hard; die Antwort ist richtig, the answer is right. But if an article precedes, the predicate adjective then becomes an attributive adjective, with noun understood, and is inflected; e. g. mein Schicksal ist ein schweres, my fate is a hard one; die Antwort ist die richtige, the answer is the right one.

1. Further varieties of predicate adjective are:

a. The appositional predicate, in apposition with either subject or object; e. g. trostlos irrt er umher, he wanders about inconsolable; ich fand ihn krank im Bette, I found him sick in bed.

b. The factitive predicate, denoting the state to which an object is brought by the action of the verb; e. g. ich könnte mich tot lachen, I could laugh myself dead; er malt das Bild schwarz, he paints the picture black.

COMPARISON

111. Comparison by means of er and (e)st. Adjectives are compared ordinarily by means of the endings er and (e)st, which in a limited number of words (see § 293) have caused umlaut of a preceding a, o or u. The comparative and superlative are inflected like the positive.

1. Before the er of the comparative a final e of the stem is dropped; as weise, wise; weiser, wiser.

2. The superlative regularly ends in st, but in est if the stem ends in an s-sound or in b or t; but participial stems in enb take the ending st.

3. The e of the unaccented endings el, en, er is usually dropped in the comparative, but retained in the superlative.

4. The following examples will illustrate the above rules:

lang, long

kurz, short

länger

(längst) der längste

(reichst) der reichste

(kürzest) der kürzeste

mild, mild	milber	(milbest) der milbeste
reizend, charming	reizender	(reizendst) der reizendste dunkel, dark	dunkler	(dunkelst) der dunkelste

a. The uninflected superlative schönst, längst etc. can only be used adverbially. Used adjectively the superlative is regularly preceded by der, and hence of the weak declension.

112. The Superlative with am. For the English predicate superlative without an article German employs a phrase consisting of am followed by the inflected superlative in the dative singular neuter; e. g. das wäre am besten (never das wäre best), that would be best; die Gegend ist am schönsten im Juni, the region is loveliest in June.

1. The phrase with am sometimes takes the place of a predicate nominative with der; e. g. unter den drei Knaben ist Karl am ältesten (instead of the more correct der älteste), of the three boys Karl is the oldest.

2. The superlative of an adverb is regularly formed by means of the phrase with am, or else a phrase with auf; e. g. sie singt am besten, she sings best; sie sang auf; beste, she sang her best. (See § 294, 5, and § 375, 2).

113. Comparison by Means of Adverbs. Adjectives are sometimes compared by means of the adverbs mehr, more, and am meisten, most.

1. An absolute superlative, i. e. one which does not imply comparison with other objects, is formed by means of the adverbs höchst, most highly, or äußerst, exceedingly; e. g. das ist ein höchst interessantes Buch, that is a most interesting book.

2. Degrees below the positive are denoted by the adverbs weniger or minder, less, and am wenigsten, am mindesten, least.

114. Irregular and Defective Comparison. A few adjectives are compared irregularly and certain others lack one or more degrees. Thus :

1. Gut, good, and viel, much, have change of stem : gut, besser, best ; viel, mehr, meist.

2. Hoch, high, and nah, near, are compared : hoch, höher, höchst ; nah, näher, nächst.

3. Groß, great, has größt, rarely größte, in the superlative.

4. Some adjectives, mostly from adverbs and prepositions, lack the positive ; e. g. hinter, hinder, from the preposition hinter, behind ; ober, upper, from the adverb oben, above.

5. Erst, first, and letzt, last, are isolated superlatives. They are, however, sometimes compared with er as if they were positives, der erstere and der letztere being quite common in the sense of the former and the latter.

6. As in English, some adjectives are, from their meaning, incapable of comparison ; e. g. ganz, all ; täglich, daily.

READING LESSON: COMPARISON OF ADJECTIVES

Liebster Freund ! Die Ferien sind zu Ende, und ich bin schon längere¹ Zeit wieder zu Hause. Die kleine Reise war mir im höchsten Grade zuträglich. Ich bin viel stärker und heiterer als vor einem Monat ; auch habe ich jetzt einen besseren Begriff vom mittleren² Deutschland. Von Leipzig ging³ ich zunächst nach Dresden und blieb dort mehrere Tage. Dresden ist nicht viel größer als Leipzig, aber es hat eine schönere Lage. Es liegt nämlich in einem prächtigen Tale zu beiden Seiten der Elbe, der ältere und größere Teil auf dem linken Ufer. Unter den Sehenswürdigkeiten der Stadt ist die große Bildergalerie am berühmtesten. Diese⁴ war für mich, wie für die meisten Fremden, der interessanteste Punkt in Dresden. Weiteres⁶ über meine Wanderungen schreibe ich vielleicht in meinem nächsten Briefe.

certainly now 1. Es ist kalt heute, ^{today} viel kälter als gestern. 2. Wir haben jetzt gewiß das kälteste Wetter des Jahres. 3. Herr Wirt, ich wünsche ein größeres Zimmer, mit höheren Fenstern und besserem Lichte. 4. Wir haben keine größeren Zimmer; dies ist das größte im Hause. 5. Wohnen Sie in dem älteren oder in dem neueren Teile der Stadt? 6. Es gibt kürzere Wege von hier nach Hause, aber dies⁶ ist der beste. best 7. Zu dieser Jahreszeit sind die Tage am längsten und am schönsten. 8. Er ist ein besserer Arzt, aber weniger berühmt als sein jüngerer Bruder. that 9. Als ältester Sohn der Familie hat er ein größeres Vermögen als seine jüngeren Brüder. 10. Das Leben in Deutschland ist jetzt teurer⁷ als in früheren Zeiten. 11. Goethe war ein größerer Dichter als Schiller, aber kein besserer Mensch. 12. Ich kenne seine späteren Werke am besten.

EXERCISE 20 b

1. He is two years older than I. 2. She is my dearest friend. 3. The days are becoming shorter. 4. I know⁸ a shorter way. 5. You are evidently in a more cheerful mood. 6. Where do you find stronger men or more beautiful women? 7. This is the beginning of better days. 8. Among Schiller's later plays⁹ Wilhelm Tell is the best. 9. As poet Schiller is strongest in the drama. 10. That is the highest tower in the world. 11. Fräulein Berta is more pretty¹⁰ than beautiful. 12. This is surely the coldest day of the year. 13. Death¹¹ is the beginning of a better life.

EXERCISE 21

COLLOQUY: WEAK ADJECTIVES

Sie waren wohl den größten Teil des Sommers in England?
Ja, aber nur in den kleineren Städten; erst im Herbst ging ich nach London.

Waren Sie längere Zeit in London, oder nur ein paar Tage?

Im ganzen etwa drei Wochen; ich blieb etwas länger in Paris, am längsten aber in Berlin.

Was denken Sie denn jetzt von den drei größten Städten Europas?

Für mich war Paris am interessantesten.

Das ist höchst sonderbar; die meisten Amerikaner haben¹ doch London am liebsten.

Das ist möglich, aber meine Sympathien sind mehr französisch als englisch.

Why did you not go² to London at once? That is the most interesting place in England, is it not?

Yes, to be sure, but not the pleasantest in the hot season.

For my part ⁸ I always like the large cities best.

That is not my taste. People ⁴ live too fast in the large cities. I love a more quiet life.

No doubt one needs ⁵ a pretty long time ⁶ for ⁷ the sights of London.

Yes, indeed; it is a most interesting ⁸ city.

What do you think of the London weather? ⁹ It is the worst ¹⁰ in the world, is it not?

Oh no; the weather is no ¹¹ worse in London than here at home.

EXERCISE 21a

1. Sie schreibt höchst interessante Briefe. 2. Unter den neueren Dichtern lese ¹² ich Schiller am liebsten. 3. Die Gesellschaft war langweilig im höchsten Grade; es waren nur ältere Leute da. 4. Ich weiß nichts Besseres zu tun. 5. Die Dresdener Bildergalerie ist die berühmteste in ganz Deutschland. 6. In der letzten Zeit ¹³ hatten ¹⁴ wir äußerst unangenehmes Wetter. 7. Dieses Buch ist zu groß; ich wünsche ein kleineres. 8. Der erste Teil des Werkes ist von größtem Interesse. 9. Die besten Theater finden sich ¹⁵ meistens nur in den größeren Städten. 10. Ich finde das Gebirge am schönsten im Herbst. 11. Die berühmtesten Schriftsteller sind nicht immer die größten. 12. Der Herr Professor redete aufs freundlichste über sein neuestes Werk.

EXERCISE 21b

1. He is a teacher of the modern ¹⁶ languages. 2. That is the most interesting part of the whole story. 3. The father is an elderly ¹⁷ gentleman with a white beard. 4. I am reading a most interesting story. 5. The hills and valleys are at their loveliest ¹⁸ in the autumn. 6. That is an exceedingly rare book. 7. No better man lives. 8. (The) Faust is Goethe's greatest work. 9. A poet has to do with the higher interests of life. 10. One finds the best thoughts in her last work. 11. I have nothing better. 12. His great advantage is his rare knowledge of modern ¹⁹ philosophy. 13. The last part of the work is the least ¹⁹ interesting.

THE NUMERALS

115. The Cardinals. The fundamental numbers and the mode of forming the others appear from the following table:

1 ein(ß)	13 dreizehn	50 fünfzig
2 zwei	14 vierzehn	60 sechzig
3 drei	15 fünfzehn	70 sieb(en)zig
4 vier	16 sechzehn	80 achtzig
5 fünf	17 sieb(en)zehn	90 neunzig
6 sechs	18 achtzehn	100 hundert
7 sieben	19 neunzehn	120 hundert und zwanzig
8 acht	20 zwanzig	121 hundert einundzwanzig
9 neun	21 einundzwanzig	150 hundert und fünfzig
10 zehn	22 zweiundzwanzig	200 zweihundert
11 elf	30 dreißig	1,000 tausend
12 zwölf	40 vierzig

1. The number 1,121, for example, is read tausend einhundert einundzwanzig; 1,000,000 is eine Million; 1,000,000,000 eine Milliarde; 1,000,000,000,000 eine Billion.

2. For a hundred, a thousand, German has simply hundert, tausend, ein being used only where English would have ONE hundred, ONE thousand.

116. Inflection and Use of ein. When it agrees with a noun expressed, and is not preceded by der, the numeral ein is inflected like the article ein; e. g. wir sind ein Volk, we are one people; wir sind eines Bluts, we are of one blood.

1. But if it is used without a noun it takes the ending er in the nominative singular masculine, and es in the nominative and accusative singular neuter; e. g. einer von uns hat unrecht, one of us is wrong; einer der Knaben, one of the boys; eines der Mädchen, one of the girls.

2. Preceded by der (dieß or jen-), ein has the inflection of a weak adjective and forms a plural, die einen, with the sense of some; e. g. der eine oder der andere hat unrecht, the one or the other is wrong.

3. Ein, one, is distinguished from ein, a, when necessary, by spaced type, or by a capital initial; less often by an accent. See examples in § 116.

117. The Numbers above ein. The numbers above ein are usually uninflected.

1. But zwei and drei sometimes form a nominative and accusative in e, a genitive in er and a dative in en. Some of the numbers above drei may also take the ending e, especially when no noun follows.

118. The Ordinals. From one to twenty the ordinal stems are formed by suffixing t to the cardinal; e. g. viert, fourth; dreizehnt, thirteenth. From twenty on they are formed by suffixing st to the tens; e. g. zwanzigst, twentieth; fünfunddreißigst, thirty-fifth.

1. But first is erst, third is dritt (not breit), and eighth is acht (not ächtt).

2. Such forms as zweit, zwanzigst, have only a theoretical existence. Like the superlatives schönst, best, etc. the ordinals are only used after der or a pronominal modifier, and have then the inflection of an adjective; e. g. sein dritter Sohn, his third son; am 21sten (= einundzwanzigsten) April, on the 21st of April.

3. The partitive ordinals are formed by suffixing tel, an abbreviation of Teil, part, to the ordinal stem, the preceding t being dropped; e. g. ein Drittel, a third; ein Sechstel, a sixth. The words are neuter substantives.

a. Half is halb, as adjective, or die Hälfte, as noun; e. g. der halbe Weg, half the way; ein halbes Duzend, half a dozen; die Hälfte des Apfels, half of the apple. Halb is also used substantively, without inflection, in fractional numbers; e. g. drei und einhalb Jahre, three and a half years.

b. A peculiar formation is the so-called dimidiative, made by suffixing halb to the ordinal stem with connecting vowel e, the number thus denoted being less by one-half than the ordinal; e. g. brittehalb, two and a half, i. e. (two complete and the) third (only) half. Instead of zweitehalb, andertshalb is used for one and a half. The dimidiatives are not inflected.

EXERCISE 22

READING LESSON: NUMERALS

Ein deutsches Gymnasium¹ hat einen Kursus von neun Jahren. In der untersten Klasse, der sogenannten Sexta,² sind die Schüler im Durchschnitt neun bis zehn Jahre alt. Der Schüler vollendet den Kursus also im neunzehnten oder zwanzigsten Jahre seines Lebens. Ein Schüler im achten oder neunten Jahre des Kursus heißt ein Primaner,³ im sechsten und siebenten Jahre, ein Sekundaner, u. s. w.⁴ In den höheren Klassen hat der Schüler mei-stens dreißig Stunden die Woche, also im Durchschnitt fünf Stunden täglich. Die Schule beginnt um 7 Uhr vormittags im Sommer, um 8 Uhr im Winter. Das Schuljahr beginnt im Frühling acht Tage nach Ostern und zerfällt in vier Termine. Das erste Vierteljahr dauert bis zum 24. Juni, das zweite bis Ende September, das dritte bis Weihnachten. Die Ferien betragen im ganzen zehn bis zwölf Wochen, also etwa 21 Prozent⁵ des Jahres. Außerdem gibt es mehrere besondere⁶ Feiertage, jetzt unter anderen den 2. September, den Jahrestag⁷ der großen Schlacht bei Sedan am 2. Sept. 1870.

COLLOQUY: NUMERALS

1 about

Wie viel Uhr¹ ist es? Ungefähr halb 9?²

Nein, es ist erst 20 Minuten nach 8. Aber weshalb fragen Sie?

Um drei Viertel³ 10 gehe ich nach dem Bahnhofe.

Erwarten Sie denn jemand?

Ja, ich erwarte meine beiden Schwestern mit⁴ dem nächsten Zuge.

Sie haben also zwei Schwestern? Ich wußte nur von der einen, der kleinen Berta.

Ja, ich habe noch eine.⁵ Sie heißt Marie, und ist etwa anderthalb Jahre jünger als ich.

Und wie alt sind Sie denn?

Ich bin beinahe zwanzig. Mein Geburtstag ist heute über acht⁶ Tage, am 29. Februar.

Sie haben also nur alle vier Jahre⁷ Geburtstag. Das ist doch sonderbar.

How late is it, I wonder? About a quarter to 10?

No, it is only half past 9. But why do you ask?

At ⁸ 10 I am going to the station. My sister Marie is coming home to-day.

Is it possible? Why, to-day is only the 20th.⁹ There are four ¹⁰ days yet before Christmas.

Yes, but my birthday is on ¹¹ the 22d.

Oh that's it ¹²—a family festival.¹³ How old are you, pray?

I am in my ¹⁴ twenty-first year.

Is your sister older or younger than you?

Marie is about two years and a half ¹⁵ younger than I.

THE PRONOUN

119. Classification of Pronouns. The pronouns are of six kinds: personal, possessive, demonstrative, relative, interrogative and indefinite.

THE PERSONAL PRONOUNS

120. The Forms. The personal pronouns are ich, I, of the first person; du, thou, of the second, and er, ſie, eſ, he, ſhe, it, of the third. With these are classed the reflexive ſich, and the intensive ſelbſt, which are indeclinable. The others are inflected as follows:

Singular

	Common Gender		Masc.	Fem.	Neut.
N.	ich	du	er	ſie	eſ
G.	meiner (mein)	deiner (dein)	ſeiner (ſein)	ihrer	ſeiner (ſein)(eſ)
D.	mir	dir	ihm	ihr	ihm
A.	miſch	diſch	ihn	ſie	eſ

Plural

	Common Gender		Common Gender
N.	wir	ihr	ſie
G.	unſer	euer	ihrer
D.	unſ	euch	iſnen
A.	unſ	euch	ſie

1. The forms in parenthesis are rare or poetical.

121. The Pronouns of Address. The pronouns of address now employed in the language of every-day life are du and Sie, both of them ordinarily to be translated by you. Du is used in speaking to a member of one's own family, to an intimate friend, a young child, one of the lower animals, or any inanimate object. It is also used in addressing God. Sie is used in addressing strangers, acquaintances and less intimate friends.

1. The form Sie is simply the pronoun ſie = they, used in polite address, and distinguished, in that use, by a capital; for which reason it takes its verb in the third person plural.

2. The foregoing statements do not describe the usage of the past, nor of poetry (see § 301).

122. Non-personal Uses in the Third Person. Altho called 'personal' pronouns, er and sie do not always refer, and es seldom refers, to a person.

1. Any masculine noun is regularly referred to by er, a feminine by sie and a neuter by es; e. g. der Rock paßt nicht, er ist zu eng, the coat does not fit, it is too tight; ich kenne die Stelle, sie findet sich bei Schiller, I know the passage, it is found in Schiller.

a. But such neuter nouns as Weib, woman, Fräulein, young lady, Mädchen, girl, are usually referred to, in accordance with the natural gender, by sie instead of es.

2. The pronouns er, sie, es are not used in the genitive, or after a preposition, in referring to an inanimate object, a demonstrative or a compound of da (before vowels dar) being substituted; e. g. das ist meine Sache, und Sie haben nichts damit (not mit ihr) zu tun, that is my affair and you have nothing to do with it; das Buch ist lehrreich, aber der Stil desselben (not der Stil von ihm, nor der Stil seiner) ist schlecht, the book is instructive, but the style of it is bad. In the last example it would also be correct to say sein Stil, or dessen Stil, its style.

a. The substitution of a demonstrative for a personal pronoun is quite common, even when the pronoun refers to persons or is not governed by a preposition.

3. The neuter es is often used (somewhat like English there, but more freely) to anticipate a logical subject which for any reason it is desired to have come after the verb; e. g. es sind ihrer drei, there are three of them; es irrt der Mensch, man errs.

a. For other special uses of es see § 303.

123. The Reflexive. A reflexive pronoun denotes the subject in an objective relation.

1. In the third person dative and accusative of all genders and both numbers, the reflexive is sich. It is to be translated by himself, herself, itself, themselves; as reflexive of Sie (see § 4, 2) by yourself; e. g. er haßt sich (acc.), he hates himself; er schmeichelt sich (dat.), he flatters himself; sie machen sich (Sie machen sich) große Mühe, they give themselves (you give yourself) great pains.

2. In the first and second persons, and in the genitive of the third, there is no separate reflexive, the proper form of the personal pronoun being used instead; as ich haße mich, I hate myself; ihr schmeichelt euch, you flatter yourselves.

3. In the plural sich is sometimes used with reciprocal force, and is then equivalent to each other, one another; e. g. sie waren ehemals Freunde, aber jetzt hassen sie sich, they were once friends, but now they hate each other (or one another). Uns and euch may be used in the same way.

124. The Intensive. The pronoun selbst. or selber, both forms indeclinable, may be used after any form of a personal pronoun, or after sich, for the sake of emphasis; e. g. er ist selbst Dichter, he is a poet himself; er betrügt sich selbst, he deceives HIMSELF.

READING LESSON: PERSONAL PRONOUNS

Teure Mutter! Dein¹ lieber Brief vom 23. letzten² Monats kam mir³ erst gestern⁴ zu Händen. Du bist in Unruhe wegen meiner Gesundheit, aber Du⁵ brauchst Dich⁶ nicht darüber zu ängstigen. Mir geht es gut, aber wie es scheint, ist das nicht der Fall bei Euch⁶ zu Hause. Der kleine Unfall der Schwester macht mir immer noch bange. War er denn wirklich so unbedeutend? Wie befindet sie sich jetzt? Bitte, schreibe⁷ mir Weiteres darüber.

Ich hatte selbst vor ein paar Tagen ein kleines Abenteuer. Am letzten Sonnabend nämlich saß⁸ ich ruhig in meinem Zimmer und las⁹ in einer Zeitung; es war um halb 10 vormittags. Auf einmal¹⁰ klopfte¹¹ es an die Türe; ich öffnete, und da stan-den zwei Polizisten vor mir. „Mein Herr,“ sagte¹² der eine derselben,¹³ „haben Sie Ihren Geldbeutel bei sich?“ „Gewiß,“ antwortete ich erstaunt und steckte die Hand in die Tasche. Aber der Beutel war nicht da.

 die Tasche, w. pocket.
 die Tür(e), w. door.
 u'nbedeu'tend, adj. insignificant.
 der U'nfall, s.² (pl. ä), accident.
 die U'nruhe, w. unrest, concern.

NOTES. — ¹ Dein, your, the possessive corresponding to Du, which the writer uses in addressing his mother. — ² letzten Monats, of last month. Notice the weak adjective, § 104, a; but one might also say des letzten Monats. — ³ kam mir . . . zu Händen, came into my hands, came to hand; mir takes the place of a possessive agreeing with Hän-
den. Kam is pret. of kommen. — ⁴ erst gestern, only yesterday. — ⁵ Du,

Dich; all pronouns of address are written with a capital in letters (see § 4, 2). Dich is object of ängstigen; Du brauchst Dich nicht zu ängstigen = you do not need to trouble yourself. — ⁶ bei Euch, with you, i. e. the family. — ⁷ schreibe, write; imperative, 2. pers. sing. — ⁸ sah ich, I was sitting (see Ex. V, n. 3). — ⁹ las, was reading; pret. of lesen. — ¹⁰ anf ei'mal, all at once. — ¹¹ klopfte es, there was a knock. — ¹² sagte, said; pret. of sagen. — ¹³ derselben, of them (§ 134, 1). — ¹⁴ of, an, with acc. — ¹⁵ only; see § 96. — ¹⁶ by, mit. — ¹⁷ taere is, es ist.

THE POSSESSIVES

125. Strong Forms. The possessives which correspond to the various personal pronouns are as follows:

ich : mein, my	es : sein, its du : dein, thy	wir : unser, our
er : sein, his	ihr : euer, your
sie : ihr, her	sie : ihr, their

Sie : Ihr, your

Sein also stands for the indefinite possessive one's.

1. The possessives, when they agree with a noun, are declined in the singular like the article ein, in the plural like any strong adjective; thus:

	Singular			Plural
	Masc.	Fem.	Neut.	M. F. N.
N.	mein	meine	mein	meine
G.	meines	meiner	meines	meiner
D.	meinem	meiner	meinem	meinen
A.	meinen	meine	mein	meine
N.	euer	eure	euer	eure
G.	eures	eurer	eures	eurer
D.	eurem	eurer	eurem	euren
A.	euren	eure	euer	eure

2. But when no noun follows (except sometimes in the predicate), the possessives, like sein and the numeral ein, take the ending er in the nominative singular masculine, and the ending es in the nominative and accusative singular neuter; e. g. sein Vater ist Kaufmann, meiner ist Arzt, his father is a merchant, mine is a physician.

126. Weak Forms. Any of the above mentioned possessives may be preceded by der, and take, then, the regular inflection of a weak adjective; e. g. seine Eltern sind reich, die meinen sind arm, his parents are rich, mine are poor.

1. Each of the possessives forms, further, a derivative stem in ig (unser and euer losing their e before the suffix), which is used only after der and has also the inflection of a weak adjective; thus instead of meiner and die meinen, in the last two examples, one might say der meinige and die meinigen. Neither of the weak forms of the possessive can be used with accompanying noun.

a. Observe that the forms described in the last three paragraphs correspond to the English mine, thine, hers, etc., which take the place of a noun limited by a possessive adjective. But mine, thine, etc. may be represented in the predicate by the uninflected mein, dein, etc.

2. Das Meine, das Meinige, etc. (as substantives) refer to property; die Meinen, die Meinigen, etc. to friends, relatives, partisans, or the like; e. g. er hat das Seine (das Seinige) verschwendet, he has squandered his property; ich grüße dich und die Deinen, I greet you and yours.

127. Possessive Compounds. Each of the possessive stems, amplified by the syllable et, enters into composition with the three prepositions halb (halber, halben), on behalf of, wegen, on account of, and um . . . willen, for the sake of, giving the forms meinettwegen, on my account, for aught I care, meinethalb, on my account, um meinethwillen, for my sake, etc.

1. Meinettwegen, on my account, deinethalben, on your behalf, etc. take the place of wegen meiner, on account of me, deiner halben, on behalf of you, etc. On the origin of these forms see § 306.

2. Each of the possessives, in the genitive singular masculine, strong form (meines, ihres, etc.), enters into composition with gleichen, from the adjective gleich, like, giving the forms meinesgleichen, the like of me, Ihresgleichen, the like of you, etc. These forms are invariable.

128. Congruence of the Possessive. The possessive sein corresponds, in the singular number, to masculine and neuter nouns, ihr to feminines; e. g. der Baum hat seine Blätter verloren, the tree has lost its leaves; selbst die Freiheit hat ihre Gefahren, even freedom has its dangers.

1. But with neuter nouns whose natural gender is feminine the possessive is apt to be ihr; e. g. das Mädchen hat ihre Mutter verloren, the girl has lost her mother.

2. With a neuter collective noun the possessive is regularly sein, tho English may require their; e. g. das Volk bestand auf seine Rechte, the people insisted upon their rights.

READING LESSON: PERSONAL AND POSSESSIVE PRONOUNS

„Ist dies Ihr Eigentum?“ fragte er nun, und damit legte er einen Beutel vor mir¹ auf den Tisch. „Der Beutel ist allerdings mein,“ antwortete ich, „aber wie in aller Welt kommt er in Ihre Hände?“ „Das ist unsere Sache,“ antwortete er. „Aber ist es² denn wirklich der Ihrige? Befehen Sie ihn genau.“ Darauf nahm ich den Beutel in die Hand; es war doch³ nicht meiner, nur dem meinigen sehr ähnlich. Jetzt erklärte ich ihnen meinen Irrtum. Sie sahen⁴ sich verschmigt in die Augen und redeten leise ein paar Worte mit einander. Darauf sagte der ältere der beiden Männer zu mir: „Wo waren Sie denn gestern abend, und wie viel Geld hatten Sie bei sich?“ Ich nannte ihm den Ort, einen gewissen Konzertgarten, und die Summe von 75 Mark.⁵ „Das stimmt genau,“ sagte jetzt der jüngere zu seinem Kameraden. „Nun,“ sagte der andere zu mir: „Ist dies vielleicht der Ihrige?“ Damit zog er einen anderen Beutel aus der Tasche. Diesmal war es wirklich der meinige; auch stimmte der Inhalt. Die Geschichte⁶ mit dem falschen Beutel war nur eine Prüfung meiner Redlichkeit.

EXERCISE 25 a

REMARK. — Translate ‘you’ by bu, Sie or ihr, as you please, but take care that pronoun and possessive be congruous; that is, do not, in the same sentence, associate dein with Sie, Ihr with bu, or the like.

1. I do it for your sake. 2. How goes it with you and yours? 3. Your German is much better than mine. 4. Our prices are much lower than his. 5. My house is not far from hers. 6. That is my affair, not yours. 7. His last work is the best. 8. Your new friend is an old acquaintance of mine. 9. We find our highest happiness in quiet daily work. 10. The girl is the picture of her mother. 11. My little garden is now my greatest delight. 12. I think your old room was better than your new (one). 13. They were friends their whole life long. 14. Here are tickets for you and your family.

VOCABULARY

[tow].

NOTES. — ¹vor mir auf den Tisch; after legen, setzen and other verbs of placing, auf takes the acc. on account of the motion implied. Vor mir, dat. as answering the question whereabouts upon the table. — ²es; notice the gender; Beutel is masc., but es is used without regard to the gender of the predicate der Ihrige, to denote identity. — ³es war doch nicht meiner, it was not mine after all. The predicate possessive is apt to be declined when the noun to which it refers is not expressed in the same sentence. — ⁴sahen sich . . . in die Augen, looked in each other's eyes; sahen, pret. of sehen; sich, dat. in reciprocal sense, § 123, 3. — ⁵Mark, marks; the singular form is always used after a numeral. The mark is the German unit of currency = $0.25. — ⁶Geschichte mit, affair of. — ⁷Worte means words in connected discourse; Wörter, words without connection.

EXERCISE 26

READING LESSON: CONGRUENCE OF PERSONAL, POSSESSIVE AND REFLEXIVE PRONOUNS

NOTE.—The same matter is given below in three different forms: (a) as it would appear if written, say, by a teacher to one or more pupils who had just left school; (b) as it would be written by a father to his son; (c) as it would be written by a father to his two sons.

Ich sage Ihnen aufrichtig, Sie haben eine Zeit schwerer Prüfung vor sich; darum hüten Sie sich vor¹ falschen Schritten. Ihre Eltern, Ihre Lehrer, erwarten viel von Ihnen; auf Ihnen und auf Ihrem Glücke ruhen ihre Hoffnungen. Aber Sie kennen Ihre Pflicht; ich brauche sie Ihnen nicht zu erklären. Vergeuden Sie nicht Ihre Zeit; verlassen Sie sich so viel als möglich² auf Ihre eigne Kraft, auf Ihren eignen Fleiß. Vor allen Dingen seien Sie³ sich selber treu.

Ich sage Dir aufrichtig, Du hast eine Zeit schwerer Prüfung vor Dir; darum hüte⁴ Dich vor falschen Schritten. Deine Eltern, Deine Lehrer, erwarten viel von Dir; auf Dir und auf Deinem Glücke ruhen ihre Hoffnungen. Aber Du kennst Deine Pflicht; ich brauche sie Dir nicht zu erklären. Vergeude⁴ nicht Deine Zeit; verlasse⁴ Dich so viel als möglich auf Deine eigne Kraft, auf Deinen eignen Fleiß. Vor allen Dingen sei⁴ Dir selber treu.

Ich sage Euch aufrichtig, Ihr habt eine Zeit schwerer Prüfung vor Euch; darum hütet⁶ Euch vor falschen Schritten. Eure Eltern, Eure Lehrer, erwarten viel von Euch; auf Euch und auf Euren Glücke ruhen ihre Hoffnungen. Aber Ihr kennt Eure Pflicht; ich brauche sie Euch nicht zu erklären. Vergeudet⁶ nicht Eure Zeit; verlaßt⁶ Euch so viel als möglich auf Eure eigne Kraft, auf Euren eignen Fleiß. Vor allen Dingen seid⁶ Euch selber treu.

REMARK. — Write this exercise three times for the three cases that 'you' means (a) a near relative or an intimate friend; (b) two intimate friends, and (c) one or more acquaintances.

1. Where are you? 2. How do you do?⁶ 3. What have you in your hand? 4. How goes it with you? 5. I bring you⁷ good news. 6. I know you and I rely upon you. 7. I need you and you need me. 8. Have you any⁸ money by you? 9. Luckily for you he does not see you. 10. You are still young; you have yet the best part of life before you.

EXERCISE 27

COLLOQUY: PERSONAL PRONOUNS

1

Guten Abend, Herr Müller. Wie befinden Sie sich heute abend?

Ich selbst bin gesund, aber es geht nicht gut bei mir zu Hause.

Das tut mir leid. Es ist doch keines der Kinder wieder krank?

Ja, leider¹; die Kleine hat wieder Kopfschmerz — dazu ein wenig Fieber.

Das ist sonderbar. Geben Sie ihr regelmäßig die Arznei?

Gewiß, aber es hilft nichts mehr. Ich bitte Sie, sofort zu uns zu kommen.

Gleich diesen Augenblick meinettwegen. Bitte, setzen Sie sich. In zwei Minuten bin ich bereit.

Ich danke Ihnen sehr. Sie machen sich viel Mühe um unsertwillen.

Bitte, sprechen Sie nicht davon. Ich tue nur meine Pflicht. Wozu bin ich denn Arzt?

Good evening, doctor. How do you do this evening?

Very well, thank you. How goes it at your house?

Unfortunately the little girl is sick again.²

Is it possible? What is the matter with her this time?

Oh, she has the old headache again,² and withal a little fever.

I must see³ her again. Wait a moment. I shall be⁴ ready directly.

I thank you very much, but you do not need⁵ to hurry on my account.

NOTES. — ¹leider, unfortunately, alas; shortened from was noch leider ist, what is still more disagreeable. — ²again, wieder, preceding krank. — ³see her again, sie wieder sehen. — ⁴I shall be . . . directly, ich bin gleich . . . — ⁵you do not need to hurry, Sie brauchen sich nicht . . . zu beeilen.

THE DEMONSTRATIVES

129. The Forms. The common demonstrative pronouns are dies, this, jen-, that, and der, that. To these are to be added the so-called determinatives, derjenige, that, derselbe, the same, and solch, such. The first three are declined as follows:

	Singular			Plural
	Masc.	Fem.	Neut.	M. F. N.
N.	dieser	diese	dieses, dies	diese
G.	dieses	dieser	dieses	dieser
D.	diesem	dieser	diesem	diesen
A.	diesen	diese	dieses, dies	diese
N.	jener	jene	jenes	jene
G.	jenes	jener	jenes	jener
D.	jenem	jener	jenem	jenen
A.	jenen	jene	jenes	jene
N.	der	die	das	die
G.	dessen	deren	dessen	deren, derer
	(des)	(der)	(des)	(der)
D.	dem	der	dem	denen (den)
A.	den	die	das	die

1. All the demonstratives can be used either substantively or adjectively. When der is used adjectively it is inflected precisely like the article der, which is nothing but a demonstrative pronoun weakened in force by loss of its accent. Hence the short forms in parenthesis.

130. Use of dieß and jen-. Dieß, cognate with this, denotes proximity, while jen-, cognate with yon, denotes remoteness; e. g. jener Berg (dort) ist viel höher als dieser (hier), that mountain (yonder) is much higher than this one (here); in diesem Leben, in this life (i. e. the life that now is); in jener Welt, in that world (i. e. the world to come).

1. Referring to two objects lately mentioned, dieß means the latter and jen- the former.

2. The short form dieß is especially common as absolute subject, being used without reference to the gender or number of a predicate noun; e. g. dieß ist meine Schwester, this is my sister; dieß sind Freunde von mir, these are friends of mine.

131. Use of der. Der denotes neither proximity nor remoteness, but simple emphasis. It is distinguished in speech by its accent, and in print, if necessary, by spaced type; e. g. der Mensch ist sterblich; in der Hinsicht gleicht er dem Tiere, man is mortal; in THAT respect he is like the brute.

1. The form daß, like dieß, is often used without reference to the gender or number of a predicate noun; e. g. daß ist meine Schwester, that is my sister; daß sind Freunde von mir, those are friends of mine. Note that the verb agrees in number with the predicate noun.

2. Der often takes the place of an emphatic personal pronoun; e. g. der ist kein Dichter, HE is no poet.

132. Demonstrative Compounds. For a case-form of der, used alone in the dative or accusative after a preposition, and not referring to a living object, it is usual to substitute a compound of da; e. g. davon weiß ich nichts, of that I know nothing.

a. In like manner a compound of hier may be substituted for a case-form of dies under similar circumstances; e. g. hierin liegt der Unterschied, in this lies the difference.

1. The three prepositions wegen, halb and um . . . willen enter into composition with beß, not with da, giving the forms beßhalb, beßwegen, rarely beßwillen, all meaning on that account.

2. Deßgleichen and dergleichen are indeclinable pronominal adjectives meaning such like, the like of that.

133. De'rje'nige. The determinative pronoun derjenige inflects both parts thruout, the der being declined like the article der, the stem jenig like a weak adjective; thus:

	Singular			Plural
	Masc.	Fem.	Neut.	M. F. N.
N.	derjenige	diejenige	daßjenige	diejenigen
G.	beßjenigen	derjenigen, etc.		derjenigen, etc.

1. Derjenige is generally followed by a relative pronoun in connection with which it means he (who), the one (who), that (which).

134. Derse'lbe. The inflection of derselbe is similar to that of derjenige; thus:

	Singular			Plural
	Masc.	Fem.	Neut.	M. F. N.
N.	derselbe	dieſelbe	daßſelbe	dieſelben
G.	beßſelben	derſelben, etc.		derſelben, etc.

1. Derselbe means the same, but it is very often used where English employs a personal pronoun (cf. § 122, 2).

135. Solch. Solch, such, has regular adjective inflection, but may also stand uninflected, especially before an adjective; e. g. solch schönes Wetter, or solches schöne Wetter, such fine weather.

1. Solch may precede or follow ein; if it precedes, it is uninflected; if it follows, inflected; thus, such a man is either solch ein Mann or ein solcher Mann.

a. Instead of solch ein, so ein is common.

EXERCISE 28

COLLOQUY: DEMONSTRATIVE PRONOUNS

Bitte, setzen Sie sich. Nehmen Sie diesen Stuhl am Ofen.
Behalten Sie den für sich. Ich hole¹ mir jenen am Fenster.
Nun, wie geht's Ihnen seit jenem Abend im Theater?

Im ganzen recht gut; aber dieses ewige Studieren² macht mir bisweilen Kopfschmerz.

Das ist schade; aber Sie lernen dabei³ doch dies und das?

O, natürlich. Nur ist es immer dieselbe Geschichte. Ich denke oft an jene Zeit vor drei Monaten.

Ja, das waren schöne Tage. — Was hören Sie denn von jenem alten Herrn, dem⁴ mit der hübschen Tochter?

Der wohnt nicht mehr in jener Gegend; sein Sohn und dessen⁵ Frau machten ihm das Leben zu sauer.

Ja, die⁶ waren mir auch unerträglich. Mit solchen Leuten ist ein freundliches Verhältnis unmöglich.

Please take a seat.⁷ That⁸ chair is not comfortable — take this one.

That one⁹ by the window is better still.¹⁰ I will get that.¹¹

Well, how do you find yourself since that week in the country? ¹²

Oh, don't speak of that. The contrast between that time and this gives me the headache.

Poor fellow! For my part ¹³ I find this life here very pleasant.

Of course, ¹⁴ — these tedious books. They are your best friends.

To be sure; a good book is always the same, not this ¹⁵ to-day and that to-morrow, like human beings. ¹⁶

Very fine; where did you get ¹⁷ that saying?

EXERCISE 28a

1. This is the shortest way. 2. Do you see that high tower? 3. Death ¹⁸ is the end of this life; in that life there is no ¹⁹ death. 4. These hot summer-days are very unpleasant. 5. Homer and Vergil, those great poets of antiquity, ¹⁸ are still the delight of mankind. ¹⁸ 6. Perhaps he is a friend of yours; in that case I have nothing to say. 7. Those are the towers of the royal castle. 8. The girl is her mother's child; she has the same head, the same eyes, the same voice. 9. This building is the museum; that one yonder the new theater. 10. Such autumn days as these are extremely rare in this part of the world. 11. From 10 to 11 a. m. ²⁰ I have a language-lesson; after that I take a walk. 12. He is a good man, but not on that account a great poet.

VOCABULARY

behalten, v. keep [behold].

bequem, adj. comfortable.

biswei'len, adv. at times.

ewig, adv. everlasting [aye-].

die Gegend, w. region.

der Gegenßatz, s. ² (pl. ä), contrast.

holen, v. fetch; pret. holte.

hören, v. hear.

lernen, v. learn.

oft, adv. often, oft.

recht, adv. right, very.

sauer, adj. bitter, sour.

der Schade, m. (pl. Schäden), injury, loss; daß ißt schade, that is a pity [scathe].

seit, prep. (dat.) since.

der Spruch, s. ² (pl. ii) saying.	unmöglich, adj. impossible.
studie'ren, v. study.	das Verhältniß, s. ² relation.
un'erträ'glich, adj. intolerable.	wo'her, adv. whence.

NOTES. — ¹ich hole, I will get; the present tense denoting a present purpose. — ²Studieren, a verbal noun, or infinitive used as a noun; all such are neuter. — ³dabei, incidentally, in connection with that. Never translate dabei by thereby, which is daburch. — ⁴dem, the one. — ⁵dessen Frau, the latter's wife, the son's wife; seine Frau, would mean his own wife. — ⁶die, they, those people. — ⁷take a seat, nehmen Sie Platz. — ⁸that, der. — ⁹that one, jener. — ¹⁰better still, noch besser. — ¹¹that, den. — ¹²in the country; see Ex. 9, n. 4. — ¹³for my part; see Ex. 21 n. 3. — ¹⁴of course, natürlich. — ¹⁵this to-day, heute dies. — ¹⁶like human beings, wie die Menschen. — ¹⁷where did you get, woher haben Sie. — ¹⁸Use the def. art. — ¹⁹there is no, gibt es keinen. — ²⁰a. m., vor-mittags.

THE RELATIVES

136. The Forms. The ordinary relative pronouns are der and welcher, both meaning who, which, that. They are declined as follows:

	Singular			Plural
	Masc.	Fem.	Neut.	M. F. N.
N.	der	die	das	die
G.	dessen	deren	dessen	deren
D.	dem	der	dem	denen
A.	den	die	das	die
N.	welcher	welche	welches	welche
G.	welches	welcher	welches	welcher
D.	welchem	welcher	welchem	welchen
A.	welchen	welche	welches	welche

1. The interrogative pronouns wer, who, and was, what. (for their inflection see § 143), are also used as relatives, = he who, whoever, that which, whatever.

137. The Relative Clause. In a relative clause the inflected verb comes last. The relative pronoun itself comes first (except when it is governed by a preposition) and agrees with its antecedent in gender and number; e. g. wehe der Mutter, deren Kind undankbar ist, alas for the mother whose child is ungrateful; er ist ein Knabe, von dem ich nur Gutes gehört habe, he is a boy of whom I have heard only good reports.

1. The relative cannot be omitted, as it so often is in English; e. g. the man I mean is der Mann, den ich meine; the house I live in, das Haus, in welchem (or worin) ich wohne.

2. If the antecedent of a relative is a personal pronoun of the first or second person, such pronoun is usually repeated after the relative, in which case the verb takes the person of the antecedent; e. g. ich, der ich dein Freund bin, I who am your friend; du, der du mich kennst, you who know me. But if the personal pronoun is not repeated the verb stands in the third person; e. g. du, der mich kennt, you who know me.

138. Use of der and welch. Either relative may refer to a person or to a thing. Welch, but not der, may be used as an adjective in agreement with a noun; e. g. er ist ein Mann, der (or welcher) stets die Wahrheit spricht, welcher (never der) Eigenschaft er sein Glück verdankt, he is a man who always speaks the truth, to which trait he owes his success.

1. In the genitive the forms of der are required, except in the adjectival use of welch just explained; elsewhere there is a free choice between der and welch, subject only to considerations of style and euphony.

139. Substitutes for the Relative. For the dative or accusative of der or welch, depending upon a preposition and not referring to a living object, it is usual to substitute a compound of the preposition with the adverb wo, where (before vowels wor), e. g. das ist der Punkt, worauf ich bestehe, that is the point I insist upon (the point whereupon I insist).

1. For the genitive of a relative depending on one of the prepositions halb or wegen, and not referring to persons, is substituted one of the compounds weßhalb, or weßwegen; e. g. ich war krank, weßhalb ich zu Hause bleiben mußte, I was sick, for which reason I had to remain at home.

2. A simple adverb may take the place of a relative; e. g. der Ort, wo ich wohne, the place where (= in which) I live; die Art, wie er lebt, the way (in which) he lives.

140. Use of wer as Relative. Wer as relative can have no antecedent, being itself both antecedent and relative; e. g. wer gesund ist (never der, wer gesund ist), braucht keinen Arzt, he who is well does not need a physician.

1. But when wer has gone before, its implied antecedent may be expressed, in the form of a demonstrative, for emphasis; e. g. wer gesund ist, der braucht keinen Arzt.

2. Followed by auch, nur or immer (other words may or may not intervene), wer acquires the force of an indefinite relative = whoever; e. g. sie ist jedenfalls hübsch, wer sie auch sein mag, she is pretty at any rate, whoever she may be.

141. Use of was as Relative. The use of the neuter was as indefinite relative = what, whatever, that which, the thing which, etc. runs nearly parallel to that of the masculine-feminine wer; e. g. was ich sehe, (daß) weiß ich, what I see, (that) I know; es ist falsch, was man auch sagen mag, it is false, whatever they may say.

a. So also when the antecedent is a sentence; e. g. es gelang mir nicht, was mich sehr ärgerte, I did not succeed, which vexed me greatly.

1. This was is often best translated by so far as; e. g. es mich betrifft, so far as concerns me.

2. Was is very often used as relative after a neuter noun or substantive adjective, and when so used it implies that the antecedent is taken in a general or indefinite sense. After a substantive adjective in the superlative degree was is the regular relative; e. g. nicht alles, was glänzt, ist Gold, not all that glitters is gold; das ist es, was mich ärgert, that is what vexes me; es ist das beste, was ich tun kann, it is the best I can do; das Große, was (better das) ich an ihm bewundere, the great qualities that I admire in him; was ist das, das (not was) Sie in der Hand haben? what is that that you have in your hand?

142. Rule of Order III: The Dependent Order. In a dependent sentence the verb comes at the end; e. g. wissen Sie, ob der Herr Doctor zu Hause ist? do you know whether the doctor is at home? erinnern Sie sich, wo Sie gestern zu dieser Zeit waren? do you remember where you were yesterday at this time?

a. The case in which 'the verb' is in a compound tense, and so consists of more than one word, will be provided for further on.

1. This rule covers all sentences introduced by a subordinating conjunction, a relative pronoun or particle, or an indirect interrogative.

a. Some of the most common subordinating conjunctions are als, as, when; da, as, since; damit, so that; daß, that; indem, while; ob, whether; weil, because; wenn, if; wie, how, as; wo, where. For a fuller list see § 381.

2. Subordinate sentences of every kind are usually set off by a comma.

EXERCISE 29

READING LESSON: RELATIVE PRONOUNS

Lieber Herr Müller! Ihr freundlicher Brief, in dem Sie mir so viel Interessantes über die Schule erzählen, und der nun leider schon zwei Wochen unbeantwortet liegt,¹ war mir höchst willkommen. Es freut mich sehr, daß die guten Freunde, mit denen ich lange Zeit so glücklich lebte, noch immer an mich denken. Es gibt ein Sprichwort, welches lautet: „Aus den Augen, aus dem Sinn“; aber, was mich betrifft, so² finde ich hier unter lauter Fremden, daß ich jetzt erst³ meine alten Freunde richtig schätze.

Was Sie von dem jungen Fritz Moser schreiben, dessen Streiche Ihnen so viel Mühe machen, ist mir ganz begreiflich. Der Junge war von Kind auf⁴ ein Taugenichts, der nur an dumme Streiche⁵ dachte.⁶ Ich weiß, daß er nicht redlich ist, und wer keinen Charakter hat, dem⁷ ist nun nicht zu helfen. Alles, was der Lehrer für einen solchen Schüler tut, ist verlorene Mühe. Für den Rat, den Sie mir in Bezug auf meine Studien geben, danke ich Ihnen sehr. Da Sie mich so lange kennen, wissen Sie am besten, wozu⁸ ich fähig bin, und welche⁹ Fehler ich zu vermeiden habe.

EXERCISE 29 a

1. He is a man who knows⁹ everything. 2. The building that you see is a museum. 3. That is the lady who has the pretty daughters. 4. I do not know¹⁰ the book of which you speak. 5. There are¹¹ authors who write too much and think too little. 6. That part of Dresden which lies on the left bank of the river is called the Old-Town. 7. That is not the man I mean. 8. Here one finds all that makes life interesting. 9. That is all I know⁹ of the affair. 10. There is¹¹ no poet whose life is more interesting. 11. Whoever has money has friends. 12. I give you the best I have. 13. The work of which you speak is very expensive. 14. Do you know¹⁰ the book in which the saying is found?¹²

VOCABULARY

begreiflich, adj. comprehensible.	der Bezug, s. ² (pl. ü), reference, regard.
betreffen, v. concern; betrifft, concerns.	der Charakter (pl. =te're), character.

da, sub. conj. as, since.

daß, sub. conj. that.

dumm, adj. stupid [dumb].

verloren, ppl. lost [forlorn].

vermeiden, v. avoid.

NOTES. —¹ Liegt, has lain, has been lying (Ex. 7, n. 1). —² so finde ich, I find. When a subordinate sentence has gone before, the principal sentence must stand in the inverted order, and so is often put before the principal verb to make the inversion easier. Such a so should not be translated. —³ jetzt erst, lit. now first; but I value now first = I just begin to value. —⁴ von Kind auf, from a child up; i. e. from childhood. —⁵ dumme Streiche, mischief. —⁶ dachte, thought, was thinking; pret. of denken. —⁷ dem ist nicht zu helfen, HE (i. e. such a person) is not to be helped. It is necessary to use dem here because helfen governs the dat. One could not say wer nicht redlich ist, ist nicht zu helfen. —⁸ wozu, welche; these are indirect interrogatives, and as such require the dependent order. The direct form would be: Wozu bin ich fähig? Welche Fehler habe ich zu vermeiden. —⁹ knows, know, wissen. —¹⁰ know, kennen. —¹¹ there are, there is, es gibt. —¹² is found, sich findet.

THE INTERROGATIVES

143. The Forms. The interrogative pronouns are wer, who, was, what, welcher, which, what, and was für (ein), what sort of (a), what.

1. The inflection of wer and was, which do not vary for number, is as follows :

N.	wer	was
G.	wessen, wes	wessen, wes
D.	wem	—
A.	wen	was

a. The short form was is little used except in the compounds weßhalb and weßwegen, why. The missing dative of was is supplied by the compounds of wo (§ 144, 1).

2. Welch is inflected like the relative welch, but is often uninflected before ein or an adjective, especially in exclamatory phrases; e. g. welch (ein) schönes Bild! what a pretty picture!

3. In was für ein the was does not vary, but ein is inflected (in the singular) like the article ein.

144. Use of wer and welch. Wer is used of persons only, was of things only, and welch of either persons or things. Wer and was are used without a noun, welch either with or without; e. g. wer ist jener Mann? who is that man? welches Buch meinen Sie? what (which) book do you mean?

1. For the dative and accusative of was, dependent on a preposition, it is usual to substitute a compound of wo; e. g. wozu der Lärm? why the fuss? woran arbeiten Sie? what are you working at?

145. Use of was für (ein). In this pronoun the für is without prepositional force, and ein takes the case required by the syntax of the sentence. Was may be separated by one or more words from für ein; e. g. was für ein Baum ist das, or was ist das für ein Baum? what kind of a tree is that? was für einen Lehrer haben Sie? what kind of a teacher have you?

1. In exclamatory phrases was für (ein) is often best translated by what; e. g. was für Unsinn! what nonsense!

COLLOQUY: INTERROGATIVE PRONOUNS

Wer ist das auf dem Bilde an der Wand?

Das ist Bismarck. Wozu haben Sie denn Ihre Augen?

Ja, die große Photographie ; wer wüßte¹ das nicht ! Ich meine nicht die.

Nun, welches Bild meinen Sie denn ?

Ich meine das kleine Ding, welches unter der Photographie hängt.

Ach so ! Nun, wofür halten Sie das ? Betrachten Sie es genau.

Ich sehe, es ist eine Federzeichnung. Von wem haben Sie sie ?

Von meinem Freunde Ludwig. Raten Sie nun einmal, wer die beiden Personen darauf sind.

Dies ist offenbar Ludwig ; aber ich weiß nicht, wer der andere ist.

Was Sie doch sagen !² Nun, der andere bin³ ich selbst.

Sie ? Wer das glauben könnte !⁴ Woher haben Sie denn den sonderbaren Ausdruck ? Und was für einen Hut tragen Sie ?

Das ist nur ein Spaß Ludwigs ; wer ihn kennt, versteht das ohne Weiteres.

What sort of a picture is that ?

What picture are you talking about ?⁵ The large photograph ?⁶

Who would not know⁷ a photograph of Bismarck ? I mean the little picture below.⁸

Oh, that's it. That is a pen-drawing. Guess from whom I have it.

I do not know — perhaps from your friend Ludwig.

Right ; now guess whom the drawing represents.

This here is certainly Ludwig himself, but who in all the world⁹ is the other ?

So¹⁰ you do not know¹¹ him. Well, the other is I myself.

But what an expression ! And what sort of a thing is that you have on your head ?

EXERCISE 30a

1. Who goes there? 2. Who is she? 3. Who are they? 4. What have you in your hand? 5. Of whom are you speaking? 6. Of what are you speaking? 7. Whom do you mean? 8. What new building is that that I see yonder? 9. Do you know¹² at what time¹³ the performance begins? 10. In what does the difference consist? 11. I do not know¹² in what the difference consists. 12. What sort of a teacher have you? 13. Every one knows¹² what sort of a man he is. 14. Which drama of Schiller do you like best?

THE INDEFINITE PRONOUNS AND PRONOMINAL ADJECTIVES

146. All. All, all, has regular adjective inflection, but is sometimes left uninflected, especially before der or a possessive; e. g. alle guten Dinge, all good things; alles frische Wasser, all fresh water; all mein Glück, all my happiness.

1. The form alle occurs after certain prepositions; e. g. trotz alledem, in spite of all that.

2. The neuter alles, used alone, means everything.

147. Ander. Ander, other, has regular adjective inflection.

1. The English another, = one more, is expressed not by ander, but by noch ein; e. g. ich wünsche noch ein Billet, I want another ticket (ein anderes would mean a different one).

148. Beide. Beide, both, has regular adjective inflection, and is apt to take the place of zwei after a declined word; e. g. die beiden Parteien, the two parties; meine beiden Schwestern, my two sisters.

1. In general beide is used only in the plural, but the neuter singular beides occurs. Both . . . and is usually expressed by sowohl . . . als; e. g. both the king and the people, sowohl der König als das Volk.

149. Ein-. The use of ein, one, as pronoun has already been referred to (§ 116, 1).

1. In the oblique cases ein takes the place of man, which is indeclinable; e. g. es gefällt einem nicht, it does not please one.

150. Einig-, etlich-. These words both mean some and have regular adjective inflection. The singular is little used, being replaced by etwas. Of the two words einig is the one more commonly used.

151. Etwas. Etwas, something, somewhat, some, is indeclinable and is used either with or without a noun. It is the ordinary equivalent of English some, any, before a singular noun of any gender and in any case; e. g.

nehmen Sie etwas Brod, take some bread ; mit etwas Furcht = mit einiger Furcht, with some fear.

1. so etwas is equivalent to some (any) such thing.

152. Irgeud. This is an indeclinable word which is rarely used alone, but is placed before numerous words to give the sense of English some, any ; e. g. irgeud einer or irgeud jemand, some one, any one ; irgeud etwas, anything, something ; irgendwo, anywhere, etc.

153. Jed-, jeglich-, jedermann. Jed- and jeglich- mean each, every, and have full adjective inflection. Either may be preceded by ein. Jedermann, every one, can not be used with a noun and has no inflection except a genitive in s ; e. g. jeder (ein jeder, jeder Mensch, jedermann) hat seine guten Eigenschaften, every one has his good qualities.

154. Jemand. Jemand, some one, is never used with a noun and has no inflection except a genitive in s, rarely a dative in em or an accusative in en.

155. Rein. Rein is the negative of ein and is inflected in the same way, except that it has a plural. It takes the place of English no, none, not a, not any ; e. g. du bittest um Geld, aber ich habe keines, you ask for money, but I haven't any ; das ist kein Apfelbaum, that is not an apple-tree.

156. Man. Man is a wholly indefinite and indeclinable pronoun meaning one, they, people. Often it is best rendered by the passive voice or by a phrase with there ; e. g. man sagt, it is said ; man klopf, there is a knock.

1. The oblique cases of man are replaced by sein.

157. Manch. Manch, many, some, in the singular many a, may be inflected regularly (which is the rule if no adjective follows), or it may be uninflected; e. g. mancher Mann, many a man; manch guter Mann or mancher gute Mann, many a good man.

158. Mehr, mehrer-. Mehr, more, is indeclinable; thus mehr Licht, more light; nichts mehr davon, no more of that. The comparative mehrer- is used with full inflection in the sense of several; e. g. mit mehreren Freunden, with several friends.

159. Nichts. Nichts, nothing, is the negative to etwas and is indeclinable.

160. Niemand. Niemand, no one, is the negative to jemand and has the same inflection. It can not be used with a noun.

161. Viel. Viel, much, in the plural many, is capable of full inflection, but is often left uninflected, especially in the singular when not preceded by der or a possessive; e. g. er hat viel Verstand, he has much sense; das ist zu viel, that is too much; das Glück vieler Menschen, the happiness of many men; er hat vieles erlebt, he has experienced much.

162. Was, was, wer. All of the interrogatives may be used as indefinites, having the meaning of some, something, some one, anything, any one, etc. In this sense they are apt to be accompanied by irgend; e. g. ich weiß was Neues, I know something new; nehmen Sie noch etwas Brod (einige Kirschchen), take some more bread (some cherries); ich danke, ich habe noch welches (welche), thank you, I have some still.

163. Wenig. Wenig, little, in the plural few, is capable of full inflection, but is often uninflected, especially in the singular; e. g. ich habe wenig Hoffnung, I have little hope; mit wenig Verstand, with little sense; er leistet mit wenigem viel, he does much with little.

COLLOQUY: INDEFINITE PRONOUNS

Wünschen Sie etwas, mein Herr?

Ja, ich wünsche ein gutes Buch als Weihnachtsgeschenk für eine junge Freundin. Haben Sie so etwas?

Gewiß; da sind, zum Beispiel, einige neue¹ Romane. Jedes Mädchen liest gern einen guten Roman.

Hier ist nun jedenfalls² was Hübsches; aber es ist wohl ein wenig teuer, nicht wahr?

Nicht so sehr; es kostet acht Mark. Das Buch ist gerade jetzt in der Mode; jedermann liest es und lobt es.

Ja, aber mancher schlechte Roman findet heutzutage Leser, die ihn loben. Wer ist denn der Verfasser?

Das weiß man nicht. Es ist das Werk irgend eines jungen Schriftstellers, welcher unter falschem Namen schreibt.

Was sagt man von der sittlichen Tendenz des Buches?

Nach allem, was ich höre, ist es gesund in jeder Hinsicht. Niemand sagt etwas dagegen.

Ich habe noch eine Frage. Ist es bei alledem³ auch interessant? Viele gesunden Bücher sind langweilig.

Nun, dieser ist jedenfalls nichts weniger als⁴ langweilig. Sie finden nichts Interessanteres in unsrem Laden.

Good morning, sir. Do you wish something in the way of⁵ books?

Yes, if⁶ you have something right good.⁷ What is there that is new?

Do you wish something light — some⁸ novel, for example?

Perhaps, only it must be⁹ interesting. Please show me some new novels.

There you have several right before you.¹⁰ And there are more over yonder.

Here now is something nice, but I presume it costs too much.

That book is a little dear, to be sure, — on account of the many pictures in it. It costs ten marks.

The price *is*¹¹ pretty high, isn't it? Is it known who the author is?

No, but he writes well,¹² whoever he may be.¹³ Every one praises the book.

Well, in view of all that¹⁴ you say, perhaps the price is¹⁵ not too high, after all.¹⁶

Certainly not; just ask¹⁷ any one who understands such things.

EXERCISE 31 a

1. All my money is lost. 2. All good friends are welcome. 3. One of the two brothers is a physician; the other is an author. 4. Some parts of the book are very interesting, others are intolerable. 5. I need some money; I have none by me. 6. In a few days I am going to Leipzig. 7. Every one has his own taste in these matters. 8. No one is a better friend of the poor. 9. Does any one know how much the thing costs? 10. I need some old newspapers; have you any? 11. It costs little money, but much trouble. 12. Many a poor man is happier than his rich neighbor. 13. One finds in the book little (that is) new, yet much (that is) interesting. 14. Every day¹⁸ I visit some¹⁹ museum or picture-gallery.

differ in gender.

THE VERB

164. Voice. The active voice represents the subject as acting, the passive as acted upon; i. e. the object of the active verb becomes the subject of the passive.

1. Only 'transitive' verbs, i. e. those which govern the accusative, can be used in the passive with a definite subject, but intransitive verbs admit of an impersonal passive.

165. Mode. Of the four modes the indicative and imperative correspond closely to the English indicative and imperative. The subjunctive is used to express doubt or uncertainty (especially in indirect questions and statements), or with an imperative sense translatable by let, or with a potential sense translatable by would or should. The conditional is always translatable by would or should.

166. The Infinitive. The infinitive is not a mode of the verb, but rather a verbal noun. It is used both with and without zu, and corresponds partly to the English infinitive with and without to, and partly to the verbal in -ing.

167. The Participle. The present participle ends in end and corresponds to the English present participle in

ing. The perfect participle ends always in t or in n, and is further characterized by the prefix ge.

1. But the prefix ge is omitted with verbs in ieren, with inseparable compounds, and in some other cases to be noted further on.

168. Tense. The present and preterit, as consisting of one word, are called 'simple tenses'; the perfect, pluperfect, future and future perfect are formed by means of auxiliaries, and are called 'compound tenses.'

1. The auxiliary of the perfect and pluperfect, which is combined with the perfect participle, is either haben, have, or sein, be. All transitive verbs, and many that are intransitive, are conjugated with haben. Intransitive verbs denoting motion, and a few that do not denote motion, are conjugated with sein. See § 323.

2. The auxiliary of the future and future perfect, which combines with the infinitive, is werden, become.

3. The conditional mode has but two tenses, a present and a perfect, the auxiliary being the preterit subjunctive of werden, used in combination with the infinitive.

4. The imperative has but one tense, the present.

169. Person and Number. Person and number are distinguished by endings which are applied to the 'stem' of the verb, sometimes with and sometimes without a 'connecting vowel' e; e. g. du machst, thou makest, but du findest, thou findest.

1. The stem of a verb is obtained by dropping the final en (or simply the final n if the verb does not end in en) of the present infinitive. In some verbs the stem undergoes an internal vowel change in the preterit and perfect participle.

170. Principal Parts. The 'principal parts' of a verb, so called because when they are known all the other forms can be determined from them, are (1) the present infinitive, (2) the preterit indicative first person singular, (3) the perfect participle ; thus machen, machte, gemacht ; finden, fand, gefunden.

CONJUGATION

171. The Auxiliaries of Tense. As the three verbs haben, sein and werden are needed in the conjugation of all other verbs whatsoever, their inflection is given first. As auxiliaries, they are used only in the simple tenses, but as independent verbs they have complete inflection.

a. To assist the beginner translations are given with the paradigms below, but it should be understood that they will often prove inapplicable. The translation must be varied to suit the connection. Thus du bist may be 'thou art,' or 'you are,' or 'thou hast,' or 'you have.' In case of the subjunctive, particularly, it is quite impossible to give any one distinctive translation that will not be wrong more often than right. The common use of 'may' and 'might' is quite misleading. As this is so, and as it very often happens that the translation of the subjunctive does not differ from that of the corresponding indicative, it has seemed best to let one and the same translation stand for both.

PERFECT INFINITIVE

geworden zu sein, to have become

PERFECT PARTICIPLE

172. Remarks on the above Paradigms. Notice particularly the difference between corresponding indicative and subjunctive forms, such as hast — habest, hat — habe, ist — sei, wird — werde. The following examples will show how the subjunctive is used and how the translation of it must vary: edel sei der Mensch, let man be noble; es sei wahr oder falsch, be it true or false; ich fragte ihn, ob er krank sei, I asked him if he was (were) sick.

1. The third person plural, with sie written Sie, is used as a second person in polite address. See § 301.

2. The preterit subjunctive is equivalent in meaning to the present conditional, and the pluperfect subjunctive to the perfect conditional; thus es wäre sonderbar, it would be strange, is the same as es würde sonderbar sein, and es wäre sonderbar gewesen, it would have been strange, is the same as es würde sonderbar gewesen sein.

3. The third person singular and first person plural of the imperative are supplied from the subjunctive; they require the subject to be expressed, wir always after the verb, er either before or after. The subjects du and ih are usually omitted. The third person plural of the imperative (also supplied from the subjunctive) is little used, except as a second person, in polite address. Sie is always expressed and always follows the verb; e. g. haben Sie Geduld, have patience.

4. In the preterit indicative of werden the forms with u are those ordinarily used, but those with a are very common in books.

173. Rule of Order IV: Compound Tenses. In an independent sentence the uninflected part of a compound tense, i. e. the infinitive or participle, comes last; in a dependent sentence the inflected auxiliary comes last and is immediately preceded by the uninflected part. Thus we have:

a. In the normal order: ich habe ihn seit gestern nicht gesehen, I have not seen him since yesterday; Sie werden mich heute abend zu Hause finden, you will find me at home this evening; es würde mir große Freude gemacht haben, it would have given me great pleasure.

b. In the inverted order: seit gestern habe ich ihn nicht gesehen; heute abend werden Sie mich zu Hause finden; mir würde es große Freude gemacht haben.

c. In the dependent order: ich weiß gewiß, daß ich ihn seit gestern nicht gesehen habe, I know for certain that I have not seen him since yesterday; es ist wahrscheinlich, daß Sie mich heute abend zu Hause finden werden, it is probable that you will find me at home this evening; ich versichere Sie, daß es mir große Freude gemacht haben würde, I assure you that it would have given me great pleasure.

READING LESSON: FORMS OF haben, sein AND werden.

Meine liebe Schwester! Wo bist du denn eigentlich?¹ Es werden morgen vierzehn Tage sein, daß ich keine Zeile von Dir oder von der Mutter gehabt habe.² Vielleicht seid Ihr auf der Ausstellung gewesen, aber in dem Falle würdet Ihr doch Zeit gehabt haben, ein paar Worte an mich zu schreiben. Wenn Du nur nicht krank gewesen bist! Ich sage mir zwar öfters³: Sei ruhig, habe Geduld; aber die Zeit wird mir am Ende doch gar zu lang.⁴ Ich würde allerdings gefasster sein, hättest Du den Unfall nicht gehabt,⁵ denn ich kann die Besorgnis⁶ nicht los werden, daß derselbe⁷ vielleicht schlimmer gewesen ist, als Ihr anfangs⁸ zu glauben geneigt wart.⁹ Bitte, antworte recht bald auf diesen Brief, sei es nur einige Zeilen, dann werde ich wieder froh sein.

Seit einem Monat bin ich nicht so fleißig gewesen, wie früher, weshalb meine Gesundheit bedeutend besser geworden ist. Ich bitte Dich, dem Vater zu sagen, daß es mir lieb¹⁰ wäre, wenn ich für nächsten Monat einen kleinen Zuschuß an Taschengeld hätte. Es wird nämlich bald die Zeit der großen Messe sein, und es wäre doch¹¹ unangenehm, wenn ich mich dabei zu sehr einzuschränken¹² hätte. Erwarte diesmal keinen langen Brief von mir. Ich habe schon mehrere Stunden die Feder in der Hand gehabt und bin des Schreibens¹³ müde geworden.

EXERCISE 32 a

1. I have been very sick.
2. It would be a pity if he were¹⁴ not at home.
3. On the 11th of February I shall be seventeen years old.
4. Many think they would be¹⁵ happy if they only had¹⁶ money.
5. He had always been my friend.
6. I had always had a friend in¹⁷ him.
7. It was late, the air had become very cold, and we still had a long way before us.
8. Let him only have patience and everything will turn out¹⁸ well in the¹⁹ end.
9. My German would be better perhaps if I had had a better teacher.
10. He would have become famous if he had only been

- more industrious. 11. It would be possible if I had more time. ✓12. Next week ²⁰ I shall be at home every evening. ^u ✓13. How much money have I had? ✓14. Do you know ²¹ how much money I have had this month? ²⁰ die Ausstellung, w. exposition.	geneigt, pple. adj. inclined.

VOCABULARY

bedeutend, pple. adj. significant; as adv. notably.	los, adj. rid of, free from, loose.
die Besorgniß, s. fear, solicitude.	die Messe, w. fair, mass.
ei'nfchrän'ken, v. limit.	müde, adj. tired.
fleißig, adj. industrious.	öfter, adv. often, oft.
gar, adv. quite, altogether.	schlimm, adj. bad [slim].
die Geduld (no pl.) patience.	der Zusatz, s. (pl. ü), addition, increase.
gefaßt, pple. adj. composed, calm.	zwar, adv. to be sure, forsooth.

NOTES. — ¹ eigentlich, pray tell, I'd like to know. — ² daß ich . . . gehabt habe, that I have not had, i. e. since I have had. — ³ öfter; from öfter, comparative of oft, but without comparative meaning (see Ex. 20, n. 1). — ⁴ wird . . . zu lang, is really (doch) becoming at last quite too long. — ⁵ hättest Du . . . nicht gehabt, if you had not had; the pret. and plup. subj. are used, with or without wenn, to denote a condition which is contrary to fact. When wenn is omitted the conditional idea is expressed, as in English, by the inverted order; hättest Du nicht gehabt being = wenn Du nicht gehabt hättest. — ⁶ Besorgniß, acc. depending upon los; kann nicht los werden = can not get rid of; kann being pres. ind. 1. pers. sing. of können. — ⁷ derselbe, it, i. e. the accident (§ 184, 1). — ⁸ anfangs, at first. — ⁹ wart; dependent order after als = than. — ¹⁰ sich, agreeable. — ¹¹ doch, surely. — ¹² einzu'schränken, to limit. Observe that the zu of the infinitive comes between the parts of the verb. Such verbs, called separable compounds, will be explained further on. — ¹³ des Schreibens müde, tired of writing. Notice that the gen. precedes the adj. on which it depends. — ¹⁴ were, wäre; see n. 5 above and § 359, 1, a. — ¹⁵ think they would be, denken, sie würden . . . sein, or, denken, daß sie . . . sein würden; daß can be omitted, just as 'that' may be in English, and in such case the order of the dependent clause is normal. — ¹⁶ had, hätten; see n. 5 above. — ¹⁷ in, an with dat. — ¹⁸ turn out well, gut werden. — ¹⁹ in the, am. — ²⁰ acc. of time. — ²¹ know, wissen.

174. Weak and Strong Verbs. Verbs are divided into two great classes, called Weak and Strong. A weak verb forms its preterit first person singular by adding te or ete to the stem, as mach-en, machte, red-en, red-ete. A strong verb forms its preterit by means of an internal vowel-change, called 'ablaut,' as fommen, fam.

1. The perfect participle of a weak verb always ends in t or et, as gemacht, geredet; that of a strong verb ends in en, as gekommen.

a. Verbs in ie'ren, which are always weak, do not take the prefix ge in the perfect participle; thus from studie'ren, studiert', not gestudiert.

THE WEAK CONJUGATION

175. Examples: loben, to praise, conjugated with haben; folgen, to follow, conjugated with sein.

1. Conjugation of loben. Principal parts, loben, lobte, gelobt.

PRES. IND.

folge er, let him follow	folgen sie, let them follow

PRESENT INFINITIVE

(zu) folgen, (to) follow

PRESENT PARTICIPLE

folgend, following

PERFECT INFINITIVE

gefolgt zu sein, to have followed

176. Use of the Connecting Vowel e. While most weak verbs, like the examples given above, apply the endings st, t and te directly to the stem (except in the present subjunctive), there are others that insert the vowel e before these endings in order to facilitate pronunciation. Such are:

1. Verbs whose stems end in b or t; e. g., from reden, to talk, du redest, er redet, ich rebete, geredet; from beten, to pray, du betest, er betet, betete, gebetet.

2. Verbs whose stem ends in a single m or n preceded by a consonant other than l or r; e. g. from rechnen, to reckon, du rechnest, er rechnet, ich rechnete, gerechnet; from atmen, to breathe, du atmest, er atmet, atmete, geatmet. But from warnen, to warn, du warnt, er warnt, warnte, gewarnt.

3. Verbs whose stem ends in an s-sound (but only before st, not before t or te); e. g. from rasen, to rage, du rasest, but er rast, er raste, gerast; from wünschen, to wish du wünschest, er wünscht, wünschte, gewünscht. But du rast, du wünschst, du tanzt etc. also occur.

177. Verbs in eln and ern. Verbs in eln and ern usually drop the e of these suffixes before the e of the first person singular, but retain it elsewhere; thus from handeln, to act, ich handle, du handelst, er handelt, wir handeln, ich handelte, gehandelt, etc.

178. Irregular Weak Verbs. A few weak verbs have internal vowel-change in the preterit and perfect participle; e. g. fennen, to know, preterit fannte, participle gefannt. For a list of these verbs see § 330.

EXERCISE 33

COLLOQUY: WEAK VERBS

Vater, der Lehrer sagte uns heute, daß wir bald zwei neue Bücher brauchen würden.

Also eile zur Buchhandlung und kaufe sie. Glücklicherweise¹ hast du das Geld dazu.²

Du meinst doch nicht das Geld, das du mir gestern geschenkt hast?³

Gewiß meine ich das. Was hast du damit gemacht?⁴

Dafür habe ich mir ein Paar Schlittschuhe gekauft.

Du junger Schelm! Du wirst mich noch zum Bettler machen.⁵
— Was für Bücher verlangst du denn?

Ein englisches Lesebuch und Wörterbuch. Ich hoffe, daß du jedenfalls diesen Kauf billigen wirst.

Da hast du recht,⁶ mein Sohn; deinen englischen Studien bin ich stets mit Interesse gefolgt. Seid ihr denn mit der Grammatik schon fertig?

Nein, noch nicht; aber der Lehrer meint, daß es jetzt an der Zeit wäre,⁷ neben der Grammatik eine leichte Lektüre zu versuchen.

Da hat der Lehrer gewiß recht. Eine Sprache wird man immer am besten aus der Sprache selbst lernen.

Wie meinst du das — doch nicht, daß es besser gewesen wäre, wenn wir überhaupt keine Grammatik studiert hätten?

Nein; das würde ich nur dann sagen, wenn du noch ein Kind wärest.

Father have you any money by you? The teacher says that I shall soon need some more new books.

Well, I gave⁸ you some money yesterday. That will suffice, will it not?

Yes, but that was, as you say, a present. You surely did not suppose⁹ that I would buy books with that?

You young rogue! You talk as if you still had¹⁰ the money in your pocket.

And so I have¹¹; but I am going¹² to buy me a pair of skates with it.

Oh, that's it. — Well, what books do you want, then?

In the first place,¹³ a German reader. You will surely be glad to hear that.¹⁴

Yes, I want you to learn¹⁵ German thoroly. But are you thru with the grammar already?

No, we have only had twenty exercises; there are¹⁶ forty in the book.

I hope that you will do the remaining ones too.¹⁷

Oh, of course; we shall still have grammar every other day.¹⁸

EXERCISE 33.

1. I fetched a chair, seated myself, and waited. 2. Some one knocked; I opened the door and asked who was¹⁹ there, but no one answered. 3. We talked of²⁰ books; he showed great knowledge, and I learned much. 4. I told him²¹ what I thought, but it made no difference; he did not believe me.²¹ 5. I have heard nothing of²⁰ the affair. 6. I shall always esteem her. 7. You will soon hear from me. 8. He will show you²¹ the way. 9. Let some one open a window. 10. He has studied two years at²² a German university. 11. Who would have believed it! 12. You have learned much; soon you will no longer²³ need a teacher. 13. I have bought me²¹ a new house. 14. I have always followed your advice.²¹

VOCABULARY

REMARK.—The weak verbs, not counting compounds, which have already been introduced in the preceding exercises, are as follows: äng-jigen, antworten, brauchen, banfen, bauern, beuten, feflen, fragen, freuen, glau- verlangen, v. w. demand, want, [-long].

das Wörterbuch, n. *s.*³ dictionary [word-book].

NOTES. — ¹ Glücklicherweise; formed from the gen. glücklicher Weise (Weise = manner) used adverbially. — ² dazu, for them, or for the purchase. — ³ geschent hast, gave, not have given; German often uses the perf. where English prefers a pret. — ⁴ gemacht, done. — ⁵ mich zum Bettler machen, make me a beggar: see § 285, 2, a. — ⁶ du hast du recht, there you are right; to be right = recht haben, not recht sein. — ⁷ daß . . . wäre, that it would be in order. — ⁸ I gave; use the perf. — ⁹ you surely did not suppose, du meinstest doch wohl nicht. — ¹⁰ had, hättest, in dependent order (see Ex. 32, n. 5). — ¹¹ And so I have, und ich habe es auch wirklich. — ¹² I am going, ich werde. — ¹³ In the first place, erstens. — ¹⁴ You will . . . that, daß wirst du doch wohl gern hören. — ¹⁵ I want you to learn, ich wünsche daß du . . . lernest (subj.). — ¹⁶ there are, es sind. — ¹⁷ too, auch, before die übrigen. — ¹⁸ every other day, alle zwei Tage following noch. — ¹⁹ was, sei or wäre. — ²⁰ of, von. — ²¹ Use the dat. — ²² at, auf, with dat. — ²³ no longer, nicht mehr.

THE STRONG CONJUGATION

179. Characteristics. The distinguishing characteristics of all strong verbs are, as we have seen, (1) vowelchange in the preterit and (2) the ending en in the perfect participle. To these may be added two others which are found only in certain verbs, namely: (3) vowel-change in the present indicative and imperative, and (4) umlaut in the preterit subjunctive.

180. Formation of the Preterit. The vowel of the preterit indicative is always different from that of the infinitive. The first and third persons singular have no ending; elsewhere the endings are as in the present.

1. The final consonant of the stem usually remains the same in all the principal parts, as in geben, gab, gegeben. But a consonant is everywhere liable to be doubled to indicate that the preceding vowel is short; e. g. bitten, bat, gebeten; reiten, ritt, geritten. In a few verbs the consonant changes; e. g. ziehen, zog, gezogen.

2. The preterit subjunctive, first person singular, is regularly formed by adding e to the corresponding indicative form, with umlaut of the root-vowel if possible; e. g. hielt-hielte (from halten); gab-gäbe (from geben).

181. Formation of the Perfect Participle. The ending is always en. The root-vowel may be like that of the infinitive, as in geben, gab, gegeben; or like that of the preterit, as in reiten, ritt, geritten; or unlike either, as in singen, sang, gesungen.

1. The prefix ge is required. For the omission of it in certain rare cases see § 188, 3, a.

182. Vowel-Change in the Present. This affects but three forms, namely, the second and third person singular of the present indicative, and in some verbs the second person singular of the imperative. The changes that take place are as follows:

1. Radical a becomes ä in the indicative, but remains unchanged in the imperative; thus from tragen, to bear, ich trage, du trägst, er trägt, wir tragen, imperative trage.

2. Radical e if short becomes i; e. g. helfen, to help, ich helfe, du hilfst, er hilft, wir helfen, imperative hilf. For radical long e the rule is not so simple. In seven verbs it changes to ie, in three to i, and in seven it remains unchanged; e. g. ich sehe, du siehst, er sieht, wir sehen, sieh; ich nehme, du nimmst, er nimmt, wir nehmen, nimm; ich stehe, du stehst, er steht, wir stehen, steh.

a. Like sehen are befehlen, empfehlen, geschehen, lesen, scheeren, stehlen; like nehmen, are geben and treten; like stehen, bewegen, gehen, genesen, heben, pflügen, weben.

3. Other vowels and the diphthongs remain, in general, unchanged, but in laufen, stoßen and sometimes in kommen, the stem-vowel undergoes umlaut in the 2. and 3. person indicative. In § 331 will be found a complete list of the strong verbs, with their vowel-changes.

183. The Dropping of the Connecting Vowel. Strong verbs usually reject the connecting vowel in those forms of the present that have undergone vowel-change. If then the stem ends in t, so that two t's would be brought together in the third person singular, the two contract to one; thus es gilt, for gilt't, from gelten, to be worth. Otherwise the rules for the use of the connecting vowel are the same as in the case of weak verbs.

1. The following examples will show the difference in the present inflection of like-sounding strong and weak verbs:

Strong		Weak
ich halte , du hältst ,	er hält	ich walte , du waltest , er waltet
ich lade , du lädst ,	er lädt	ich bade , du badest , er badet
ich esse , du isst (or isstest), er isst		ich presse , du preßest , er preßt

2. The imperative second person singular omits the final e in those verbs that have i or ie changed from e; thus lies, from lesen; hilf, from helfen; but trage, from tragen.

184. Examples of Strong Conjugation : sehen, to see, conjugated with haben ; fallen, to fall, conjugated with sein.

185. Irregular Strong Verbs. The three verbs gehen, go, ſtehen, stand, and tun, do, are irregular in that they form their preterit and perfect participle from a stem different from that of the present. They are also without vowel-change in the present. The principal parts are gehen, ging, gegangen; ſtehen, ſtand, geſtanden; tun, tat, getan. The simple tenses of the indicative are inflected as follows:

Present			Preterit ich gehe	ſtehe	tue	ging	ſtand	tat
du gehſt	ſtehſt	tuſt	gingſt	ſtandſt	tatſt
er geht	ſteht	tut	ging	ſtand	tat
wir gehen	ſtehen	tun	gingen	ſtanden	taten
ihr geht	ſteht	tut	gingt	ſtandet	tattet
ſie gehen	ſtehen	tun	gingen	ſtanden	taten

1. The other forms are regular, gehen being conjugated with ſein, ſtehen and tun with haben.

186. Verbs of Mixed Inflection. A number of verbs which were once strong have passed over, wholly or in part, to the weak conjugation; e. g. rächen, roch, gerochen, to avenge, is now usually conjugated rächen, rächte, gerächt.

1. Thus strong and weak forms from the same verb may exist side by side. When this is the case they are sometimes associated with difference of meaning; e. g. the principal parts of ſchaffen in the sense of create are ſchaffen, ſchuf, geſchaffen; but in the sense of do, be busy, ſchaffen, ſchaffte, geſchafft.

187. Rule of Order V: Dependent Infinitives. A dependent infinitive, with or without zu, comes last if the verb is in a simple tense, otherwise next to the last; e. g. ich habe nichts mit der Sache zu tun, I have nothing to do with the affair; but ich habe nichts mit der Sache zu tun gehabt, I have had nothing to do with the affair.

1. An infinitive dependent upon a verb which itself stands in the dependent order generally comes just before the verb if unmodified, but after it if modified by an object or an adverb; e. g. obwohl ich ihn zu antworten gebeten hatte, tho I had asked him to answer; but obwohl ich ihn gebeten hatte, meine Frage zu beantworten, tho I had asked him to answer my question.

READING LESSON: STRONG VERBS

Mein lieber Freund! Endlich hast Du Dein langes Schweigen gebrochen; Dein Brief vom 12. dieses Monats ist mir soeben zu Händen gekommen. Für die Nachrichten, die Du mir aus der Heimat gibst, danke ich Dir herzlich, obwohl andere Freunde mir zum Teil¹ schon über dieselben Dinge geschrieben hatten. Ich schließe² aus Deinem Briefe, daß es Dir gut geht, und daß Du keine Gefahr läufst,³ an⁴ der Schwindsucht zu sterben. Die Beschreibung Deiner Reise nach Chicago war mir höchst interessant. Was Du nicht alles gesehen hast! Und in wie kurzer Zeit! Denn es scheint, daß Du nur drei oder vier Tage dort geblieben bist.

Nun, ich habe auch kürzlich eine kleine Reise gemacht, — eine Fußwanderung⁵ im Harzgebirge. Vielleicht wirst Du gern davon hören. Ich hatte viel von den Schönheiten dieser Gegend gehört und gelesen, und war natürlich recht neugierig darauf⁶ geworden. Vor etwa zwei Wochen sprach ich eines Tages⁷ darüber mit einem Bekannten, der meine Neugierde zu teilen schien, und wir trafen die Verabredung, den berühmten Brocken⁸ zusammen in Augenschein zu nehmen.⁹

1. She speaks, reads, and writes German very well.
2. The picture hangs too high.
3. He does not keep¹⁰ his word.
4. My physician advises a long walk every day,¹¹ but that¹² takes too much time.
5. What would you give for it?
6. I asked¹³ him to remain.
7. How long did you remain? 8. I found him ^{and} as ^{he} ^{was} lying by the way, helped him ^{up} upon ^{his} feet and gave him ^{some} money. 9 I came home late, ^{sat} a while by the stove, wrote a few letters, and then went ^{to} bed. 10. You have done much for me. 11. I have written three letters, but he has not answered. 12. We have remained too long already. 13. If you had come a little earlier, I should have found ^{you}. 14. I now saw that we had gone too far.

NOTE.—At this point it will be well to review and memorize the principal parts of the strong verbs already introduced in the preceding exercises. Omitting compounds they are as follows, those conjugated with sein being marked with an asterisk:

9 bitten	bat	gebeten	scheinen	schien	geschieden
10 *bleiben	blieb	geblieben	3 ✓ schreiben	schrieb	geschrieben
finden	fand	gefunden	✓ sehen ✓	sah	gesehen
geben	gab	gegeben	*sein	war	gewesen

Am nächsten Tage fuhren wir mit der Eisenbahn bis nach Wernigerode,¹ und von da gingen wir zu Fuß nach Ilseburg, einem kleinen Dorfe, welches ungefähr vier Stunden² vom Brockengipfel entfernt³ liegt. Hier fanden wir bald ein gutes Gasthaus, wo wir uns ziemlich früh zu Bett legten. Am folgenden Morgen hingen leichte Wolken am Himmel, und man riet⁴ uns, auf gutes Wetter zu warten. Es wäre besser gewesen, wenn wir diesem Rate gefolgt wären, aber dazu waren wir zu ungeduldig. Wir hielten⁵ die leichten Wolken nicht für gefährlich.

Also machten wir uns früh auf den Weg,⁶ und am Anfang ging es auch wirklich sehr schön. Die Morgenluft war höchst angenehm, die Vögel sangen in den Bäumen, und eine prächtige Natur bot, während wir höher und höher stiegen, immer neue Reize. Nachdem wir etwa eine Stunde gegangen waren, kamen wir an einen 300 Fuß⁷ hohen Felsen, welcher den Namen „Ilsestein“ trägt. Derselbe liegt dicht am Wege und ist nicht schwer zu besteigen.⁸ Wir klonnen also auf den Gipfel und saßen wohl eine halbe Stunde droben.

EXERCISE 35 a

1. The river runs through beautiful valleys. 2. He carries his head very high. 3. Let him be silent and go his way.⁹ 4. Please shut the door — I have already asked¹⁰ you twice. 5. I have offered you¹¹ too much already. 6. It seemed impossible to mount higher. 7. At last we came to¹² a little village, which was called Hochstein. 8. I met¹³ her at¹⁴ the station and we drove home together. 9. On the summit we saw a little girl who offered us¹¹ the flowers that she had found. — 10. I would be silent if only he had not broken his word. 11. I ran quickly to¹² the river, gave the child¹¹ my hand and drew it to¹³ the land. 12. The child would have died if I had not come. 13. You would have fallen had I not taken you by the hand. 14. Who knows what Byron would have done if he had not died so young?

The verb also means to guess (Ex. 30). — ⁵ hielten; halten für = regard as, consider. — ⁶ sich auf den Weg machen, to start, get under way. — ⁷ Fuß; used in the sing., as a measure of height, after a numeral. — ⁸ besteigen is transitive, while steigen is intransitive. The construction here requires a transitive verb. — ⁹ way, acc., tho gehen is intransitive; see § 266, 1. — ¹⁰ ask, bitten; the order: dich schon zweimal. — ¹¹ Use the dat.; the order: dir schon zu viel. — ¹² to, an with acc. — ¹³ meet, treffen. — ¹⁴ at, auf with dat.

Die Aussicht von diesem Punkte werde ich so bald nicht vergessen. Während wir hier saßen und plauderten, deutete mein Reisefamerad mehrmals¹ auf die Wolken, welche immer noch am Himmel hingen und gerade jetzt höher zu steigen und dichter zu werden schienen. Wir sahen, daß es ein Gewitter geben würde, und dachten² sofort an die Worte der Leute im Gasthause. Aber an³ eine Rückkehr war jetzt nicht mehr zu denken; dazu glaubten⁴ wir zu weit gegangen zu sein. Also gingen wir weiter, da kein Obdach zu sehen⁵ war, nach dem Gipfel des Berges zu.⁶ Jetzt schritten wir natürlich schneller, indem⁷ wir alle paar Minuten⁸ Blicke nach dem Himmel warfen. Von Zeit zu Zeit liefen wir sogar eine kleine Strecke, aber das wurde bald ermüdend. Endlich brach das Gewitter los, und was für ein Wetter! Der Regen fiel in Strömen, der Wind blies und heulte wie toll⁹ und bog die Bäume, daß sie brachen. Blendende Blitze schossen überall durch die Luft und schlugen bisweilen in die Bäume.

1. He stands now where I stood ten years ago. 2. The letter has been lying on my table a whole week. 3. We had mounted higher and higher and stood now upon the summit. 4. William Tell shot an apple from the head of his child. 5. His heart beats warmly for the poor. 6. We have met and beaten them twice. 7. The thing bends, but it does not break. 8. The wind is blowing cold from the mountains; there will be¹⁰ a storm. 9. Prices have risen; everything has become dearer. 10. He cast one glance at¹¹ the crowd and strode quietly into the building. 11. Poets have always sung of love and beauty. 12. How long have you been standing already? 13. Did you drive or come on foot? 14. Why are you silent? Do you not see what you have done? 15. That throws a strong light upon¹¹ the whole affair. 16. It struck twelve as we were standing before the door, and I saw that we had come too late.

THE MODAL AUXILIARIES AND wissen

188. Characteristics. The verbs dürfen, to be permitted, fönnen, can, mögen, may, müssen, must, ſollen, shall, wollen, will, and wiſſen, to know, constitute a class by themselves. The first six are called 'modal auxiliaries.' They and wiſſen were originally strong verbs, but developed weak preterits after the old preterit had acquired present meaning. As a class they have the following peculiarities:

1. In the present indicative the vowel of the singular (except in ſollen) is different from that of the plural, and the third person singular lacks the ending t.

2. Where the infinitive has umlaut, this umlaut disappears in the preterit indicative, but is found in the preterit subjunctive.

3. Each verb (except wiſſen) has two perfect participles, one weak, with prefix ge, and without umlaut, the other strong, without ge, and identical in form with the infinitive; thus from fönnen, geſonnt and fönnen. The strong participle is used only and always in connection with an infinitive; thus ich habe eſ nicht geſonnt, I have not been able (to do) it; but ich habe eſ nicht tun können, I have not been able to do it.

a. There are a few other verbs that show this last peculiarity of the modal auxiliaries; i. e. employ what seems to be the infinitive, and really is so if the verb is weak, in connection with an infinitive. The most common of them are heißen, helfen, laſſen, ſehen and hören. Thus one says ich habe ſagen hören, I have heard say.

189. Inflection of the Modal Auxiliaries. The forms are given below without translation, because they must be translated variously. See §§ 190 and 332 ff.

190. Inflection of wissen. The simple tenses of wissen are inflected as follows :

PRES. IND.	PRES. SUBJ.	PRET. IND.	PRET. SUBJ.
ich weiß	wisse	wußte	wüßte
du weißt	wissest	wußtest	wüßtest
er weiß	wisse	wußte	wüßte
wir wissen	wissen	wußten	wüßten
ihr wißt	wisset	wußtet	wüßtet
sie wissen	wissen	wußten	wüßten

1. The compound tenses are regular ; ich habe gewußt, ich hatte gewußt, ich werde wissen, ich werde gewußt haben, etc.

2. The imperative is wisse (du), wisse er, wissen wir, wißt (ihr) wissen sie.

191. Use of the Modal Auxiliaries. The use of the modal auxiliaries is highly idiomatic. All of them except dürfen have familiar English cognates, but the English verbs may, can, shall and will have but two tenses each, while must has but one. This necessitates the use in English of various circumlocutions, particularly in translating the compound tenses ; e. g. ich muß, I must, but ich mußte, I had to, was obliged to ; ich kann, I can, but ich werde können, I shall be able. The following are the most important uses.

1. Dürfen usually means to be permitted, to have the right, but is often best translated by may, or with a negative by must not ; e. g. darf ich ums Brot bitten? may I ask for the bread? das dürfen Sie nicht tun, that you must not do. The preterit subjunctive may denote probability; e. g. das dürfte der Fall sein, that might be the case. Sometimes dürfen approaches the meaning of dare, as in ich darf behaupten, I dare assert. But it is not cognate with dare and is very rarely to be so translated.

2. Können in the present is usually equivalent to can, but often to may ; e. g. das kann sein, that may be. Ich konnte means I was able, ich könnte, I should be able, both of which uses are covered by English could ; e. g. ich konnte es (gestern) nicht finden, I could not find it (yesterday) ; ich könnte es finden (wenn ich ein Licht hätte), I could find it (if I had a light).

→ 3. Mögen is sometimes equivalent to may, as in er mag es behalten, he may keep it ; more often it is to be rendered by wish, want, like, care ; e. g. ich mag ihn nicht sehen, I do not want to see him. This use is especially common in the preterit subjunctive, ich möchte (gern) being equivalent to I should like.

4. Müssen is equivalent to must only in the present ; elsewhere it is to be translated by be compelled, be obliged, or the like ; e. g. ich mußte lachen, I had to laugh, I could not help laughing ; er hat den ganzen Tag arbeiten müssen, he has had to work all day. Er müßte means he would have to, he would need.

→ 5. Sollen is sometimes equivalent to shall, in the preterit to should, ought ; e. g. du sollst nicht töten, thou shalt not kill ; du solltest gehen, you should (ought to) go. More often it is best rendered by a form of be followed by to ; e. g. er sollte bald sterben, he was soon to die. Very frequently it is used to report what is said, claimed or thought by some one else than the speaker ; e. g. er soll sehr reich sein, he is said to be very rich.

6. Wollen generally denotes an act of willing or wishing on the part of the subject; e. g. er will Soldat werden, he wishes to become a soldier. It is often to be translated by to be on the point of; e. g. er will gehen, he is on the point of going. Sometimes it can be rendered by claim, pretend; e. g. er will gehört haben, he claims to have heard. In the compound tenses translate by wish or want; e. g. ich habe dich längst besuchen wollen, I have long been wishing to visit you.

am etc.
müssen

192. The Pluperfect Subjunctive of the Modal Auxiliaries. The pluperfect subjunctive of a modal auxiliary, with accompanying infinitive, is the usual equivalent of English might, could or should, followed by have and a participle. Thus he could (or might) have come generally means he would have been able to come, and the German for that is er hätte kommen können. The form er könnte gekommen sein is much more rarely met with and means it might be that he came. So also you should have done it yourself is not ordinarily du solltest es selbst getan haben, but du hättest es selbst tun sollen.

1. This construction may take the place of a perfect conditional with would have where the latter is connected with an infinitive; thus for he would have been able to do it one may say er würde es haben tun können, or er hätte es tun können; for he would have wished to greet you, er würde dich haben grüßen wollen, or er hätte dich grüßen wollen (or mögen).

193. Omission of Infinitive with Modal Auxiliary. After any of the modal auxiliaries, the dependent infinitive is often omitted, if it can readily be supplied; as ich muß fort, I must (go) away; antworte du, ich kann es nicht, you answer, I can not.

1. Thru this ellipsis of a verb some of the modal auxiliaries have acquired apparently the force of transitive verbs; e. g. ich mag das Buch nicht, I do not like the book

(do not care to read or to have it); können Sie Deutsch? can you speak German?

194. Rule of Order VI: Special Case of Dependent Order. In a dependent sentence containing a compound tense of a modal auxiliary in connection with an infinitive, the participle of the modal auxiliary comes last, next to that the infinitive, and just before that the inflected auxiliary; e. g. ich weiß gewiß, daß ich so etwas nie hätte tun können, I know for certain that I could never have done such a thing; das ist ein Rätsel, welches niemand bis jetzt hat lösen können, that is a riddle which no one has hitherto been able to solve.

READING LESSON: MODAL AUXILIARIES

Wir konnten weder gehen noch stehen und mußten alle Augenblicke nach irgend einem Bäumchen greifen, um¹ überhaupt² auf den Füßen bleiben zu können. Du weißt, daß ich nicht furchtsam bin, aber ich kann Dich³ versichern, daß es kein Spaß war. Während Du jetzt ruhig meine Beschreibung liest,⁴ magst Du vielleicht darüber lachen. Du wirst sagen: Es ist Dir recht geschehen;⁵ Du hättest im Gasthause bleiben sollen. Nun, ich will gestehen, daß gerade dieser Gedanke auch mir ein paarmal durch den Kopf fuhr,⁶ aber es half nichts.⁷ In solchem Falle kann man mit dem Narren in Shakespeare nur sagen: Der Reisende⁸ muß eben zufrieden sein.

Wir waren natürlich in sehr kurzer Zeit durch und durch naß geworden, und das Weitere konnte uns dann wenig kümmern. Es dauerte noch zwei volle Stunden, bis⁹ wir auf den Gipfel kamen und das Brockenhaus¹⁰ vor uns sahen. Du kannst mir glauben, wenn ich Dir sage, daß der Anblick ein sehr willkommen war, denn jetzt durften wir wieder in eine menschliche Wohnung treten. Wir setzten uns an den Ofen und trockneten unsere Kleider, so gut¹¹ wir konnten. Endlich waren wir also auf dem Brocken, aber was¹² Naturschönheiten betraf, so hätten¹³ wir eben so gut auf dem Grunde des Meeres sitzen können. Ein dichter Nebel lag über dem ganzen Berge, und man konnte keine hundert Schritte weit¹⁴ sehen.

EXERCISE 37 a

1. I know nothing of the affair and will hear nothing of it. 2. Can you speak German? I can't. 3. Shall I tell you what I think? 4. I saw him yesterday; he could not walk and had to lie in bed. 5. Will you not come as soon as¹⁵ possible? I should like to talk with you. 6. What time is it, if I may ask?¹⁶ 7. I do not want to see him again. 8. Travel as you will, you will certainly need more money. 9. If we had time, I could¹⁷ tell you much that¹⁸ you would probably like to know. 10. She will not be able to go this evening. 11. You will have to take us as you find us. 12. I ought to have written, but I haven't been able to find the time. 13. As¹⁹ children we were not allowed to go to the theater. 14. He wished to go along, but we did not want his company. 15. You ought to see it once; it is said²⁰ to have cost a thousand marks.

Weißt du, wie spät es ist? Ich muß sofort nach Hause.

Es ist ziemlich finster draußen; glaubst du, du wirst den Weg nach deiner Wohnung finden können?

Daran hatte ich nicht gedacht, aber es dürfte¹ nicht schwer sein. Ich könnte im Notfall einen Polizisten fragen.

Auf die Polizei darfst² du nicht rechnen. Soll ich nicht mit dir gehen? Ich kenne die Straßen besser als du.

Ich möchte sehr gern Gesellschaft haben. Wie weit mag es denn sein? Weißt du es?

Ich kann es nicht genau sagen. Es mag etwa eine Viertelstunde sein.

Aber du wirst den Rückweg allein machen müssen. Das tut mir leid. Ich hätte früher gehen sollen.

Nicht doch. Da hätten wir nicht so lange plaudern können. Sei³ meinetwegen ohne Sorge. Die frische Luft wird mir wohl tun.

Du bist sehr freundlich. — Ich möchte wissen, wie es unfremden Freunden geht. Er soll⁴ endlich etwas besser sein.

Ich war heute früh in seinem Hause, aber ich durfte ihn ⁵ nicht sprechen. Der arme Kerl! Ich hätte so gern etwas sagen mögen, ⁶ um ihn zu trösten.

May I ask ⁷ what time it is? Perhaps I ought ⁸ to be going home.

Oh, it can not be so very late. I haven't a watch, ⁹ but if you step ¹⁰ to the ¹¹ window you can ¹² see the city clock.

Just think! ¹³ It is on the point of striking ¹⁴ twelve. I ought to have gone an hour ago. ¹⁵

You must not feel concerned ¹⁶ on my account. I could not have used ¹⁷ the time more pleasantly.

It is pretty dark outside. I wonder if ¹⁸ I can find the way home.

I hadn't thought of that. ¹⁹ If you wish, I will ¹² go with you.

I should like company, if it doesn't make you too much trouble.

Oh, it is no trouble. We will ²⁰ take the short way thru the park.

But they say that is ²¹ dangerous in the night. They claim ²² to have seen footpads there.

Nonsense! That is probably ²³ an invention of the newspapers. At the most one might ²⁴ meet a beggar there.

THE PASSIVE VOICE

195. Formation and Meaning of the Passive. The passive is formed by combining the auxiliary werden with the perfect participle. Werden is inflected regularly thruout, its participle appearing as worden; thus ich werde gelobt, I am praised; er ist gelobt worden, he has been praised.

1. It is important to distinguish between the true passive with werden, and the quasi-passive with sein, between das Buch wird gedruckt, and das Buch ist gedruckt. To do this it is only necessary to remember that werden means to become, to pass into the state of; hence das Buch wird gedruckt means the book is becoming printed, i. e. is printing, or being printed (the work is going on). On the other hand, das Buch ist gedruckt means the book is printed, i. e. the work of printing is finished.

2. The forms with werden, then, denote an action going on at the time indicated by the tense of the verb; those with sein a state or condition that has resulted from a previous action. Further examples: die Thür ist geschlossen, the door is closed; die Thür wird um 8 Uhr geschlossen, the door is closed (i. e. they close the door) at 8 o'clock; ich kam beinahe zu spät; der Brief wurde (eben) geschrieben; I came almost too late ; the letter was (just) being written ; ich kam zu spät ; der Brief war (schon) geschrieben ; I came too late ; the letter was (already) written.

196. Conjugation of the Passive : gelobt werden, to be praised.

PRESENT

I am praised, thou art praised etc.

IND.

ich werde gelobt
du wirst gelobt er wird gelobt wir werden gelobt etc.

SUBJ.

ich werde gelobt
du werdest gelobt

PRESENT CONDITIONAL.

ich würde gelobt werden, I should be praised du würdest gelobt werden etc., thou wouldst be praised etc.

PERFECT CONDITIONAL

I should have been praised etc.
ich würde gelobt worden sein du würdest gelobt worden sein etc.

IMPERATIVE

sei (du) gelobt, be thou praised sei er gelobt, let him be praised

(Forms with werden, as werde gelobt, er werde gelobt, are rare; see § 344, 1.)

INFINITIVE

PRESENT: gelobt (zu) werden, to be praised PERFECT: gelobt worden (zu) sein, to have been praised zu lobend, to be praised, praiseworthy (§ 370).

197. The Active and the Passive Construction. In going from the active to the passive construction the object of the active verb becomes the subject of the passive, while the subject of the active, if a personal agent, goes into the dative with von; e. g. wir schlugen den Feind, we beat the enemy, becomes der Feind wurde von uns geschlagen, the enemy was beaten by us.

1. A non-personal instrument or means is denoted usually by the accusative with durch; e. g. der Feind wurde durch List geschlagen, the enemy was beaten by strategy.

198. The Impersonal Passive of Intransitive Verbs. Intransitive verbs can only be used impersonally in the passive, but this use is very common. The impersonal passive can seldom be translated literally; e. g. es wurde getanzt und gesungen, there was singing and dancing.

1. Such expressions, therefore, as I was believed, my advice was not followed, and all others in which the corresponding German verb is intransitive, have to be rendered by impersonal constructions, thus: mir wurde geglaubt; meinem Räte wurde nicht gefolgt.

a. Very often, however, one can substitute for such an intransitive verb a transitive compound which can be used personally in the passive; thus for my advice was not followed one can say mein Rat wurde nicht befolgt.

199. Substitutes for the Passive. On the whole the passive is much less used in German than in English. The English passive can be replaced in German (1) by man with the active, as in man sagt, it is said; (2) by a reflexive form (§ 201), as in es versteht sich, it is understood; (3) by a reflexive with lassen, let, as in es läßt sich hoffen, it may be hoped; es ließ sich erwarten, it was to be expected.

200. Rule of Order VII: Inversion after Subordinate Clause. Any subordinate clause preceding the principal verb of a complex sentence causes inversion; e. g.

wenn ich an Ihrer Stelle wäre, (so) würde ich zu Hause bleiben, if I were in your place, I should remain at home; obwohl er Geld hat, (so) hat er doch wenig Verstand, tho he has money, he has little sense; damit er Ruhe haben könnte, zog er sich aufs Land zurück, that he might have peace, he retired into the country.

1. Observe that this is only a special case under the general rule of inversion (§ 87). The subordinate clause always has the force either of an adverb, an adjective or a substantive; and such an element preceding the verb causes inversion.

a. But the clause may be itself the subject, in which case there is no room for inversion; e. g. daß er recht hat, ist klar, that he is right is clear.

2. The adverbial force of a preceding clause is often resumed by means of an adverb, usually so, placed just before the main verb (see the first two examples above). This so should not be translated.

EXERCISE 39

READING LESSON: THE PASSIVE VOICE

Im Brockenhause waren¹ aber eine Menge Gäste versammelt, unter denen ein lebhaftes Gespräch geführt wurde. Viele Späße wurden auf unsre Kosten gemacht, was² von uns natürlich nicht übel genommen werden konnte. Bald fühlten wir uns wie zu Hause und wurden eben so lustig wie die anderen. Obwohl wir sehr ermüdet waren, gingen wir erst um 10. Uhr zu Bett. Am folgenden Tage öffneten wir die Augen auf eine neue Welt; die Wolken waren verschwunden, und man konnte meilenweit³ nach jeder Richtung sehen.

Es wird behauptet, daß über zweihundert Städte und Dörfer vom Brocengipfel gezählt werden können. Wie es nun auch⁴ damit sein mag (denn ich habe sie nicht gezählt), war die Aussicht jedenfalls eine herrliche; sie ließ uns fühlen, daß wir aufs schönste⁶ für unsre Mühe belohnt waren. Du weißt wohl, daß viele Sagen vom Brocken erzählt werden. Es ist dies nämlich der Ort, wo nach altem Volksglauben das große Jahresfest⁶ der Teufel und Hexen gehalten wurde. Sogar heute noch werden ein Hexentanzplatz und dergleichen⁷ andere Dinge dem Reisenden gezeigt, aber die Geister sind längst verschwunden. Wenigstens sind keine Teufel oder Hexen von uns gesehen worden.

EXERCISE 39a

1. Only German is spoken here. 2. The doors are opened at 7 o'clock. 3. The thing is made of wood. 4. Good paper is now made of wood. 5. The child has been found. 6. The missing⁸ book is found. 7. The picture was given me⁹ by a friend. 8. That⁹ can not be helped. 9. I told my story, but I⁹ was not believed. 10. The doors will be closed at 11 o'clock. 11. The letter was so badly written that it could not be read. 12. He is esteemed by all who know him. 13. Until now everything that he had written had¹⁰ always been praised. 14. The window can not be opened. 15. The letter is written and is lying on my table. 16. He was seen yesterday evening, but to-day he can not be found.

VOCABULARY

behaupten, v. w. assert.

verschwinden, v. s. (verschwand, daß Volk, *s.*³ folk, people. verschwunden, aux. sein), van- wenigstens, adv. at least.
 ish, disappear. zählen, v. w. count [tell].

NOTES. — ¹ waren . . . versammelt; not the passive. The verb refers not to an action, but to a state, the meaning being were (already) gathered. — ² was, a thing which, the antecedent being a sentence; see § 141, a. — ³ meilenweit, for miles. — ⁴ Wie . . . auch, however; § 140, 2. — ⁵ aufs schönste, most beautifully; § 112, 2. — ⁶ Jahresfest, annual festival; in allusion to the so-called Walpurgis-Night, supposed to be held annually on the eve of the 1st of May. — ⁷ vergleichen; § 132, 2. — ⁸ missing, fehlenb. — ⁹ Use the dative. — ¹⁰ had, war, directly after jetzt.

REFLEXIVE VERBS

201. Characteristics. A 'reflexive' is a verb that requires a pronominal object referring to the subject. In the third person this object is sich; in the first and second it is that form of the personal pronoun which corresponds to the subject and is required by the governing power of the verb; e. g. er schämt sich (acc.), he is ashamed; er schmeichelt sich (dat.), he flatters himself; ich schäme mich, I am ashamed; ihr schmeichelt euch, you flatter yourselves.

1. Reflexive verbs are conjugated with haben and have no passive. In the normal order the pronoun stands just after the inflected element.

202. Conjugation of a Reflexive Verb: sich freuen, to enjoy (glad one's self).

PRESENT

Ind.		Subj.
ich freue mich	I enjoy	ich freue mich
du freust dich	thou enjoyest	du freuest dich
er freut sich	he enjoys	er freue sich wir freuen uns	we enjoy	wir freuen uns
ihr freut euch	you enjoy	ihr freuet euch
sie freuen sich	they enjoy	sie freuen sich

PRETERIT

Ind.: ich freute mich, du freutest dich etc.

Subj.: ich freute mich, du freutest dich etc.

PERFECT

Ind.: ich habe mich gefreut, du hast dich gefreut etc.

Subj.: ich habe mich gefreut, du habest dich gefreut etc.

PLUPERFECT

Ind.: ich hatte mich gefreut, du hättest dich gefreut etc.

Subj.: ich hätte mich gefreut, du hättest dich gefreut etc.

FUTURE

Ind.: ich werde mich freuen, du wirst dich freuen etc.

Subj.: ich werde mich freuen, du werdest dich freuen etc.

FUTURE PERFECT

Ind.: ich werde mich gefreut haben, du wirst dich gefreut haben etc.

Subj.: ich werde mich gefreut haben, du werdest dich etc.

CONDITIONAL

Pres.: ich würde mich freuen, du würdest dich freuen etc.

Perf.: ich würde mich gefreut haben, du würdest dich etc.

IMPERATIVE

—	freuen wir uns
freue (du) dich	freut (ihr) euch
er freue sich	freuen sie sich

sich (zu) freuen	sich gefreut (zu) haben
------------------	-------------------------

PARTICIPLE

sich freuend	(sich) gefreut

1. In giving the principal parts of a reflexive verb the pronoun should precede the infinitive, but follow the preterit. With the participle it is best omitted altogether, thus: sich freuen, freute sich, gefreut.

203. Reflexive Constructions. Reflexive verbs are regularly intransitive; that is, take no accusative object other than the reflexive pronoun itself; but many of them take a secondary or complementary object in the genitive; e. g. er freut sich des Lebens, he enjoys life; erbarme dich meiner, have mercy on me.

1. With other verbs the complementary object is replaced by a prepositional phrase; e. g. er sehnt sich nach Ruhe, he longs for rest; er fürchtet sich vor Verrat, he is afraid of treachery.

2. Intransitive verbs are often construed with a reflexive object and a factitive predicate; e. g. sich tot lachen, to laugh one's self dead; sich satt essen, to eat one's self full.

IMPERSONAL VERBS

204. Characteristics. An impersonal verb is a verb used in the third person singular to express the verbal idea in a general way without reference to a definite subject. If expressed the subject is es, but es is often omitted.

1. The verbs always used impersonally are not very numerous. They denote for the most part either operations of nature, as es regnet, it rains, or mental and bodily states, as mir dünkt, methinks. Besides these, however, there is a large number of verbs not ordinarily impersonal which admit freely of impersonal use, as in es geht nicht, it won't do; es gibt Leute, there are people.

2. Es is apt to be omitted when, under the rules for inversion, it would come after its verb; thus mir schwindelt, I am dizzy, takes the place of es schwindelt mir; so also in the impersonal passive; e. g. am Abend wurde getanzt, in the evening there was dancing, instead of es wurde am Abend getanzt.

a. But the omission does not take place with verbs denoting natural phenomena, nor with active verbs not usually impersonal; thus one does not say am Abend regnete, but regnete es, nor mir geht gut, but mir geht es gut.

3. The inflection of an impersonal verb, as such, presents no peculiarities that call for a special paradigm; thus we have from regnen, quite regularly: es regnet, es regnete, es hat geregnet, es wird regnen, etc.

205. Impersonal Constructions. Verbs denoting mental and bodily states are often accompanied by a dative of the person concerned; e. g. dem Vater grauset, the father shudders.

1. Others of these verbs take an accusative object which looks like the subject; as mir schläfert, I am drowsy; mir dünkt, methinks.

2. Some transitive verbs are used impersonally with a direct object, giving rise to idioms that can not be rendered literally; e. g. es hat Gefahr, there is danger; es gibt Leute, there are people; es gilt das Leben, it is a matter of life and death.

3. Intransitive verbs are often used impersonally with a reflexive object, giving rise to idiomatic expressions; as es fragt sich, the question arises; es lohnt sich der (gen.) Mühe, it is worth the trouble; es handelt sich ums Leben, it is a question of life.

a. Such an intransitive reflexive associated with lassen expresses the idea of possibility; e. g. hier läßt sich ruhig plaudern, here we can chat quietly; es läßt sich hoffen, it may be hoped.

EXERCISE 40

COLLOQUY: REFLEXIVE AND IMPERSONAL VERBS

Nun, wie hast du dich amüsiert? Es war äußerst warm im Theater, nicht wahr?

Schrecklich. Ich konnte an nichts denken, — nur mich nach frischer Luft sehnen.

Wir ging es eben so; und doch schienen die meisten der Zuschauer sich an dem Stück zu ergötzen.¹ Es wundert mich, wie es ihnen nur möglich war.

Mich auch. Hast du bemerkt, wie die Leute sich über den Zweikampf im dritten Akte freuten?²

Ja, aber ich habe die Geschichte überhaupt³ nicht verstehen können. Worum⁴ hat es sich in dem Streite eigentlich gehandelt?

Das fragt sich⁵ eben. So viel ich sehen konnte, ärgerte sich der Held über gar nichts.

Und der andere Kerl auch über nichts. Ich glaube, keiner von beiden wußte, warum sie sich schlügen.⁶

Du hast wohl recht. — Aber bemerkst du, wie kalt es geworden ist? Ich glaube, es wird regnen.

Es wäre doch schade, wenn wir uns wegen eines solchen Stückes erkälten sollten.

Wir sind gleich⁷ bei meiner Wohnung. Warte einen Augenblick; ich werde dir einen Regenschirm holen.

Nein, das lohnt sich nicht der Mühe. Ich habe nicht weit zu gehen und kann mich beeilen.

Also, auf Wiedersehen! Wir haben jedenfalls das Stück gesehen, wovon so viel geredet wird.

How good⁸ the fresh air feels, doesn't it?

Yes, indeed. Wasn't⁹ it warm in there, tho?

I was really ashamed of myself. I could hardly keep¹⁰ awake.

Nor I either,¹¹ tho the others seemed to be enjoying themselves very well.

Oh, to be sure; there are¹² such salamanders, who do not care¹³ anything about bad air.

So that is¹⁴ the play that there is so much talk about. Well, I am glad that we have seen it.

I can not say that. I believe it is going to rain, and I should not like to take cold for such a play.

That would be a pity, to be sure.¹⁵ But the piece is the fashion just now ; and when it's a question ¹⁶ of fashion, one must put up with things.¹⁷

Of course, — let one's self be bored ¹⁸ in order ¹⁹ to be in the fashion. Man ²⁰ is a strange animal.

VOCABULARY

der Akt, s. ² act.	der Regenschirm, s. ² umbrella.
amüsieren (sich), v. w. enjoy (amuse) one's self.	regnen, v. w. rain.
ärgern (sich), v. w. be vexed.	Salama'nder, s. ¹ salamander.
bemerken, v. w. notice, re-mark.	sehnen (sich), v. w. long.
drinnen, adv. in there, inside.	schredlich, adj. terrible.
ergötzen (sich), v. w. delight.	der Streit, s. ² strife, conflict.
erfalten (sich), v. w. take cold.	das Stück, s. ² piece, play [stick].
gefallen, v. s. (gefiel, gefallen, dat.) please.	das Tier, s. ² animal [deer].
handeln, v. w. ; es handelt sich um, it is a question of.	wach, adj. a-wake.
der Held, w. hero.	wie'dersehen, v. s. see again ; auf Wiedersehen, good-bye.
lohn'en (sich), v. w. to be worth while.	wundern, v. w. cause to wonder ; mich wundert's, I wonder.
quälen (sich), v. w. be tormented, be bored.	der Zuschauer, s. ¹ spectator.
	der Zweikampf, s. ² (pl. ä), duel.

NOTES. — ¹ sich ergötzen an (dat.), to take pleasure in. — ² sich freuen über (acc.), to be delighted over. — ³ überhaupt, at all, anyway. — ⁴ Worum hat es . . . gehandelt ; worum = um was. The meaning is : What was the question at issue ? — ⁵ das fragt sich eben, that is just the question. — ⁶ sich schlagen, to fight. — ⁷ gleich, directly, in a moment. The meaning is : We are close by. — ⁸ How . . . feels, wie die frische Luft einem (§ 149, 1) wohl tut ! — ⁹ Wasn't it . . . tho, war es doch. — ¹⁰ keep, bleiben. — ¹¹ Nor I either, ich auch nicht. — ¹² there are, es gibt. — ¹³ who do not care anything about, die sich gar nicht um . . . kümmern. — ¹⁴ So that is, das ist also. — ¹⁵ to be sure, allerdings. — ¹⁶ when it's a question of, wenn es sich um . . . handelt. — ¹⁷ one must put up with things, muß man sich schon etwas gefallen lassen. — ¹⁸ let one's self be bored, sich quälen lassen ; inf. without zu. — ¹⁹ in order to be, um . . . zu sein. — ²⁰ man, der Mensch.

COMPOUND VERBS

206. Separable and Inseparable Compounds. There are two kinds of compound verbs, separable and inseparable. In the latter the particle always precedes the verb and forms one word with it, as verstehen, understand; er versteht, he understands. In the former the particle is liable to be separated from the verb, as aufzustehen, to rise; er steht früh auf, he rises early.

1. In English we have only inseparable composition, as in beget, forgive, outrun, none of which can be broken up without changing the meaning; compare outrun with run out, backslide with slide back etc.

207. Differences in Conjugation. The conjugation of a separable compound differs from that of an inseparable in the following particulars:

1. In the simple tenses of a separable verb, except in the dependent order, the prefix comes at the end of the sentence; e. g. from aufsetzen, to put on, er setzt den Hut auf, he puts on his hat. An inseparable compound, as stated above, is never broken up.

2. The zu of the infinitive comes between the parts of a separable compound, the three being written as one word, as aufzustehen; with an inseparable compound zu precedes and is written separately, as zu verstehen.

3. The ge of the past participle comes between the prefix and the verb in a separable compound, the three elements being here also written as one word; e. g. aufgestanden, risen. In an inseparable compound ge is omitted entirely; e. g. verstanden, understood.

4. Separable compounds invariably accent the prefix; inseparable compounds the verb; as verstehen, versta'nd, versta'nden; aufstehen, stand au'f, aufgestanden.

208. The Inseparable Prefixes. The prefixes which always form inseparable verbs are be, ent (emp), er, ge, ber and zer. These six prefixes are never accented in any part of speech, and are not in use as separate words.

1. Each of these prefixes had originally a definite meaning, and this original meaning is sometimes distinctly discernible in modern German; e. g. er meant out and erdenken is to think out. In other cases the force of the prefix has blended so closely with that of the verb that it can now be discovered only by the help of historical study (just as in English we have lost all sense of a connection between have and behave). Sometimes a compound exists with no simple verb corresponding to it; e. g. beginnen, to begin. In general the meaning of a compound can not be told from a knowledge of its parts, but must be learned from the dictionary. The most common and easily discernible meanings of the inseparable prefixes are as follows:

a. Be, cognate with be in behave, beget, etc. Forms transitive verbs from intransitives or from nouns and adjectives; e. g. bedenken, think about, consider, from denken, think; befreien, set free, liberate, from frei, free; befümmern, trouble, from Rummer, sorrow.

b. Ent, which sometimes takes the form emp, implies separation, sometimes origin; e. g. entgehen, escape, get away from; entlassen, dismiss, let go away; entstehen, stand forth, arise; entflammen, flame out, burst into flames.

c. Er means forth, out, often forming transitive verbs of completed action; thus erstehen, stand forth, arise; erscheinen, shine forth, appear; erdenken, think out, excogitate; erfinden, find out, invent; erjagen, hunt down, capture by chasing; erfragen, find out by asking.

d. Ge forms numerous compounds in which the meaning of the prefix is not now obvious, and can only be understood by historical study.

e. Ver, cognate with for in forgive, forget, etc. means out, away, to an end; e. g. vergehen, pass away; versinken, sink away; verbluten, bleed to death. Sometimes it means amiss, as in verführen, lead astray; verkennen, misjudge.

f. Zer means asunder, in pieces; e. g. zerspringen, burst asunder; zerbrechen, break in pieces.

209. Conjugation of Inseparable Compounds. This does not differ in principle from the conjugation of a simple verb. The following synopsis of the inflection of bekommen, to get, conjugated with haben, and verreisen, to depart, conjugated with sein, will suffice for illustration.

PRESENT

Ind.: ich bekomme, du bekommst etc.; ich verreise, du verreisest etc.

Subj.: ich bekomme, du bekommest etc.; ich verreise, du verreisest etc.

PRETERIT

Ind.: ich bekam, du bekamst etc.; ich verreiste, du verreistest etc.

Subj.: ich bekäme, du bekämeest etc.; ich verreiste, du verreistest etc.

PERFECT

Ind.: ich habe bekommen, du hast bekommen etc.; ich bin verreist, du bist verreist etc.

Subj.: ich habe bekommen, du habest bekommen etc.; ich sei verreist, du sei(e)st verreist etc.

PLUPERFECT

Ind.: ich hatte bekommen, du hattest bekommen etc.; ich war verreist, du warst verreist etc.

Subj.: ich hätte bekommen, du hättest bekommen etc.; ich wäre verreist, du wärest verreist etc.

FUTURE

Ind.: ich werde bekommen, du wirst bekommen etc.; ich werde verreisen, du wirst verreisen etc.

Subj.: ich werde bekommen, du werdest bekommen etc.; ich werde verreisen, du werdest verreisen etc.

FUTURE PERFECT

- Ind.*: ich werde bekommen haben, du wirst bekommen haben etc.; ich werde verreist sein, du wirst verreist sein etc.
Subj.: ich werde bekommen haben, du werdest bekommen haben etc.; ich werde verreist sein, du werdest verreist sein etc.

CONDITIONAL

- Pres.*: ich würde bekommen, ich würde verreisen etc.
Perf.: ich würde bekommen haben etc.; ich würde verreist sein etc.

(And so on. The remaining forms can easily be supplied.)

1. Observe that the perfect participle of a ge-compound may be like that of the simple verb. It can only be told from the connection whether such a form as gehört comes from hören, to hear, or from gehören, to belong to. There are many such cases.

210. The Separable Prefixes. These are much more numerous than the inseparable. The list embraces (1) a dozen or more common prepositions, as aus, mit, über; (2) a like number of adverbs of position and direction, such as ab, off, empor, up, zusammen, together; (3) the particles her, toward, and hin, away from, together with their very numerous compounds.

1. The separable prefixes are simply adverbs which in certain forms are written with the verb they modify as one word. The German says come in, kommen Sie herein, or he went away, er ging fort, just as English does; the difference is that English recognizes no such verbs as intocome, away-togo, corresponding to hereinzukommen and fortzugehen.

2. The particles her and hin require special attention. Her means toward the speaker, or the speaker's point of view; hin is its opposite. Thus kommen Sie her, come here; wo gehen Sie hin? where are you going? kommen Sie herauf, come up (the speaker is above); gehen Sie hinauf, go up (the speaker is below); er schwamm zu mir herüber, he swam across to me; er schwamm hinüber, he swam across (to the other side). But the speaker may take the actor's point of view without reference to his own; thus er blickte hinauf, he looked up (from where he stood); er zog das Kind zu sich herauf, he drew the child up to him.

211. Conjugation of Separable Compounds: a'nfangen, to begin; a'breißen, to depart. Principal parts: a'nfangen, fing an, a'ngefangen; a'breißen, reiße ab, a'bgereift.

PRESENT

Ind.: ich fange an, du fängst an etc.; ich reise ab, du reiseſt ab etc.

Subj.: ich fange an, du fangeſt an etc.; ich reiße ab, du reißeſt ab etc.

PRETERIT

Ind.: ich fing an, du fingſt an etc.; ich reiße ab, du reißeſt ab etc.

Subj.: ich finge an, du fingeſt an etc.; ich reiße ab, du reißeſt ab etc.

PERFECT

Ind.: ich habe angefangen, du haſt angefangen etc.; ich bin abgereift, du biſt abgereift etc.

Subj.: ich habe angefangen, du habeſt angefangen etc.; ich ſei abgereift, du ſei(e)ſt abgereift etc.

PLUPERFECT

Ind.: ich hatte angefangen, du hatteſt angefangen etc.; ich war abgereift, du warſt abgereift etc.

Subj.: ich hätte angefangen, du hätteſt angefangen etc.; ich wäre abgereift, du wäreſt abgereift etc.

FUTURE

Ind.: ich werde anfangen, du wirſt anfangen etc.; ich werde abreifen, du wirſt abreifen etc.

Subj.: ich werde anfangen, du werdeſt anfangen etc.; ich werde abreifen, du werdeſt abreifen etc.

FUTURE PERFECT

Ind.: ich werde angefangen haben, du wirst angefangen haben, etc.; ich werde abgereift sein, du wirst abgereift sein etc.

Subj.: ich werde angefangen haben, du werdest angefangen haben etc.; ich werde abgereift sein, du werdest abgereift sein etc.

CONDITIONAL

Pres.: ich würde anfangen, du würdest anfangen etc.; ich würde abreisen, du würdest abreisen etc.

Perf.: ich würde angefangen haben, du würdest angefangen haben etc.; ich würde abgereift sein, du würdest abgereift sein etc.

IMPERATIVE

fange (du) an etc.; reise (du) ab etc.

INFINITIVE

Present: an(zu)fangen, ab(zu)reisen.

Perfect: angefangen (zu) haben, abgereift (zu) sein.

PARTICIPLE

Present: anfangend, abreisend.

Perfect: angefangen, abgereift.

212. Doubtful Prefixes. The four prepositions durch, über, um, unter and the adverb wieder enter into composition sometimes as separable, sometimes as inseparable prefixes; thus we have durchlesen (laß durch, durchgelesen), to read thru (thoroly), and durchle'sen (durchla's, durchle'sen, to peruse; ü'berse'hen (se'hte über, ü'berge'set), to cross, and ü'berse'hen (ü'berse'hte, ü'berse'ht), to translate.

1. To this list are sometimes added the prepositions hinter, behind, and wider, against, but the compounds of these are in reality always inseparable. The reason for not giving them under § 208 is that they belong to the class of prepositions and in noun-compounds may bear the accent; e. g. Hi'nterhalt, ambuscade; Wi'derspruch, contradiction (but hinterha'lten, hold back, and widerspre'chen, contradict).

2. The prefixes miß, amiss, wrongly, and voll, fully, are regularly inseparable; e. g. mißha'ndeln, to maltreat, mißha'n-delte, mißha'ndelt; vollfü'hren, to complete, vollfü'hrte, voll-fü'hrt. But miß is sometimes treated as separable in the infinitive and participle (mi'ßzuhandeln, mi'ßgehandelt). Formations like gemi'ßhandelt, as if the verb were not compounded at all, also occur. Voll is separable only when used as an adjective in the literal sense; e. g. er goß das Glas voll, he poured the glass full.

213. Composition with Nouns and Adjectives. There are not a few cases in which a noun or adjective or adverbial phrase, from constant association with a verb, has come to form a compound with it; e. g. tei'lnehmen, to take part; wa'hr sagen, to prophesy; auseina'nder setzen, to explain.

1. Compounds of this kind are treated in one of two ways: either the first element is regarded as a separable prefix (a noun losing its initial capital), or else it forms with the verb a new verb-stem which has regular weak inflection. Thus from teilnehmen we have nahm teil, teilgenommen, but from wahrsagen, wahrsagte, gewahrsagt.

214. Verbs Doubly Compounded. An inseparable compound may be still further compounded with a separable prefix; e. g. bei'behalten (behielt bei, beibehalten), to retain. Such formations omit ge in the participle, since two unaccented prefixes are never permitted to come together.

1. The only prefix that ever precedes a verb already separably compounded is wieder, as in wiederhe'rstellen, to restore. The preterit is written stellte wieder her, the participle wiederhe'rgestellt.

215. Rule of Order VIII: Separable Compounds. In the simple tenses of a separable compound the prefix comes last if the order is normal or inverted, but next to the last (being then written with the verb as one word) if the order is dependent; e. g. das Konzert fängt um 8 Uhr an, the concert begins at 8 o'clock; wenn das Konzert um 8 Uhr anfängt, if the concert begins at 8 o'clock; da die Gesellschaft ihm nicht mehr zusagte, he returned to the city.

EXERCISE 41

READING LESSON: COMPOUND VERBS

Lieber Herr Müller! Ihr freundlicher Brief vom 15. dieses Monats ist kürzlich hier angekommen, und ich spreche Ihnen dafür meinen herzlichsten Dank aus.

Sie fragen, wo ich mich in der nächsten Zeit¹ aufhalten werde, und ob ich meine Studien in Deutschland noch weiter fortzusetzen gedenke. Nun, beide Fragen sind schwer zu beantworten,² denn alles kommt³ auf die Wünsche meiner Eltern an. Ich habe das deutsche Leben liebgewonnen und würde sehr gern noch einige Monate hier verweilen; aber mein Vater ist, wie Sie wissen, kein reicher Mann, und es sollen⁴ jetzt schwere Zeiten über Amerika hereingebrochen sein. Mit jeder Post erwarte ich einen Brief von ihm, worin er mir, wie ich hoffe, seine Lage genau auseinandersetzen wird, und ich werde mich dann natürlich seinen Wünschen unterwerfen.

Da ich vielleicht bald werde abreisen müssen, habe ich indessen die Rolle des Reisenden wiederaufgenommen. Gerade jetzt halte ich mich auf einige Zeit in Köln auf. Das Interessanteste, was diese Stadt darbietet, ist natürlich der große Dom, dessen Bau schon im 13. Jahrhundert angefangen, dann wieder mehrmals unterbrochen und erst 1880 vollendet wurde. Der Dom macht auf mich bei wiederholtem Besuche⁵ einen stets gewaltigeren Eindruck; aber ich werde mich auf keine Beschreibung desselben einlassen, da ich Ihnen gewiß nichts Neues mitteilen könnte.

1. The train arrives at 5 o'clock p.m. 2. The performance began at 7 o'clock. 3. The performance has already begun. 4. The train has not yet arrived. 5. We stayed two days in the little village and then continued ⁶ our journey. 6. I explained the situation to him ⁷ and told him ⁷ the latest ⁸ news. 7. The conversation was interrupted, but we resumed it the following day. 8. I submitted the idea to a thoro test.⁷ 9. Where do you intend to stay during the summer? 10. I have just answered the letter and expressed my thanks. 11. The picture represents a young man who is just departing for the Old World. 12. How long shall you stay in the city? 13. We arrived toward ⁹ evening, but our friends had already departed. 14. He repeated his thanks. 15. We had tarried too long on the way; the performance had already begun and the doors were closed.

NOTES. — ¹ in der nächſten Zeit, in the near future. — ² beantworten; the construction requires a transitive verb, whence antworten, which is not transitive, could not be used. —³ kommt . . . auf . . . an; ankommen auf (with acc.) = to depend upon. —⁴ es sollen, are said, it is said that (191, 5). —⁵ bei wiederholtem Besuche, with (each) repeated visit. —⁶ and then continued, und setzten dann, not dann setzten. —⁷ Use the dat. —⁸ the latest, die neuesten. —⁹ toward, gegen.

THE PARTICLES *

216. The Adverb. Adverbs modify verbs, adjectives and other adverbs. As in English, an adverb may also be connected directly with a noun, or may stand alone in the predicate; e. g. der Mann dort, the man yonder; die Zeit ist um, the time is up.

1. Some adverbs, e. g. wohl, halb, are primitive words used only as adverbs; others, e. g. auf, um, are primitive words used also as prepositions; still others are formed by means of a suffix; e. g. freilich, to be sure, from frei; blindlings, blindly, from blind. Others, again, are case-forms of nouns, with or without a modifier; e. g. teils, partly, from Teil; größenteils, in great part; i. e. großen Teils.

a. But the great mass of adverbs are simply adjectives used in the stem-form; e. g. gut, well; frei, freely. There is thus no need of a suffix, like ly in English, having the special function of forming adverbs from adjectives.

2. An adjective used as an adverb is usually capable of comparison, the comparative ending in er, the superlative being the phrase with am or with aufs (§ 112); thus the adverb gut compares gut, besser, am besten or aufs beste.

a. Adverbs which are not used as adjectives are, in general, not subject to comparison; but there are a few exceptions.

* Only a brief and general account of the uninflected parts of speech is given here, all details being reserved for Part II. Since particles of every kind have been freely introduced in the preceding reading lessons and colloquies, it is to be presumed that the essential facts relating to them are already pretty well understood.

217. The Preposition. Prepositions govern cases, thus forming phrases that have adverbial or adjectival force. There are eight prepositions that always govern the accusative, sixteen that always govern the dative, and nine that govern the accusative or dative with difference of meaning. There are then some thirty or more that regularly govern the genitive, tho some of them may take the dative without difference of meaning. For lists see § 376-7.

1. The prepositions that govern the dative and accusative take the latter case when motion is implied and the phrase answers the question 'whither?' If no motion is implied, and the phrase answers the question 'where?' they take the dative; e.g. er geht ans Fenster, he goes to the window; but er steht am Fenster, he stands by the window.

a. There are, however, some cases not provided for by this rule; e.g. über in the sense of concerning (neither rest nor motion being implied) always takes the accusative. For fuller information consult the list in Part II.

2. A preposition, as its name implies, regularly comes before the noun it governs, but there are a few that may come after; e.g. one may say meiner Ansicht nach, or nach meiner Ansicht, in my opinion.

3. The three prepositions um, in the sense of in order (to denote purpose), ohne, without, and statt (or anstatt), instead, may govern the infinitive with zu.

218. The Conjunction. Conjunctions connect sentences. They are divided into three classes, as follows, the classification being of great importance on account of its bearing upon the subject of word-order:

1. The general connectives, which do not subordinate the sentence nor modify adverbially the following verb. They are und, and; aber (also allein and sondern, all meaning but); den, for, and oder, or. These words do not affect the order.

2. The adverbial conjunctions, which, coming first in a clause, combine the functions of a connective (conjunction) and adverbial modifier. They are very numerous. Examples are also, so, accordingly; nun, now; doch, but, still; darauf, thereupon. These words cause inversion; e.g. er ist reich, doch hat er wenig Verstand, he is rich, but he has little sense.

a. The words of this class are strictly adverbs and not conjunctions at all, but they partake of the nature of conjunctions in that they show the logical connection of sentences. They do not always come first in the clause, and when they do not they cause no inversion.

3. The subordinating conjunctions, which subordinate the sentence they introduce and require the dependent order. These are also quite numerous, examples being daß, that; ob, whether; da, since; wenn, if; obgleich, altho. For a list see §381.

219. The Interjection. Interjections do not enter into the syntactical structure of the sentence, but are independent expressions of feeling. They are usually classified according to the emotions they express, as joy, pain, surprise or the like.

1. But certain interjections are sometimes accompanied by a case-form of a noun; e.g. o des Elends! oh, the misery!

EXERCISE 42

READING LESSON: AN ANECDOTE

Es trug sich einmal zu, daß die Frau eines armen Schusters gefährlich erkrankte. Der Mann hatte nichts, womit er einen Arzt bezahlen konnte, und befand sich daher in großer Not. Er kannte zwar einen geschickten Arzt, der in einem schönen Hause ihm gegenüber¹ wohnte, aber er wußte, daß dieser ein großes Honorar verlangen würde. Lang und traurig überlegte er die Sache bei sich und kam endlich auf folgenden Gedanken.

Er ging nämlich zu dem Arzte hinüber, setzte ihm den Fall auseinander und bat ihn, seine Frau zu besuchen. „Haben Sie denn etwas, um mich zu bezahlen?“ fragte der Arzt. „Leider nicht viel,“ antwortete der Schuster; „ich habe nur zwanzig Taler,² die ich gerade auf einen solchen Krankheitsfall wie diesen³ aufgespart habe.“ (Das war nun erlogen, aber, wie der arme Mann dachte, galt es das Leben seiner Frau.) „Es ist alles, was ich in der Welt besitze, und diese Summe biete ich Ihnen an, wenn Sie meine Frau kurieren.“ „Und wenn ich sie nicht kuriere?“ versetzte der Doktor. „Nun, wenn Sie sich ihrer annehmen wollen,“ erwiderte der Schuster, „so gebe ich Ihnen das Geld, gleichviel ob Sie sie kurieren oder umbringen.“

Der Doktor war jetzt zufrieden und unternahm die Behandlung der Kranken, die aber endlich dem Tode verfiel. Bald darauf verlangte er die zwanzig Taler. „Haben Sie meine Frau kuriert?“ fragte der Schuster. „Leider nicht,“ antwortete der Doktor. „Und haben Sie sie denn umgebracht?“ fuhr jener fort. Der Doktor mußte natürlich behaupten, daß er sie auch nicht umgebracht habe.⁴ „Also bin ich Ihnen doch wohl nichts schuldig,“ sagte der Schuster, und damit war das Geschäft abgeschlossen.

VOCABULARY

a'bschließen, v. s. close up.
 a'nbieten, v. s. offer.
 a'nnehmen (sich, gen.) v. s. interest one's self in, take charge of.
 au'ffsparen, v. w. save up [spare].
 die Behandlung, w. treatment.
 besitzen, v. s. possess.
 bezahlen, v. w. pay.
 dahe'r, adv. therefore.
 erkranken, v. w. sicken, be taken sick.

 gelten, v. s. have at stake, involve.
 geschickt, adj. skillful.

gleichvie'l, adv. no matter, just the same.
 hinü'bergehen, v. s. go over.
 das Honora'r, *s.*² fee.
 kurieren, v. w. cure.
 die Not, *s.*² need, distress.
 schuldig, adj. indebted.
 der Schuster, *s.*¹ cobbler.
 der Taler, *s.*¹ thaler, dollar.
 traurig, adj. sad, sorrowful.
 überle'gen, v. w. ponder, consider.
 u'mbringen, v. w. kill.
 unterne'hmen, v. s. undertake.
 verfallen, v. s. fall a prey.
 versetzen, v. w. answer.
 zu'tragen (sich), v. s. happen.

NOTES. —¹ ihm gegenüber; see § 217, 2. —² Taler; Eng. dollar is not cognate with Ger. Taler, but derived from it. The Taler has had very different values, but may be thought of here as about = $0.75. —³ wie diesen; in apposition with Krankheitsfall. But dieser, i. e. wie dieser es ist, would also be correct. —⁴ umgebracht habe; subjunctive of indirect discourse. An indirect statement generally keeps in German the tense that would be used in the direct form, but employs the subjunctive mode. The doctor would say in the direct form: ich habe sie auch nicht umgebracht. The pret. of bringen is brachte (§ 178).

RECAPITULATION OF THE RULES OF WORD-ORDER

Rule I: The Inverted Order. If a sentence begins with any other element than the subject, the subject must follow the verb; e. g. da ist er, there he is; das verstehe ich nicht, that I do not understand; schön ist sie nicht, beautiful she is not.

1. This order, verb before subject, is called 'inverted,' the 'normal' order being subject before verb, as in er ist da; ich verstehe das nicht.

2. Inversion occurs in English, e. g. in said I, great is Mammon; but while it is somewhat rare in English, it is exceedingly common in German. German tends to begin the sentence with that element which is most prominent in the speaker's thought; and when this is done and the word so put first does not happen to be the subject, inversion must follow. In translating do not imitate the German inverted order at the expense of English idiom.

3. The general connectives und, aber and denn constitute an important exception to the rule above stated. They do not cause inversion.

Rule II: Position of Adverbs. In the normal order an adverb must not come between the subject and the verb; thus I hardly know, ich weiß kaum; he never goes to church, er geht nie in die Kirche.

1. An adverb of time usually takes precedence of other adverbs; thus I knew him very well at that time, ich kannte ihn damals sehr gut; he is usually at home evenings, er ist abends gewöhnlich zu Hause.

Rule III: The Dependent Order. In a dependent sentence the verb, if it is in a simple tense and so consists of one word, comes at the end; e. g. Wissen Sie, ob der Doctor zu Hause ist? Do you know whether the doctor is at home? Erinnern Sie sich, wo Sie gestern zu dieser Zeit waren? Do you remember where you were yesterday at this time.

1. This rule covers all sentences introduced by a subordinating conjunction (§ 381), a relative pronoun or particle, or an indirect interrogative.

2. Subordinate sentences of every kind are usually set off by commas.

Rule IV: Compound Tenses. In an independent sentence the uninflected part of a compound tense, that is, the infinitive or participle, comes last; in a dependent sentence the inflected auxiliary comes last and is immediately preceded by the uninflected part. Thus we have:

a. In the normal order: ich habe ihn seit gestern nicht gesehen, I have not seen him since yesterday; Sie werden mich heute abend zu Hause finden, you will find me at home this evening; es würde mir große Freude gemacht haben, it would have given me great pleasure.

b. In the inverted order: seit gestern habe ich ihn nicht gesehen; heute abend werden Sie mich zu Hause finden; mir würde es große Freude gemacht haben.

c. In the dependent order: ich weiß gewiß, daß ich ihn seit gestern nicht gesehen habe, I know for certain that I have not seen him since yesterday; es ist wahrscheinlich, daß Sie mich heute abend zu Hause finden werden, it is probable that you will find me at home this evening ; ich versichere Sie, daß es mir große Freude gemacht haben würde, I assure you that it would have given me great pleasure.

Rule V: Dependent Infinitive. In an independent sentence a dependent infinitive, with or without zu, comes at the end; e.g. ich habe nichts mit der Sache zu tun, I have nothing to do with the affair ; ich hörte ihn gestern dieselbe Bemerkung machen, I heard him make the same remark yesterday.

1. An infinitive dependent upon a verb which itself stands in the dependent order generally comes just before the verb if unmodified, but after it if limited by an object or an adverb; e.g. obwohl ich ihn zu antworten gebeten hatte, tho I had asked him to answer ; but obwohl ich ihn gebeten hatte, meine Frage zu beantworten, tho I had asked him to answer my question.

Rule VI: Special Case of Dependent Order. In a dependent sentence containing a compound tense of a modal auxiliary in connection with an infinitive, the participle of the modal auxiliary comes last, next to that the infinitive, and just before that the inflected auxiliary; e.g. ich weiß gewiß, daß ich so etwas nie hätte tun können, I know for certain that I could never have done such a thing ; das ist ein Rätsel, welches niemand bis jetzt hat lösen können, that is a riddle which no one has hitherto been able to solve.

Rule VII: Inversion after Subordinate Clause. Any subordinate clause preceding the principal verb of a complex sentence causes inversion; e.g. wenn ich an Ihrer Stelle wäre, (so) würde ich zu Hause bleiben, if I were in your place, I should remain at home ; obwohl er Geld hat, (so) hat er doch wenig Verstand, tho he has money he has little sense ; damit er Ruhe haben könnte, zog er sich aufs Land zurück, that he might have peace he retired into the country.

1. Observe that this is only a special case under the general rule of inversion (§ 87). The subordinate clause always has the force either of an adverb, an adjective or a substantive; and such an element preceding the verb causes inversion.

a. But the subordinate clause may be itself the subject, in which case there is no room for inversion; e. g. daß er recht hat, ist klar, that he is right is clear.

2. The adverbial force of a preceding clause is often resumed by means of an adverb, usually so, placed just before the main verb (see the first two examples above). This so should not be translated.

Rule VIII: Separable Compounds. In the simple tenses of a separable compound the prefix comes last if the order is normal or inverted, but next to the last (being then written with the verb as one word) if the order is dependent; e. g. das Konzert fängt um 8 Uhr an, the concert begins at 8 o'clock; wenn das Konzert um 8 Uhr anfängt, if the concert begins at 8 o'clock; da die Gesellschaft ihm nicht mehr zusagte, kehrte er nach der Stadt zurück, as the company no longer suited him he returned to the city.

PART SECOND

INTRODUCTORY

220. Historical Development of German. Altho this grammar deals only with modern literary German, it will be necessary to refer now and then to older and to dialectic usages; for which reason the following brief statements are made at this point:

1. The earliest stage of the German language, as seen in those literary records that antedate the 12th century, is known as 'Old' German (Altdeutsch). The Old German of South Germany is further known as 'High' (Althochdeutsch), that of North Germany as 'Low' (Altniederdeutsch).

2. The second stage, as seen in those writings that date from the period 1100–1500, is known as 'Middle' German, the qualifications 'High' and 'Low' (Mittelhochdeutsch, Mittelniederdeutsch) having the same meaning as before.

3. 'Modern' German (Neuhochdeutsch) is usually dated from the time of Martin Luther (1483–1546). Thru the momentum of the Reformation and the force of Luther's genius the language in which he wrote gradually developed into the standard literary language of all Germany. In the 18th century this language entered upon a new stage thru the influence of the great classical writers. Their language is that of to-day, except in some minor details, while that of Luther is much more archaic.

a. This book deals, then, with late modern German — say the language of the last one hundred and fifty years. For the earlier periods consult Grimm's Deutsche Grammatik, 1822-40, 4 vols. ; of later and smaller works, Braune's Althochdeutsche Grammatik, Paul's Mittelhochdeutsche Grammatik, Kluge's Von Luther bis Lessing, Blatz's Neuhochdeutsche Grammatik mit Berücksichtigung, etc., and Brandt's German Grammar.

221. The Literary Language and the Dialects. From the time of Luther the literary language (Schriftsprache) has developed side by side with the dialects, influencing them and influenced by them. It is now the language of books and journals, of schools and courts, and of social intercourse among the educated. But the dialects, often referred to, both individually and collectively, as the Volkssprache, are still used by a large portion of the population.

1. Owing to the fact that the Schriftsprache was not originally and has never since become identical with the dialect of any one locality, but has been developed and enriched by writers from all parts of Germany, who have drawn more or less upon the resources of their provincial vernacular, it is not now possible to distinguish sharply in all cases between that which is standard German and that which is dialect.

2. The rules of grammar as presented in the following pages must be understood as referring primarily to literary prose. Poetry, subject as it is to the constraints of rhythm, presents frequent deviations from normal linguistic usage. Again, prose itself may be, like poetry, either stately and dignified, or quaint and archaic, or it may reflect the free-and-easy language of common life. The most of the deviations from normal usage, so far as they are not simply improprieties, are either poetic, dialectic, archaic or colloquial.

a. An excellent historical treatise upon the relation of literary German to the dialects is Socin's Schriftsprache und Dialekte.

222. Usage and Correctness. Good German is that which is used by good writers and speakers. There is no court of appeal higher than firmly established usage. The chief function of the grammarian, therefore, is to describe and explain the facts as they are.

1. At the same time every language has its laws, its principles, its historical tendencies; and that which is contrary to any of these may properly be put under the ban by the grammarian and pronounced 'incorrect' or 'bad' — at least until the bad has prevailed and thereby become good. Thus grammar may furnish a criterion by which to judge conflicting usages or new inventions that have not yet been generally adopted. It is well to remember, however, that the most of the usages condemned as bad can be found in good literature. The classics teem with 'mistakes' that defy the grammarians.

a. On the relation between the facts of usage and the dogmas of grammar consult Andresen's Sprachgebrauch und Sprachrichtigkeit im Deutschen, Keller's Deutscher Antibarbarus, Wustmann's Allerhand Sprachdummheiten.

THE USE OF THE ARTICLE

223. The Contractions of der with a preceding word grow out of its lack of stress. The forms that suffer apheresis and unite with a preceding preposition are (de)m, (da)s and (de)r, the prepositions an, in and von losing their n before m.

1. The usual contractions are am, beim, im, vom, zum, zur (the only one with der), an's, auf's, durch's, für's, in's and um's. Less common are the dissyllabic forms außerm, hinterm, ü berm, unterm, hinter's, über's, unter's. All are best written without an apostrophe.

2. In familiar language the contractions are preferred to the full forms, except when der has determinative or particularizing force; e. g. im Glauben fest, firm in (the) faith; but fest in dem Glauben, daß der Mensch unsterblich sei, in the faith that man is immortal; am Ufer des Rheins, on the banks of the Rhine; but an dem Ufer, wo der Wein wächst, on the bank where the vine grows. Even in such cases contraction may occur; e. g. vom Rechte, daß mit uns geboren ist (G.), of the right that is born with us.

3. Contractions with a dissyllabic preposition, also with den (both acc. and dat.) and others not mentioned above, are common in talk; e. g. untern Bäumen; widers Recht; aufm Berg; mitm Vater; durchn Wald; durchs (= durch des) Feindes Lager.

4. The written forms an, in, sometimes stand for an'n, in'n, i. e. an den, in den; e. g. setz' dich in Sessel (G.), seat yourself in the settle; ihr werft sie dem Feind an Kopf (G.), at the head of the trooper. In such cases there is no omission of the article, the n being pronounced long.

5. The shortened article may attach itself to other parts of speech than prepositions; e. g. hab' ich ihm's (= das) Bad gesegnet (S.), blessed the bath for him; ich will gleich's Essen zurecht machen (G.), I will get breakfast at once; er soll'n Vater rufen (Gr.), he is to call father.

224. Omission of der. The definite article is a weakened demonstrative. Its usual function is to mark a noun as definite or known. When the noun is not definite, or when its definiteness is shown in some other way, e. g. by its meaning (as in the case of proper names), or by some modifier, or by the general connection, der is not ordinarily used, the noun having either ein or no article at all.

1. To a great extent, therefore, the use and the omission of der coincide closely with the use and omission of the in English. Thus der is regularly omitted with a noun limited by a preceding genitive or possessive; e. g. des Landes Wohl, the land's welfare, but das Wohl des Landes, the welfare of the land; der Güter höchstes (but das höchste der Güter), the highest of blessings.

a. In such case the limiting genitive itself must have the article, but exceptions occur in poetry; e. g. um Grabes Nacht (G.), about the night of the grave; wandelt an Ufers Grün (S.), on the green of the shore.

2. Again, both languages often omit the definite article in set phrases consisting of two nouns connected by and, or where there is an enumeration of objects belonging to the same category; e. g. über Stock und Stein, over stock and stone; durch Gebirg und Thal, thru mountain and dale; vergeht mir Hören, Sehn und Denken (G.), hearing, seeing and thinking forsake me.

3. In other cases, however, the idiom of the two languages does not correspond, der being omitted where English employs the. Thus:

a. In certain prepositional phrases; e. g. gen Osten, toward the east; nach Süden, toward the south; nach alter Weise, in the old way; in deutscher (or in der deutschen) Sprache, in the German language. For the converse of these cases, der used but the omitted, see § 229.

b. Before certain words of formal or technical reference; e. g. folgender Bericht, the following report; gedachter Umstand, the above-mentioned circumstance. So also Überbringer, the bearer; Inhaber, the holder; Unterzeichnet, the undersigned; erst, the former; lest, the latter; obig, the above; befagt, erwähnt, obgemeldet, the aforesaid, and others.

c. In the predicate sometimes before Sache, affair, Grund, ground, Veranlassung, occasion, and some others; e. g. Geben ist Sache des Reichen (G.), giving is the affair of the rich; (der) Grund dieser Annahme ist folgender, the ground of this assumption is the following.

225. Der with Proper Names. The rule is, as in English: No article unless the name is preceded by an adjective; e. g. im Jahre 1770 ging Goethe nach Straßburg, wo er Herder kennen lernte, in the year 1770 Goethe went to Strassburg, where he became acquainted with Herder. But one would say der junge Goethe, nach dem damals französischen Straßburg, den schon berühmten Herder.

a. Such phrases as little Karl, old Fritz, young Germany, Brown Bess, need the article in German; thus, der kleine Karl; der alte Fritz; das junge Deutschland; die braune Fisel. But jung Siegfried, Klein Ro-land, and the like (with uninflected adjective), occur in songs.

1. But a 'familiar' der often stands before the names of friends, neighbors, acquaintances, etc.; e. g. da ist der Tell (S.), there is Tell; wer ist der Weislingen (G.)? who is Weislingen? The usage is common in the classics where the speakers belong to the common people.

a. The use of der before Christian names (except where it is needed to show case) is South-German; e. g. der Wilhelm (die Berta) ist nicht zu Hause, Wilhelm (Berta) is not at home. Here the North-German prefers to omit the article, tho he may use it to show case, as in ich gab es dem Wilhelm (der Berta).

2. So also der is used before the names of well-known historical and fictitious characters, especially with the oblique cases of names that are not inflected; e. g. kennst du den Faust (G.)? knowest thou Faust? die Gedichte des Horaz, the poems of Horace; er spielt gern den Hamlet, likes to play Hamlet; ich ziehe Wagner dem Beethoven vor, I prefer Wagner to Beethoven.

a. The converse of this process (treating a well-known proper name as a common noun) is seen when a common noun, losing its article, becomes, as it were, a proper noun; e. g. Knabe sprach: ich breche dich; Röslein sprach: ich steche dich (G.); boy said: I'll pluck thee; little rose said: I'll prick thee; Morgenstund hat Gold im Mund, morning hour has gold in its mouth. So also in stage directions; e. g. Fischerknabe fährt in einem Rahn (S.), (the) fisherboy is rowing a boat.

b. Proper names used appellatively take an article, as in English; e. g. die Venus von Milo, the Venus of Milo; die Shakespeare und die Goethe erscheinen nicht oft, the Shakespeares and the Goethes do not appear often.

3. Names of countries are mostly neuter and take no article unless preceded by an inflected adjective; e. g. Spanien ist mein Heimatland, Spain is my native land; ganz Spanien, all Spain; but das schöne Spanien, beautiful Spain.

a. On the other hand, the article is regularly used with feminine names of countries, and with a few that are not feminine. Some of these take, or may take, the article in English. Such are:

das (or der) Elsaß, Alsatia .	die Normandie, Normandie die Campagne, the Campagna	der Peloponnes, the Peloponnesus die Gascogne, Gascony	die Pfalz, the Palatinate die Krim, the Crimea	die Schweiz, Switzerland die Lausitz, Lusatia	die Tartarei, Tartary die Levante, the Levant	die Türkei, Turkey die Moldau, Moldavia	die Walachei, Wallachia and others in et. So also der Breisgau, the Breisgau, and others in gau; die Neumark, the Neumark, and others in mark; die Wetterau, the Wetterau, and others in au; das Vogtland, the Vogtland, die Niederlande, the Netherlands, and others in land, lande. For das Tirol, (the) Tirol, heard among the people, the simple Tirol is better.

b. Of names of cities only der Haag, the Hague, has the article.

c. Names of mountains take the article, even those that are without it in English; e. g. der Sinai, Mt. Sinai; der Vesuv, Mt. Vesuvius.

4. Names of seasons, months, days of the week and streets take the article; e. g. der Sommer ist hin (S.), summer is past; in des Maies holden Tagen (U.), in the lovely days of May; am Mittwoch, on Wednesday; in der Friedrichstraße, on Friedrich Street.

a. But the names of the months omit der in phrases giving the time of the month; e. g. Anfang März, at the beginning of March; Ende April, at the end of April; am 6ten Juni, on the 6th of June. So too in certain prepositional phrases; e. g. seit März, since March, bis October, till October.

226. The Generic Article. With abstract nouns, nouns of material and of class, verbals in en and some others, der is used whenever the word is taken in a general and not in any specific or concrete sense; e. g. es lebe die Freiheit! long live freedom! long live wine! die Kunst ist lang, das Leben kurz (G.), art is long, life short; der Mensch ist aufs nächste mit den Tieren verwandt (G.), most closely related to (the) animals; hoch über der Zeit und dem Raume (S.), high above time and space; das Schaudern ist der Menschheit bestes Teil (G.), feeling the thrill of awe is the best part of human nature.

1. But real and apparent exceptions to this rule are common, especially in poetry. When the article is omitted it will usually be found that the noun is not used in a perfectly general way, but perhaps partitively, to denote some of the quality or substance. Or it may characterize an individual or a situation, and so lose its generic quality. Or the omission may be in the interest of conciseness; e. g. das Tier hat auch Vernunft (S.), the brute has reason too; was hilft euch Schönheit (G.)? of what use to you is beauty? Daß sein ist Pflicht (G.), existence is duty.

227. Der for a Possessive. Der may take the place of a possessive when the connection shows clearly who the possessor is. The usage occurs mostly in referring to a part of the body or clothing; e. g. er setzt die Schale an den Mund (G.), he puts the cup to his mouth; hatte Bänder auf dem Kleide (G.), had ribbons on his coat.

a. Where the possessor is denoted by a dat. of interest (§ 259), the dat. together with the article is equivalent to the English possessive; e. g. der Kerl sprengt mir die Ohren (G.), is splitting my ears; wenn sie dir in die Augen sehn (G.), when they look into your eyes; er zerbricht sich den Kopf, he cudgels his brain.

1. Very often, however, the possessive will be found in such cases, just as in English; e. g. mein armer Kopf ist mir verrückt (G.), my poor head is crazed. Sometimes the meter will govern the choice; e. g. in jeden Quarf begräbt er seine Nase (G.), buries his nose in every pile of dirt.

2. The use of der before Vater, Mutter, Schwester, Better, etc., is South-German, but very common in the classics; e. g. das muß Sie nicht der Mutter sagen (G.), you must not tell your mother that. The North-German prefers a possessive, as in English. A possessive should always be used when it would not otherwise be clear whose father, sister, lover, etc., is meant.

228. The Distributive der occurs (chiefly in expressions of price) with the sense of a, an, per; e. g. es kostet zwei Mark das Pfund, it costs two marks a pound. So also one may say dreimal die Woche (or in der Woche, or wöchentlich), three times a week.

229. Prepositional Phrases — a highly idiomatic element of every language — present numerous peculiarities in the use of the article which must be learned by observation. The following examples will illustrate: in die Kirche gehen, to go to church; in die Schule gehen, to go to school; auf der Schule, at school; in der Schule, in school; zum Beispiel, for example; zum Teil, in part; eine zur Frau nehmen, to take one to wife, for a wife; einen zum Präsidenten wählen, to elect one president; im Himmel, in heaven (but in the sky); in der Hölle, in hell; zur Hölle, to hell; im Paradiese, in paradise; zur Gesundheit! here's to your health; zur glücklichen Reise! here's to a pleasant journey!

230. The Use of ein. The indefinite article is the numeral ein weakened by loss of stress. It precedes all other modifiers of its noun except welch, was für and solch, and it may precede solch (§ 135, 1).

1. In talk the forms of ein often suffer apheresis of ei or even of the entire syllable ein; e. g. die stellen Flug 'ne (= eine) Vorhut aus (S.), put out a picket; du bist 'n (= ein) braver Knabe, a good boy; es war mal (= einmal) ein Kaiser, there was once an emperor.

2. The use of ein corresponds in the main very closely to that of a, an (but see §§ 228, 229, 231). Thus, just as in English, it may go with an abstract noun or a noun of material to denote a particular case or a concrete object; e. g. eine Freude, a joy; eine Schönheit, a beauty; ein Glas, a glass. So, too, it may go with a proper name, having then the sense of one such as; e. g. das wäre einem Schiller unmöglich, that would be impossible for a Schiller.

a. With verbal nouns ein often serves to emphasize the vehemence, the frequent repetition, or the long continuance of an action; e. g. das ist ein Stürmen (G.), that is a storming, i. e. how we go storming; das war ein Spazieren (G.), that was a walking, i. e. they were always walking together; nun soll es an ein Schädelspalten (G.), now we'll proceed to a cracking of skulls.

231. The Omission of ein. In the predicate, and also after als, ein is apt to be omitted before an unmodified noun denoting vocation, rank, character, station in life, less often before one denoting nationality; e. g. mein Bruder ist Soldat (G.), my brother is a soldier; er starb als Christ (G.), he died a Christian.

1. If the noun is modified by an adjective or a genitive, ein is generally used unless noun and modifier form a set phrase; e. g. er ist ein großer Dichter, a great poet; but er ist preussischer Soldat, königlicher Rat, Mitglied des Reichstags, he is a Prussian soldier, (a) royal councillor, (a) member of parliament.

a. Exceptions to both the above rules are numerous; so much so that the Grimm Dictionary merely says the article may drop out in such cases.

232. Repetition of the Article. If the article is used before the first of two or more nouns connected in the same construction, it must be repeated with each following noun if there is change of gender; e. g. der König und die Kaiserin, the king and the empress; der Strom, das Meer, das Salz gehört dem König (S.), the river, the sea, the salt belong to the king.

1. If there is no change of gender the repetition may be dispensed with, and must be if the two nouns refer to the same person or thing; e. g. der Kaiser und König, the em- peror and king (one person), but der Kaiser und der König, two persons; eine grün' und weiße Fahne, a green-and-white banner, but eine grüne und eine weiße Fahne, a green and a white banner.

2. The rule of repetition applies also to adjectives and possessives; e. g. guter Wein und gutes Bier, good wine and (good) beer; die Zeitschrift für deutsches Altertum und deutsche Literaturgeschichte, Journal for German Antiquity and (German) Literary History; sein hoher Gang, sein' edle Gestalt (G.), his lofty stride, his noble form. But an uninflected adjective need not be repeated; e. g. hat Sie gut Bier und Wein (U.)? have you good beer and wine?

a. Exceptions to the rule of repetition are common in poetry and in talk; e. g. was soll all der Schmerz und Lust (G.)? what means all the pain and pleasure?

THE GENDER OF NOUNS

233. Gender as Determined by Meaning. The brief statement in § 75 may be expanded as follows:

1. Masculine are names of males, points of the compass, stones, winds, seasons, months and days of the week; e. g. Mann, man; Stier, bull; Hengst, stallion; Eber, boar; Bär, bear; Hahn, cock; Nord, north or north wind; Riesel, flint; Granit, granite; Winter, winter; Juli, July; Mittwoch, Wednesday.

2. Feminine are the names of females, most trees and flowers (especially those ending in e), most German rivers, and nearly all abstract terms; e. g. Ruh, cow; Stute, mare; Sau, sow; Henne, hen; Buche, beech; Eiche, oak; Nelke, pink; Donau, Danube; Tugend, virtue; Macht, power.

a. Conspicuous exceptions are the neuters Weib and Frauenzimmer, woman, Mädchen, girl, and Fräulein, young lady. The female of the larger animals usually has, where sex is to be distinguished, a separate name; see examples above. But many names of small animals are fem. without thought of sex; e. g. Maus, mouse; Ratte, rat; Räpe, cat; Schlange, snake; Nachtigall, nightingale.

b. Notable exceptions to the rule for German rivers are der Rhein, der Main, der Nedar. Non-German rivers are mostly mas., but many are fem.; e. g. der Nil, Indus, Ganges, Drinoko, Hudson, Mississippi, Tiber; but die Lena, Wolga, Seine, Loire, Themse (Thames).

3. Neuter are names of animals which designate the species or the young without reference to sex; also names of cities and countries (but see § 225, 3), most names of materials, letters of the alphabet, and all words not properly nouns which are used as nouns; e. g. Kind, child; Kind, one of the genus bos; Schwein, hog, swine; Ferkel, pig; Pferd, horse; Füllen, colt; Huhn, fowl; das schöne Paris, beautiful Paris; das neue Italien, new Italy; Holz, wood; Tuch, cloth; das runde s, the round s; das Speculieren, speculation; ihr ewiges Weh und Ach, their eternal woe and alas; das Stellbischein, the rendezvous.

234. Gender as Determined by Form. The few simple rules given in Part I (§§ 79, 83, 88, 93) may be recapitulated and amplified as follows:

1. Masculine are most monosyllabic nouns formed without suffix from a verbal root, nouns in e denoting persons or animals, and nouns of agency or station in er, ler, ner; also those in el denoting instrument, those in en that are not infinitives, and those in ich, ig, ling and rich; e. g. Bund (binden), league; Schuß (schießen), shot; Bote, messenger; Löwe, lion; Seher, seer; Bürger, citizen; Kellner, waiter; Hebel, lever; Webel, brush; Garten, garden; Busen, bosom; Fittich, pinion; Käfig, cage; Wüstling, profligate; Wüterich, tyrant.

a. Only a few monosyllabic derivatives from verbal roots are fem. or neu., and those mostly have a mas. counterpart from the same root: cf. das Schloß, castle, der Schluß, end; das Band, bond, and der Bund, league; die Zahl, number, and der Zoll, toll.

b. Nouns in er that do not denote agency or station are of all genders; e. g. der Hader, quarrel; die Ader, vein; das Ruder, oar.

2. Feminine are a multitude of nouns in e, many in t, and a few in niß and sal (see below under 3); also all in ei, erei, heit, feit, in, ſchaft, ung and the foreign suffixes age, ie, (t)ion, if; e. g. Sprache, speech; Güte, goodness; Kraft, force; Wüſtnis, desert; Drangſal, oppression; Abtei, abbey; Male-rei, painting; Freiheit, freedom; Seligkeit, blessedness; Löwin, lioness; Freundſchaft, friendship; Warnung, warning; Paſſage, passage; Partie, match; Nation, nation; Muſik, music.

3. Neuter are diminutives in chen and lein, most nouns in ſal, ſel, nis and tum, and most of those with prefix ge; e. g. Mädchen, girl; Fräulein, young lady; Labſal, refreshment; Räſſel, riddle; Wachſtum, growth; Gebirge, mountain-range; Gelübde, vow; Geſchick, fate.

a. Of nouns in ſal, Drangſal, oppression, Müßſal, trouble, and Trübſal, affliction, are now usually fem.; of those in ſel, Stöſſel, stopper, is mas.; of those in tum, Irrtum, error, and Reichtum, riches, are mas. On nouns in nis see below, § 237, 2.

b. While most nouns with the prefix ge are neu., especially if they have the suffix e, there are some, both with and without the suffix, that are mas. or fem.; e. g. der Geſang, song; der Geſpiele, playmate; die Gefahr, danger; die Gemeinde, community.

236. Gender of Compounds. The most important exceptions to the principle that compounds have the gender of their final element are as follows:

1. Several words which seem to be compounded with Mut, m., mind are feminine, owing to the fact that the modern mut represents two words of the older language, namely muot, m., and muoti, f. Hence usually in modern German die Anmut, agreeableness; die Demut, humility; die (but also der) Großmut, magnanimity; die Sanftmut, gentleness; die Wehmut, sadness; but der Edelmüt, nobility; der Heldenmut, heroism, and others.

a. Armüt, f., poverty, is not a compound of Mut, but an abstract from arm, poor (hence Arm-ut, not Ar-mut).

2. Die Antwort, answer, but das Wort, word; der Abſcheu, horror, but die Scheu, timidity; der Mittwoch, Wednesday, but die Woche, week.

3. Compounds of Teil, m. n., part, vary somewhat fixedly in gender. Thus Erbs teil, inheritance, Gegenteil, counterpart, and Hinterteil, back part, are generally neuter, while Anteil, share, Bestandteil, element, Vorteil, advantage, and most others are prevailingly masculine.

a. Urteil, n., judgment, is not a compound of Teil, but from erteilen, adjudge. Cf. ordeal.

4. Compound names of places are neuter regardless of the final element; thus der Berg, mountain, and die Burg, castle; but Freiberg and Freiburg (names of cities) are both neuter. The statement does not apply to appellative nouns like die Wartburg, the (castle of) Wartburg.

236. Gender of Borrowed Words. The general rule is that words borrowed from other languages retain the gender they had at home; thus der Priester, priest, from Gk.-Lat. presbyter; der Titel, title, from Lat. titulus; die Rose, from rosa; das Kloster, convent, from claustrum; das Fest, festival, from festum.

1. Very often, however, a foreign word has changed its gender to accord with that of other German words of similar form or meaning; thus der Essig, vinegar, from Lat. acetum, n., because other words in ig are mas.; der Körper, body, from corpus, n., on account of der Leib; die Lilie, lily, from lilium, n., because it comes from the plu. lilia, and other names of flowers are fem.; die Nummer, number, from numerus, m., on account of die Zahl; das Kamel, camel, from camelus, m., because other specific names of large animals are neuter.

a. In other cases the change of gender is less easy to account for; e. g. das Kreuz, cross, from cruz, f.; die Mauer, wall, from murus, m.; das Echo, echo, from echo, f.; der Punkt, point, from punctum, n.; das Genie, genius, from Fr. le génie.

b. Words borrowed from the English, which has no grammatical gender left, are given a gender from real or fancied analogies; e. g. das Beefsteak, following das Rindfleisch; der Strife or Streif, following Streich; die Will; die or das Farm; der or das Sport.

237. Variable Gender. The cases may be grouped under four heads, as follows:

1. Without variation of meaning or form. The variation of gender is mostly dialectic, or due, in the case of borrowed words, to the following of uncertain analogies. A few examples among scores (the usual gender being given first) are :

Angel, f. m. fish-hook	Katze'der, m. n. f. rostrum
Barome'ter, m. n. barometer	Meter, m. n. metre
Bereich, m. n. realm	Otter, m. f. otter
Butter, f. m. butter	Pult, m. n. desk
Cöliba't, n. m. celibacy	Sofa, m. n. sofa
Floß, n. m. raft	Teller, m. n. plate
Ramin, m. n. chimney	Ungeßüm, m. f. n. violence
Karneval, m. n. carnival	Wams, n. m. jacket
Garzer, m. n. prison	Zierat, m. f. ornament

a. The South-German puts den Butter upon das Teller, instead of die Butter upon den Teller. Rhenish Prussians say das Regenschirm, umbrella, and die Pastorat, parsonage, instead of the usual der Regenschirm and das Pastorat ; and so on. Cf. Andresen, p. 37 ff.

2. With variation of meaning. Here two sub-groups are to be distinguished :

a. One and the same word has become differentiated in meaning and associated different meanings with different genders. Noteworthy examples are :

Band, n. band, bond , m. volume	Pate, m. godfather , f. godmother
Budel, m. humpback , f. knob	Schild, m. n. shield , n. m. sign
Bund, m. league , n. bundle	Schwulst, m. bombast , f. swelling
Chor, m. chorus , n. m. choir	See, m. lake , f. sea
- Flur, m. area , f. field	Steuer, f. tax , n. rudder
Gift, n. m. poison , f. dowry	- Teil, m. part , n. share
Gehalt, m. contents , n. m. salary	Verdienst, n. merit , m. pay
Lohn, m. reward , n. m. wages	Wehr, f. defense , n. weir
Ort, m. place , m. n. village

(1.) Here belong nouns in nis, which are apt to be neu. if they denote something concrete, but fem. if they denote a state or an action. Thus a number of them are pretty uniformly fem., as Besorgnis, anxiety; Erlaubnis, permission; Verdammnis, damnation. Others are both neu. and fem., as das Erkenntnis, the thing cognized, die Erkenntnis, the act of cognizing; das Ersparnis, that which is saved, die Ersparnis, the act of saving. So also das and die Ärgernis, vexation; Befugnis, authority; Besümmernis, solicitude; Wagnis, venture, and others.

b. Two different words with different meanings and different genders have come to have the same form. Noteworthy examples are:

- | | |
|--|---|
| - Alp, m. nightmare , f. alp | Mast, m. mast , f. fodder |
| Bauer, m. peasant , n. m. bird-cage | - Messer, m. measurer , n. knife |
| Erbe, m. heir , n. inheritance | Moment, m. moment , n. factor |
| - Heide, m. heathen , f. heath | Onkel, m. uncle , n. m. f. awm |
| Hut, m. hat , f. guard | Reis, m. rice , n. twig |
| Riefer, m. jaw , f. pine | Schauer, m. shower , m. n. shed |
| Röcker, m. stagger , n. jacket | - Stift, m. peg , n. foundation |
| Runde, m. customer , f. knowledge | - Tau, m. dew , n. rope |
| Leiter, m. conductor , f. ladder | - Tor, m. fool , n. gate |
| - Mark, f. mark , march , n. marrow | - Weihe, m. f. hawk , f. consecration |
| Marſch, m. march , f. marsh | |

3. With variation of form but not of meaning, save as one form may be rare, archaic or poetical. Here belong a number of pairs, such as:

- | | |
|--|---|
| Baſen, m. and Baſe, f. cheek | Œherben, m. and Œherbe, f. pot-sheer |
| Eck, n. and Ecke, f. corner | - Schlaf, m. and Schläfe, f. temple |
| Karren, m. and Karre, f. cart | Schurz, m. and Schürze, f. apron |
| Pfoſten, m. and Poſte, f. post | Spalt, m. and Spalte, f. cleft |
| Poffen, m. and Poſſe, f. drollery | Sparren, m. and Sparre, f. spar |
| Quaſt, m. and Quaſte, f. tassel | Trupp, m. and Truppe, f. troop |
| - Quell, m. and Quelle, f. spring | Zeß, m. and Zeße, f. toe |
| Riß, m. and Riße, f. crack | |

THE NUMBER OF NOUNS

238. Defective Number. In German, as in English, some nouns are used only in the singular, as Glück, luck, and others only in the plural, as Leute, people.

1. The nouns that lack a plural are mainly abstracts and nouns of material, as Güte, goodness; Blei, lead; Stroh, straw. But many such words form a plural with concrete meaning, just as in English; e. g. Schönheiten, beauties; Gläſer, glasses.

a. In the older language abstracts formed a plu. much more freely than now — a state of affairs from which several stereotyped phrases have survived to the present time. These old plurals, being no longer felt as regular case-forms, are often written with small initial, but the government rules are not altogether consistent. Examples are: zu Gunsten (gunsten), in favor of; von Gottes Gnaben, by God's grace; in Ehren halten, hold in honor; zu Schulden (schulden) kommen lassen, incur blame; von statten gehen, go off; zu statten kommen, be of use; von Nöten (nöten), of necessity. So also several titles; as Euer Gnaden, Your Grace; Hochwürden, Worship; Herrschaften, master, mistress, people of the house (said by servants).

b. Certain nouns that lack a plu. of regular formation substitute therefor a compound; e. g. Tod, death, pl. Todesfälle, lit. cases of death; Leben, life = biography, pl. Lebensgeschichten; Dank, thanks, pl. Dankfagungen; Feuer, fire, pl. Feuersbrünste; Rat, counsel, pl. Rat-schläge. Bauten, buildings, is the pl. not of Bau, m., but of the little used Baute, f.

2. The nouns that lack the singular are fewer. Further examples are: Eltern, parents; Gebrüder, brothers (mostly in names of firms); Geschwister, brother(s) and sister(s); also several names of diseases, as Blattern, smallpox; Masern, measles; Röteln, German measles; and of festivals, as Ferien, vacation; Ostern, Easter; Pfingsten, Whitsuntide; Weihnachten, Christmas. The last three take a singular verb. Some nouns have a singular, but are used chiefly in the plural, as Zinsen, interest; Einkünfte, income; Briefschaften, letters.

a. Leute takes the place of Männer in the plu. of several compounds of Mann, if sex is not thought of; e. g. Kaufmann, merchant, Kaufleute, tradespeople, but Kaufmänner if men are meant. So Edelleute, gentry, but Edelmänner, noblemen. Others, as Staatsmann, statesman, Biedermann, honest man, admit only the plu. in Männer.

b. Several English nouns that are only plu. correspond to German nouns that are sing: e. g. die Schere, the shears; die Zange, the tongs; die Asche, the ashes; der Grünkohl, the greens; die Gelbsucht, the yellows, die Physik, physics, and some other names of sciences in ics.

239. Duplicate Forms in the Plural. Several nouns have two forms for the plural. The cases are of three kinds, namely:

1. Alternative forms without difference of gender or meaning; e. g. Faden, thread, pl. Faden or Fäden; Bett, bed, pl. Betten or Bette. See §§ 274, 1, and 278, 1, a.

2. Different forms for different genders. Thus, of words that fall under § 237, 1, if the gender varies between mas. and neu., the plu. will remain the same, but if it varies between mas. and fem. or between neu. and fem., there will be a separate form for the fem.; e. g. die Angel, fish-hook, has pl. die Angeln, but der Angel has die Angel. Again, from the words under § 237, 3, the pl. of der Quell is die Quelle (rare), that of die Quelle, die Quellen; der Quast, pl. die Quaste, but die Quaste, pl. die Quasten.

3. Different forms associated with different meanings; e. g. from das Band, ribbon, bond, pl. Bande, bonds, but Bänder, ribbons. See § 276.

240. The Singular for the Plural. A masculine or neuter noun of measure (denoting weight, height, extent, amount, etc.) usually stands in the singular, or what appears to be the singular, after a numeral; e. g. zwei Pfund Tee, two pounds of tea; sechs Fuß hoch, six feet high; dreimal, i. e. drei Mal, three times; ein Heer von 20,000 Mann, an army of 20,000 men.

a. With the measures of time, Jahr, year, Jahrhundert, century, Monat, month, the pl. is more common, but the sing. not rare. So also with Schritt, pace, and Pfennig, penny; thus drei Jahre, sechs Monate, hundert Schritte, fünf Pfennige, are better than drei Jahr, sechs Monat, etc.

1. Feminine nouns of this kind stand in the plural; thus drei Meilen entfernt, three miles distant; zwei Ellen Tuch, two yards of cloth. Except, however, Mark, mark, and sometimes Hand, hand. Thus one says es kostet drei Mark; das Pferd ist 16 Hand (or Hände) hoch, the horse is 16 hands high.

a. Formerly monosyllabic neuters such as Pfund, Mal, Jahr, Buch, Faß, Maß, and also the mas. Mann, formed a pl. just like the sing.; so that fünf Pfund, zehn Jahr, hundert Mann, are really pl. tho not now felt as such. Other masculines have followed the analogy of these; e. g. Fuß, Schritt, Zoll, Kopf (zwei Kopf Kohl, two heads of cabbage), Schuß, Stod.

2. In speaking of the joint activity or concern of several subjects German often uses the singular where English prefers the plural; e. g. alle erhoben die Hand, all raised their hands; vielen verloren das Leben, many lost their lives.

3. English plurals such as the second and third days, the fourth and fifth verses, should be given in German by the singular; der zweite und der dritte Tag; der vierte und der fünfte Vers.

SYNTAX OF THE CASES

THE NOMINATIVE

241. The Nominative as Subject. The grammatical subject of a sentence is put in the nominative; e. g. der Mann hat recht, the man is right.

a. For the omission of the subject see § 302; for the subject anticipated by es, § 303, 3; for the nom. and other cases in apposition, § 270.

242. The Predicate Nominative. The nominative is used in the predicate after certain intransitive and passive verbs; e. g. das ist der rechte Mann, that is the right man; es werde Licht, let there be light; ich heiße Doctor, I am called doctor; das Kind wurde Karl getauft, the child was christened Karl.

1. The verbs that take a predicate nominative (without als) are sein, bleiben, heißen, werden, and passive verbs of calling, such as nennen, rufen, schelten, schimpfen, taufen.

a. A few others, as bünken, glänzen, erscheinen, scheinen, sometimes take this construction; e. g. ihr Hut, der ihm eine Krone schien (Richter), her hat which seemed to him a crown; nicht ein Kind bin ich erschienen (G.), not (as) a child have I come forth; glänze (sc. die Poesie) der schönste Stern (G.), let it shine (as) the fairest star. But in these cases one would ordinarily say: wie eine Krone, als Kind, als schönster Stern.

b. After werden, in the sense of be changed into, one often meets a dat. with zu instead of a predicate nom.; e. g. da werden Weiber zu Hyänen (S.), then women become hyenas; Glück und Unglück wird zur Brille (G.), become a whim. With verbs of making, choosing, electing, appointing etc. this is the regular construction ; e. g. er wurde zum Präsidenten erwählt, he was elected president. Cf. § 265, 2, a.

c. For the exceptional predicate nom. after an infinitive depending on lassen, as in laß mich dein Freund sein, let me be thy friend, see § 360, 1, c.

2. A much greater number of verbs may be followed by a predicate nominative with als denoting the character, capacity, form, or with wie denoting the manner, in which the subject acts, appears, or is acted upon ; e. g. er starb als Christ (G.), he died a Christian ; er starb wie ein Christ = he died like a Christian.

a. This construction with als or wie may be classed under the head of appositional predicate. See § 271.

243. The Nominative in Address and Exclamations. The nominative is the case of direct address, and usually of exclamations ; e. g. ihr schwebt, ihr Geister, neben mir (G.), ye are hovering near me, ye spirits ; welch Schauspiel ! aber ach ! ein Schauspiel nur (G.) ! what a spectacle ! but, alas, only a spectacle !

244. The Nominative Absolute, so common in English, is in German a rare construction, occurring only with one or two participles ; e. g. wir alle freuen uns, ausgenommen du (Gr.), we are all glad, you excepted ; es sind unser fünf, unberechnet der Vorsitzende, there are five of us, the chairman not counted.

1. The usual case absolute is the acc. (§ 267). Thus, in the last two examples the more idiomatic construction is : wir alle freuen uns, dich ausgenommen ; es sind unser fünf, den Vorsitzenden unberechnet.

THE GENITIVE

245. The genitive limits or complements the meaning of, and so is said to depend upon, nouns, adjectives, pronouns, verbs and prepositions. It is also used with an interjection in exclamations.

246. The Adnominal Genitive, translatable usually by the possessive or the objective with of, denotes a great variety of relations, of which the more important are indicated below. We have:

1. The partitive genitive, denoting a whole of which the noun limited forms a part; e. g. ein Teil des Chors (G.), a part of the chorus; meine Hälfte deines Grams (S.), my half of thy sorrow; Tonnen Goldes (S.), tons of gold; dies Glas des echten Weines (G.), this glass of the genuine wine.

a. But after nouns of number, weight, measure, kind, the older partitive genitive has for the most part given way to simple apposition; thus one no longer says drei Pfund Goldes, three pounds of gold, but drei Pfund Gold; not ein Glas Weines, for a glass of wine, but ein Glas Wein; not, with Lessing, eine neue Art Zank, a new kind of quarrel, but eine neue Art Zank. If the word limited has an inflected modifier, either the genitive or the appositional construction is proper; e. g. eine Menge fröhlicher (or fröhliche) Kinder, a crowd of happy children; ein Glas kalten Wassers, or kaltes Wasser, a glass of cold water. See § 272, 1.

b. For the partitive gen. with adjectives and pronouns see § 253; with verbs, § 250.

2. The objective genitive, with verbal nouns, denoting the object of the action; e. g. die Teilung der Erde, the partition of the earth; die Erhebung des Menschengeschlechts, the elevation of the human race.

a. A genitive limiting a verbal noun and denoting the subject of the action is called, by way of contrast, 'subjective'; e. g. das Wehen des Windes, the blowing of the wind; die Erhebung Europas gegen Napoleon, the rise of Europe against Napoleon. Both a subjective and an objective gen. may depend on the same noun; e. g. Bismarcks Lösung des Problems, Bismarck's solution of the problem.

b. As in English, the objective gen. follows its noun; thus Gottes Liebe can only mean God's love, while die Liebe Gottes may mean either (man's) love of God or God's love (of man). For the objective gen. one can often substitute a preposition with its case; e. g. die Furcht vor dem Tode, the fear of death; die Liebe zu Gott. This substitution should always be made when necessary to avoid ambiguity.

3. The genitive of characteristic; e. g. der Jüngling edlen Gefühles (G.), the youth of noble feeling; dies Haus des Glanzes, this house of splendor.

a. In the predicate this gen. often stands alone, the noun upon which it would depend being omitted; e. g. er ist niedriger Abkunft, he is of low origin; ich bin guter Dinge, I am in good spirits; das Wort ist sächlichen Geschlechts, the word is of the neuter gender.

4. The genitive of specification, telling wherein the noun consists, or limiting its generality by means of a more definite term; e. g. das Recht der freien Forschung, the right of free investigation; der Schnee des Alters, the snows of old age; des Hasses Kraft, die Macht der Liebe (G.), the force of hate, the power of love. So also with substantive adjectives; e. g. der Beinamen des Großen, the sobriquet (of) the great; das Prädikat des Schönen, the predicate (of) the beautiful.

a. This genitive is also called 'appositional.' Proper names do not take this construction, but stand in apposition; e. g. die Stadt Paris, the city of Paris; das Königreich Sachsen, the kingdom of Saxony; der Monat März, the month of March.

5. The possessive genitive, denoting the owner, author, proprietor; e. g. das Haus meines Vaters, my father's house; Schillers Tell, Schiller's Tell; des Landvogts Reiter, the governor's troopers.

a. The noun limited is sometimes to be supplied from the context; e. g. doch besser ist's, ihr fallt in Gottes Hand als in der Menschen (S.), but it is better that you fall into the hand of God than into (that) of men. Or it may be represented by a demonstrative; e. g. seine Ideale sind immer noch die unseres Volkes, his ideals are still those of our people.

b. By the omission of a noun meaning property, or the like, the possessive genitive often comes to stand alone in the predicate; e. g. gebt dem Kaiser, was des Kaisers ist, give to the emperor what is the emperor's; der Bube war des Vogts (S.), the boy was the governor's; du bist des Todes, you are a dead man; bist du des Teufels? are you crazy?

c. In familiar language this gen. is often replaced by a possessive in agreement with the governing noun; e. g. in dem Wolf seinem Leib (Gr.), in the wolf's body; auf der Fortuna (dat.) ihrem Schiff (S.), on Fortune's ship. So also a possessive may stand pleonastically after the gen.; e. g. nimm meinen Ring und gib mir des Majors seinen dafür (L.), take my ring and give me the Major's for it.

d. Note also the colloquial ellipsis in ich war heute bei Müllers, I was at (the) Müllers' to-day, i. e. at his (their) house.

6. The genitive of connection—a general term which, as here used, is meant to include the ideas of cause, origin, relationship, appurtenance, and any others that do not fall clearly under one of the preceding heads; e. g. das Licht der Sonne, the light of the sun; der Ruhm der Deutschen, the glory of the Germans; der Gipfel des Berges, the top of the mountain; der Sohn des Königs, the son of the king.

247. The Dative with von as a Substitute for the Genitive. For the genitive in most of the uses described in the last section it is possible to substitute von with the dative. The construction with von belongs more to familiar language and is gaining upon the more elegant genitive. Thus in the following cases, all from good writers, the genitive would be better: Die Ursachen von diesem Mangel (Herder), the causes of this lack; Herr von seinen Handlungen (Gr.), master of his actions; die Macht von Rom (Ranke), the power of Rome; die eine Seite von Haus (Gr.), one side of the house. But in some cases the construction with von is to be preferred, namely:

1. In certain expressions of rank and title; e. g. der König von Sachsen, the King of Saxony; die Jungfrau von Orleans, the Maid of Orleans; but Doktor der Philosophie, doctor of philosophy.

2. When the case, if it were genitive, would not be clear; e. g. die Bevölkerung von Paris, the population of Paris; die Ansprüche von Menschen, die nichts besitzen, the claims of people who own nothing.

3. To avoid a genitive depending upon a genitive; e. g. der Erbe von seines Vaters mutigem Geiste, the inheritor of his father's courageous spirit (instead of der Erbe des mutigen Geistes seines Vaters); der Sohn von einem Vetter des großen Dichters, the son of a cousin of the great poet; einer von des Prinzen Räten (L.), one of the prince's counsellors.

4. When the limiting genitive, if it were used, would be separated from its noun; e. g. von unsrer Partei war kein Freund gegenwärtig, there was no friend of our party present.

5. To denote material or characteristic; e. g. das Mäntelchen von starrer Seide (G.), the cape of stiff silk; ein Mann von festem Charakter, a man of solid character.

248. The Genitive as Sole Object of Verbs. A number of verbs take, or may take, a genitive as sole object; e. g. gedenke des Sabbattages, remember the sabbath day; schone meiner, spare me; ich bedarf Ihres Beistandes, I need your assistance.

1. This construction is on the wane. It is found in the classics, and may still occur, in stately writing, after a pretty large number of verbs. But the most of them admit, or even prefer, besides the genitive, some other construction. Such are (the alternative being put in brackets):

achten , heed [auf, acc.]	gebären , give birth to
bedürfen , need [acc.]	genießen , enjoy [acc.]
begehren , desire [acc.]	gewahren , perceive [acc.]
brauchen , need [acc.]	harren , wait [auf, acc.]
danken , thank [acc.]	hüten , guard [acc.]
denken , think [an, acc.]	lachen , laugh [über, acc.]
entbehren , lack [acc.]	mangeln , lack [acc.]
entraten , lack [acc.]	pflegen , attend to [acc.]
ermangeln , lack [acc.]	schonen , spare [acc.]
erwähnen , mention [acc.]	spotten , mock [über, acc.]
frohlocken , exult [über, acc.]	sterben , die [an, dat.]
gebrauchen , use [acc.]	(ver)fehlen , miss [acc.]
gedenken , think	vergeffen , forget [acc.]

verlangen, desire [nach, dat.]
wahren, guard [acc.]
wahrnehmen, perceive [acc.]

walten, rule [über, acc.]
warten, wait [auf, acc.]

a. Sometimes difference of meaning is associated with difference of construction. Thus lachen and spotten are apt to take the gen. when used figuratively in the sense make light of; e. g. ich lachte über den Spaß, laughed at the joke, but lachte seiner Drohungen, made light of his threats. Cf. further seines Amtes warten, attend to one's business, but auf den Zug warten, wait for the train; der Ruhe pflegen, take rest, but einen Kranken pflegen, nurse a sick person.

b. The gen. as sole object is for the most part a gen. of cause, denoting that which occasions the activity or state denoted by the verb; hence Hungers sterben, die of hunger, and eines bösen Todes sterben, die an an evil death. Some cases which might seem to come under this head are partitive genitives; e. g. sich Rats erholen, get advice (§ 250); others are adverbial; e. g. des Glaubens leben, live in the faith (§ 251). Difficult to classify is Versteckens spielen, play hide and seek.

249. The Genitive as Secondary Object occurs with numerous verbs in connection with an accusative; e. g. ich freue mich deines Heils, I rejoice in thy salvation; weshalb andrer Sünde klagt das Herz dich an (S.)? of what other sin does thy heart accuse thee? The verbs are:

1. Verbs of 'judicial action' and their kind, the genitive denoting that of which some one is accused, convicted, admonished, deemed worthy, etc. Such are:

anklagen, accuse	losprechen, acquit	verklagen, accuse belehren, inform	mahnen, admonish	(ver)lohnern, reward
bescheiden, inform	überführen, convict	versichern, assure beschuldigen, accuse	überheben, exempt	vergewissern, assure
bezüchtigen, accuse	überweisen, convict	würdigen, deem worthy freisprechen, acquit	überzeugen, convince	zählen, accuse

a. Belehren occurs in such locutions as man hat mich eines andern belehrt, I am otherwise advised. Bescheiden in the same sense is now quaint. Überzeugen, versichern and verbs of acquitting may take the dat. with von instead of the gen. Versichern admits also a dat. of the person and an acc. of the thing: ich versichre dir meine Teilnahme, I assure you of my sympathy, instead of ich versichre dich meiner Teilnahme. Mahnen usually takes an with acc.

2. Several verbs of separation or deprivation, the genitive denoting that of which some one is deprived. Such are :

berauben, rob	entladen, relieve	entsetzen, dispossess entbinden, release	entlassen, dismiss	entwöhnen, wean entblößen, deprive	entlasten, relieve	verjagen, drive out
entheben, relieve	entleiben, exempt	verweisen, banish entkleiden, divest

a. Entbinden, =blößen, =heben, =lassen, may take a dat. with von. Entlassen admits three constructions: thus to dismiss one from service is einen seines Dienstes, or vom Dienste, or aus dem Dienste entlassen. Other compounds of ent take a dat. of the person, and an acc. of the thing. See § 258, 2.

3. A multitude of reflexive verbs with meanings too various to classify. Such are :

sich abtun, renounce	sich erfreuen, dare to do anmaßen, claim	(er)freuen, enjoy annehmen, take charge	erinnern, remember bedienen, make use	erlöshen, dare to do befleiß(ig)en, attend to	erwehren, keep from begeben, renounce	getrösten, expect bemächtigen, get possession	rühmen, boast bemeistern, get control	schämen, be ashamed befcheiden, acquiesce in	überheben, boast
befinnen, bethink one's self	unterfangen, } dare to
entäußern, renounce	unterwinden, } undertake
enthalten, refrain from	vermeßen, dare to do entleiben, acquit one's self	vermuten, expect
entschlagen, get rid	versehen, expect entsinnen, recollect	(ver)trösten, acquiesce in
erbarmen, pity	verwegen, dare to do erdreissen, dare to do	weigern, refuse

a. Some of these verbs admit other constructions; e. g. sich (er)-freuen, rühmen, schämen, the acc. with über; sich anmaßen, the dat. of the reflexive and the acc. of the thing. Erinnern, with acc., for sich erinnern, with gen., is a North-German provincialism.

4. Certain impersonal verbs of feeling, the genitive giving the cause of the emotion; e. g. mich jammert seiner Not, I pity his distress. Such are, letting mich represent the variable personal object :

es dauert mich, I pity	es gelüftet mich, I desire es efelt mich, I am disgusted	es jammert mich, I pity es erbarmt mich, I pity	es reut mich, I regret es verdrießt mich, I am annoyed

a. With the most of these verbs the gen. is becoming quaint, and über with the acc. or wegen with the gen. (with gelüftet, nach and the dat.) is preferred. Note finally es (ver)lohnt sich der Mühe, it is worth the trouble.

250. The Partitive Genitive with Verbs. At an earlier period several verbs might take a genitive to denote that the object was affected only in part; e. g. des Brotes, or Brots, essen, to eat bread, manger du pain, where one would now say Brot or vom Brote or etwas Brot essen; er gibt seines Brots den Armen (Lu.), he giveth of his bread to the poor.

1. But this construction is now obsolete or quaint, except perhaps after genießen (cf. § 248). Where it occurs in the classics it is usually held to be a Grecism or Gallicism; e. g. brachte die Mutter des herrlichen Weines (G.), brought (some) of the noble wine; es schenkte der Böhme des perlenden Weins (S.), poured out (some) of the sparkling wine.

a. But a few isolated phrases survive in common use; e. g. sich Rats erholen, get advice.

251. The Adverbial Genitive. The genitive is used with verbs to denote various adverbial relations:

1. Place; e. g. jezt gehe jeder seines Weges (S.), now let each go his way; das preisen die Schüler allerorten (G.), the students praise that everywhere.

a. The adverbial gen. of place is no longer common, except in the phrase allerorten (allsorts). Where it occurs in the classics after gehen, kommen, ziehen, and other verbs of motion, present usage prefers the acc. (§ 266). Goethe sometimes forces German idiom a little in his use of this construction; e. g. das ist des Landes nicht der Brauch, that is not the custom in these parts (Faust, l. 2949, des Landes being = hier zu Lande); glänzen droben klarer (= in der klaren) Nacht, shine up there in the clear night (ibid. l. 4647).

2. Time; e. g. die Räte versammelten sich des Mittags (G.), the councillors assembled at noon; Tages Arbeit, Abends Gäste (G.), work by day, guests at night.

a. This use of the gen. is very common in certain set phrases; e. g. eines Tages, one day; eines Abends, one evening; vormittags, forenoons; abends, evenings; nachts, at night; neuerdings (i. e. neuer Dinge, with adverbial s), recently; von alters her, from of old; vor alters, anciently. On the acc. of time, as compared with the gen., see § 286, 2, a.

3. Manner and degree; e. g. nach Uri fahr' ich stehenden Fußes (S.), I will go to Uri without delay; meines Wissens ist es das erste Mal, so far as I know, it is the first time.

a. Here the phrases are still more numerous; e. g. keineswegs, by no means; glücklicherweise, happily, and others in -weise; gewissermaßen, in a certain sense, and others in -maßen (gen. of Maß); allerdings, to be sure; unverrichteter Sache, in vain, with errand unaccomplished; meinerseits on my part; meines Erachtens, in my opinion; dergestalt, in such a way; des weiteren, in detail.

252. The Complementary Genitive with Adjectives.

Certain adjectives may take a genitive to complement their meaning; e. g. des Gefühls nicht mächtig stand ich da (S.), I stood there not able to control my feelings; daß sie des Dranges müd' sind (S.), that they are tired of oppression.

1. The adjectives that take the genitive express for the most part the ideas of power, possession, knowledge, capacity, abundance and their opposites. Such are (including their compounds with un):

ansichtig, in sight	fähig, capable	inne, percipient bar, bare	frei, free	kundig, acquainted bedürftig, in need	froh, glad	ledig, free
benötigt, in need	gebent, mindful	leer, empty
bewußt, conscious	gewahr, aware	los, free
bloß, bare	gewärtig, expectant	mächtig, able to control
einig, agreed	gewiß, certain	müde, tired
eingedenk, mindful	gewohnt, used	quitt, done
erfahren, experienced	habhaft, in possession	satt, sated

ſchuldig, guilty	verdächtig, suspicious	voll, full
ſicher, certain	verluſtig, lacking	wert, worth theilhaft, partaking	vermutend, expectant	würdig, worthy überdrüſſig, weary	verſichert, assured

a. Several of these adjectives, when used predicatively, may take an acc. instead of a gen.; namely, auſſichtig, gewahr, gewohnt, habhaft, inne, loß, ſatt, vermutend, wert; e. g. alß mich die Fee anſichtig wurde (Platen), when the fairy noticed (became observant of) me; den Böſen ſind ſie loß (G.), they are rid of the Evil One; daß war die Mühe nicht wert (G.), not worth the trouble. — This construction originated thus: The old gen. eß in ich bin eß loß, I am rid of it, and similar locutions, came to be felt as an acc., and this led to the use of a real acc. in place of eß; i. e. the misunderstood ich bin eß loß drew after it ich bin daß Ding loß.

b. Frei, leer, and loß may be followed by von, and fähig by zu. Würdig and unwürdig occur sometimes with a dat.; e. g. nichts iſt einem Mann unwürdiger (L.), more unworthy of a man.

c. Adverbs that govern the gen. will be treated as prepositions. See § 376.

253. The Partitive Genitive with Adjectives, Pronouns and Adverbs. A genitive of the whole may occur after numerals, after certain pronouns and pronominal adjectives, and after adjectives in the comparative and superlative; e. g. fünf unſrer Ordens, five of our order; aller guten Dinge ſind drei, of all good things there are three; unſer einer, one of us; der wackeren Männer viele (S.), many brave men; der ſchrecklichſte der Schrecken (S.), the most terrible of terrors.

1. After a numeral the partitive genitive is no longer common except when the numeral agrees with a noun understood. Thus for neun ganzer Jahre (L.), nine whole years, one would now say neun ganze Jahre. But neun unſrer Geſellſchaft, nine of our company, or zwanzig der beſten, twenty of the best, is good usage, tho the dative with von or unter also occurs.

2. The pronouns and pronominals which admit a partitive genitive are wer, welch, waß, all, ander-, beid-, ein, einig-, etlich-, etwas, genug, jed-, kein, manch, mehrer-, nichts, viel and wenig. But the most of these admit also von or unter with the dative, and this is the preferred construction with jemand and niemand.

a. The old partitive genitive of an adjective after nichts (cf. § 320, 2), etwas, and other indeclinables, ceased long ago to be felt as a genitive, and is now treated as an appositive; e. g. zu was Besserm sind wir geboren (S.), we are born for something better. Goethe's zu was Neuen (for Neuem, Faust, l. 3254) is for the rhyme's sake.

b. So also in such expressions as was Wunders, what (of) wonder, was Teufels, what the deuce, etc., the genitive, ceasing to be felt as such, dropped its case-ending and became an appositive; hence was Wunder, was Teufel, was Hener, was Raub (Faust, l. 6549).

c. The form anders, else, remains unchanged after wer, jemand, niemand; e. g. wer anders, who else; mit niemand anders (not anderm).

3. A partitive genitive may occur after certain adverbs of place; e. g. wohin des Weges, whither away; woher des Landes, from what part of the country; wo anders or anderswo, elsewhere; nirgend anders, nowhere else.

4. Quite anomalous is Goethe's use of a partitive gen. with häufig in Faust, l. 3098: Ihr habt der Freunde häufig, you have friends in abundance.

254. The Genitive with Prepositions. A large number of prepositions and prepositional adverbs govern the genitive. For a list with illustrations, see §§ 376–7.

255. The Genitive in Exclamations. After an interjection the genitive is sometimes used to denote the occasion of the feeling; e. g. o der unglückseligen Stunde! oh, the unhappy hour! pfui des Bösewichts! out upon the villain!

1. This construction is distinctly literary, and is becoming rare even in poetry. Common language prefers the nom., or else a prepositional phrase; e. g. mit eurem Golde (S.), out upon your gold! pfui über dich! ste upon you!

THE DATIVE

256. The dative depends upon verbs, adjectives and prepositions, rarely upon nouns and interjections. Its name, from the Latin casus dativus, implies that it is the case of giving, i. e. of the indirect object. But it has other functions also.

257. The Dative with Verbs: Sole Object. A large number of intransitive verbs take a single object, or complement of their meaning, in the dative; e. g. ich danke dir, I thank thee; den Göttern gleich' ich nicht (G.), I am not like the gods; mir wird nachgesetzt (S.), I am followed.

1. The verbs that take the dative as sole object express such ideas as motion or effort toward and away from; disappearance, lack; appurtenance, fitness, suitability; pleasure and displeasure; friendly, gracious, or submissive action, and the reverse; resemblance and correspondence. Some have English equivalents that need no preposition and may seem to be transitive; others require in English a preposition, usually to. Such are:

- ähneln, resemble	- folgen, follow	huldigen, pay homage
- antworten, answer	frommen, benefit	- mangeln, be lacking
begegnen, meet	- gebühren, befit	nahe, approach
- behagen, please	- gefallen, please	nützen, benefit bekommen, befit	gehören, belong	passen, fit
danke, thank	gehörten, obey	schaden, injure dienen, serve	genügen, suffice	schmeicheln, flatter drohen, threaten	geschehen, happen	trozen, defy
- dünken, seem	(ge)ziemen, become	(ver)trauen, trust erliegen, succumb	glauben, believe	weichen, yield
(er)scheinen, appear	gleichen, resemble	wehren, defend
- fehlen, fail	grollen, be angry	zürnen, be angry fluchen, curse	- helfen, help

a. Antworten takes a dat. of the person only: what one answers stands in the acc., that to which one answers in the acc. with auf; e. g. antworte mir, answer me; antworte auf meine Frage, answer my question; er antwortete mir keine Silbe, he answered me not a syllable. — Begegnen occurs in the classics with the acc. — Danken = verdanken may have an acc. of the thing; e. g. ich (ver)danke ihm mein Glück, I owe to him my happiness. — Glauben takes the dat. of the person in the sense of believe, the acc. with an in that of believe in (but in Faust, l. 3434, ich glaube ihm = I believe in him). — Mangeln now usually has a dat. of the person, the thing needed being in the nom. or dat. with an; e. g. mir mangelt Geld, or es mangelt mir an Geld, instead of ich mangle des Geldes (§ 248, 1).

2. A still larger number of verbs, with meanings similar to those mentioned above, take the dative in virtue of their composition with one of the prefixes an, auf, aus, bei, ein, ent, entgegen, miß, nach, unter, vor, voran, voraus, wider, zu, zuvor. Examples are: abgehen, be lacking; angehören, belong; auffallen, surprise; ausweichen, evade; beipflichten, support; einfallen, occur; entgehen, escape; entgegenzueilen, hasten toward; mißfallen, displease; nachstehen, be inferior; unterliegen, succumb; verschwinden, vanish; vorbeugen, prevent; voran- and vorausgehen, precede; widerstehen, repel; zuvorkommen, anticipate.

a. Verbal phrases with similar meanings may also take the dat.; e. g. einem zu Hilfe kommen, come to the aid of one; einem zur Ehre gereichen, redound to one's credit. Cf. § 259, 2.

258. The Dative with Verbs: Secondary Object. Many transitive verbs take a secondary object in the dative, the primary object being usually a noun or pronoun in the accusative, but often an infinitive or a clause; e. g. gebt mir den Helm (S.), give me the helmet; ich werde jetzt dich keinem Nachbar reichen (G.), I shall hand thee now to no neighbor; Furcht gebietet ihm zu schweigen, fear bids him be silent; nun sag' mir einß, man soll kein Wunder glauben (G.), now let some one tell me that we are not to believe in miracles. What is here called the secondary object may be:

1. A true indirect object, translatable by the objective with to, and occurring chiefly with verbs of giving, communicating, showing, proving, and the like (see examples above).

a. Sagen, say, is apt to take the dat. with zu when followed by a literal quotation in the direct form; e. g. er sagte mir, ich sei verrückt, told me I was crazy; but er sagte zu mir: du bist verrückt. — Schreiben, write, takes the dat., or the acc. with an. — Some verbs of this class, e. g. beweisen, show, and erwähnen, mention, admit the acc. with gegen instead of the dat.

b. Some of the verbs given in § 257, 1, may take a direct object in the form of an acc. or a clause; e. g. ich danke dir, daß —, I thank thee that —; antworte mir das, answer me that; das glaube ich dir nicht, I do not believe you (when you say) that.

2. A privative object, denoting that from which something is separated, and translatable by the objective with from; e. g. der Ring, den er dem Zwerg genommen (W.), the ring which he had taken from the dwarf; diesen Trost soll mir niemand rauben, no one shall rob me of this comfort.

a. This dat. occurs after verbs of taking, stealing, withholding, alienating, etc. (many being compounds of ent or weg), some of which, however, may take von instead. It represents an extinct ablative.

3. The beneficiary object, denoting that for which something is done; e. g. was kauft du deiner Frau zu Weihnachten (Gr.)? what shall you buy your wife for Christmas?

a. This construction is comparatively rare with transitive verbs, the acc. with für being preferred. Still it is closely akin to the dat. of interest, which is very common.

4. An object due to the composition of the verb with one of the prefixes mentioned in § 257, 2. It has to be translated in various ways; e. g. ich sehe dem Dinge kein Ende ab, I see no end to (of) the thing; man sieht dir's an den Augen an (G.), one can see it by your eyes; der Wind trieb uns den Staub entgegen, drove the dust in our faces; etwas einem Briefe beilegen, to enclose something in a letter.

a. With several of these compounds the dat. object is a reflexive pronoun; e. g. ich mache mir das Recht an, I claim (arrogate to myself) the right; ich bitte mir das aus, I make that a condition; sich etwas einbilden, imagine something; sich etwas zutrauen, trust one's self for something.

259. The Dative of Interest. The dative is freely used to denote the person (less often the thing) concerned in a statement.

a. The translation has to vary greatly; e. g. wie geht es Ihnen? how goes it with you? mir ist es einerlei, it is all the same to me; dem Vater grauset's (G.), the father shudders. In connection with a noun that has the definite article it often has the force of a possessive; e. g. es geht mir ans Herz, it goes to my heart; das gereicht ihm zur Ehre, that redounds to his credit. It occurs:

1. With transitive verbs as the case of the beneficiary object (see above, § 258, 3). Here belong numerous verbal phrases containing a transitive verb; e. g. das tat er mir zuliebe, he did that for my sake; schreib' es dir hinter's Ohr, make a note of it; diesen muß ich was zum besten geben (G.), I must do something for these fellows; ich mache es mir zur Aufgabe, I make it my task.

a. Where a personal object is accompanied by a phrase specifying a part of the object there is sometimes a choice between the dat. and the acc.; e. g. er trat mir (or mich) auf den Fuß, he stepped upon my foot.

2. With intransitive verbs; e. g. sein Herz schlug der ganzen Menschheit (S.), his heart beat for all mankind; wie nur dem Kopf nicht alle Hoffnung schwindet (G.), how only for that head does all hope not vanish.

a. Here belong a multitude of impersonal phrases with sein, werden, bleiben, geschehen, gehen, and others; e. g. es ist mir recht, it suits me; mir wird so licht (G.), it grows so clear to me; es geschieht dir recht, it serves you right; es schmeckt mir gut, it tastes good to me; es tut mir leid, I am sorry; es liegt mir viel daran, it is of great concern to me.

b. Add to these the strictly impersonal verbs: es ahnt mir, I forbode; es beliebt mir, I choose; es ekelt mir, I am disgusted; es gebricht mir, I lack; es graut mir, I abhor; es grauset mir, I shudder; es schaubert mir, I shudder; es schwindelt mir, I am giddy; es träumt mir, I dream.

3. With passive verbs (including geschehen), and sometimes after werden in the sense of zu teil werden; e. g. da wird der Geist euch wohl dressiert (G.), there your mind will be well trained; da ward der Tapferkeit ihr Lohn (G.), then bravery got its reward; ein Unrecht ist mir geschehen, a wrong has been done me.

4. As 'ethical' dative — a personal pronoun interjected loosely in the sentence to indicate indirect interest or sympathetic concern on the part of the speaker or listener; e. g. 'nen Apfel schießt der Vater dir vom Baum (S.), father can shoot an apple from the tree for you; er hat euch herzlich dran gedacht (G.), he thought of it earnestly, you'll be glad to hear; geht mir, nichts weiter davon (G.)! go, I say, no more of that!

260. The Dative with Adjectives. A large number of adjectives govern the dative, the most of them occurring chiefly in the predicate; e. g. ich bin sonst allen Menschen gut (G.), I am kindly disposed to all other men; die Höflichkeit ist euch geläufig (G.), politeness is natural to you; er ist dir neidisch (S.), he is envious of you.

1. The adjectives that govern the dat. have meanings similar to those given for verbs in § 257, 1. The list includes, first, participial adjectives from verbs that govern the dat., as entsprechend, corresponding; passend, sitting; angemessen, adapted; secondly, a large number of words in bar, lich and ig. These suffixes either form passive verbals (the dat. denoting the object for which the action is feasible), as denkbar, thinkable, or else they mean replete with, having the character of, and the dat. denotes the object toward which the quality is manifested; e. g. dankebar, grateful; freundlich, friendly; günstig, favorable.

2. Of adjectives not included under the foregoing heads the following are the most common:

abhold , unfriendly	eigen (tümlich), peculiar	gleich , like
ähnlich , similar	feind (lich), hostile	gut , kindly disposed
(an)gehörig, belonging	fremd , strange	heißsam , wholesome
angenehm , pleasant	folgsam , obedient	hold , gracious
bekannt , known	gehorfam , obedient	leicht , easy
benachbart , neighboring	gelegen , opportune	lieb , dear
bequem , comfortable	gemein (sam), common	nahe , near neidisch, envious schwer, difficult teuer, dear

treu, true
 vorteilhaft, helpful
 wert, dear

willkommen, welcome wünschenswert, desira- ble.

a. To these add negative compounds with un, as unangenehm, untreu; also a number of specialized perfect participles, from verbs which may not elsewhere govern the dative; as angeboren, innate; beschrieben, destined; ergeben, devoted; ermünscht, wished for; gelegen, opportune; geneigt, inclined; gewachsen, equal; gewogen, well disposed; überlegen, superior; unverhofft, unhoped for; verbunden, obliged; verhaßt, hateful; verwandt, akin. Besides abhold there are also several other compounds of ab, in which the prefix denotes aloofness; e. g. abbrüchig, abtrünnig, recreant.

b. A few other adjectives take the dat. when used in the predicate or adverbially in impersonal phrases; e. g. es ist mir angst, I am anxious; es macht mir bange, it makes me anxious; es ist mir recht, it suits me; es tut mir leid, I am sorry.

c. With many of the above named adjectives a prepositional construction is admissible; thus für with the acc. after the passive verbals (es ist für mich denkbar, instead of es ist mir denkbar), and also after angenehm, heißsam, gut, passend, vorteilhaft, and others; gegen with acc. after freundlich, feindlich, gehorsam, treu, and von with dat. after compounds of ab and ent.

261. The Dative with Nouns is rare, but occurs now and then in the classics; e. g. ein Muster Bürgern und Bauern (G.), a model for citizens and farmers; Gewißheit einem neuen Bunde (G.), certainty to a new covenant.

1. When it seems to occur in expressions of wishing it is really dependent on a suppressed verb; e. g. Gott sei Dank, thanks be (given) to God; Heil der Jungfrau (S.)! hail to the Maid! weß dir! woe to thee!

a. Closely akin to this is the dat. with interjections, which is common after wohl; e. g. wohl dir! well for thee. After other interjections it is rare; but Schiller has pfui den Tlenden! out upon the wretches; and Goethe, o den trefflichen Menschen! O the excellent people!

262. The Dative with Prepositions. There are sixteen prepositions that now regularly take the dative, nine that take the dative or accusative according to the nature of the construction, and several more that may take the dative instead of some other more usual construction. For lists and illustrations see §§ 376–7.

THE ACCUSATIVE

263. The Accusative as Direct Object. The direct object of a transitive verb is put in the accusative; e. g. ich lieb' dich, mich reizt deine schöne Gestalt (G.), I love thee, thy beautiful form charms me.

a. The object may denote the result of the verbal action and is then called a 'factitive' object; e. g. einen Brief schreiben, to write a letter.

1. Certain verbs vary between the transitive and the intransitive construction; thus:

a. Ankommen, in the sense of come over, and versichern, assure, which usually take the acc., occur also with the dat.

b. A few others which usually take the dat. occur in the classics with the acc. Such are begegnen, meet; helfen, help; schmeicheln, flatter, and the impersonals dünken, seem; ekeln, disgust; grauen and graufen, horrify. After kosten, cost, the personal object may be either dat. or acc.; es kostet dir (or dich) zehn Mark, it costs you ten marks.

c. With others the case depends upon the meaning, or the nature of the construction. Thus bezahlen, pay, takes a dat. of the person and acc. of the thing (er bezahlte mir das Geld); but if there is only a personal object it stands in the acc. (er bezahlte mich). — Nachahmen, imitate, may also take a dat. of the person, and an acc. of the thing. If there is but one object, it may stand in either case, but den Lehrer nachahmen means to take the teacher as a model, while den Lehrer nachahmen means to ape him maliciously. — Rufen, call, with acc. = summon, with dat., call to. Cf. further §§ 249, 3, a, and 257, 1, a.

2. Observe that many verbs which are intransitive in the simple form have transitive compounds of kindred meaning; e. g. dem Räte folgen, but den Rat befolgen, to follow the advice; auf eine Frage antworten, but eine Frage beantworten, to answer a question; einem sein Geld rauben, but einen seines Geldes berauben, to rob one of one's money.

3. After certain impersonal verbs the accusative object, denoting the person concerned, looks as if it were the subject of an intransitive verb; e. g. ihn schläfert, he is drowsy; mich dünkt, methinks (but also mir dünkt, see above under 1, b); mich hungert, I am hungry. Here belong, further, es dürstet, ekelt, friert, schaudert mich, I am thirsty, disgusted, cold, horrified. All are really transitive, es dünkt mich, meaning it causes me to think, ihn schläfert, it makes him drowsy, etc.

a. A much larger number of transitive verbs, not regularly impersonal, can be used impersonally with an object which may or may not be literally translatable; e. g. es freut mich, I am glad; mich überläuft's, I am all of a tremble; es faßt mich kalt beim Schopfe (G.), it is as if a cold hand seized me by the forelock. Es gibt, there is, there are, with acc. object, is equivalent (but see § 340) to a form of sein, with predicate nom. Notice further the use of the acc. in es setzt Liebe, they are coming to blows, there is a fight on, and in es hat Gefahr, there is danger. On the es in these idioms see § 303, 1, a.

264. The Cognate Accusative. Some intransitive verbs may take, in the accusative, an object which simply repeats, in the form of a noun, the idea of the verb; e. g. sie stirbt einen edlen Tod (G.), she will die a noble death; ich möchte bittere Tränen weinen (G.), I could weep bitter tears; gar schöne Spiele spiel' ich mit dir (G.), very beautiful games I will play with thee.

1. In like manner an intransitive verb may take a factitive object; e. g. der Lenz lächelt seinen Gruß, Spring smiles its greeting; was grindest du mir her (G.)? what art thou grinning at me?

265. The Accusative as Secondary Object. There are several verbs which may take two objects in the accusative; e. g. die Muse hatte den Äsopus seine Fabeln gelehrt (L.), the Muse had taught Æsop his fables; die Hoffnung nenn' ich meine Göttin noch (S.), I still call Hope my goddess. The construction may be considered under three heads, as follows:

1. The two objects are the person acted upon and the thing done. Here belong lehren, teach, and sometimes also, but only when the thing-object is a neuter pronoun, bitten and fragen, ask, bereden and überreden, persuade; e. g. lehre mich die wahre Weisheit, teach me true wisdom; ich will dich etwas fragen, I want to ask you something; ich bitte dich nur dies, I ask you only this; ihr werdet mich das nicht überreden, you will not persuade me (of) that. See under d below.

a. But after lehren one meets also with a dat. of the person; e. g. nur das Leben lehret jedem, was er sei (G.), only life teaches every one what he is. The German of to-day tends to avoid the double acc. with lehren as pedantic; instead of er lehrt mich (die) Musik, he teaches me music, say er unterrichtet mich in der Musik. After fragen, nach with dat. is used; after bitten, um with acc.; e. g. ich fragte ihn nach dem Wege, I asked him the way; ich bat ihn um Hilfe, I asked him for help.

b. With wissen lassen, tell, sehen lassen, show, and the like, when an infinitive takes the place of the thing-object, the acc. is the rule, but the dat. a not infrequent exception; e. g. laß mich deine Schätze sehen, let me see your treasures; but laß es mir durch Eintracht sehen (G.), prove it to me by harmony. So, too, the dat. may follow heißen, bid, when there is no infinitive; e. g. wer hieß ihn das (L.)? who bade him that? — instead of wer hieß ihn das tun?

c. By a confusion, familiar also in English, lernen, learn, is sometimes used with the sense and the construction of lehren; e. g. ich lerne sie allerlei lustige Lieder (G.), I am 'learning' her all sorts of jolly songs. But this is not good German.

d. In the phrase es nimmt mich Wunder, I wonder at it, es is really an old gen. of cause (wonder seizes me because of it) which came to be felt as a nom. So also the pronominal acc. after bitten, fragen, bereden and überreden, seems to have resulted from mistaking the es or eines for an acc. in such phrases as ich bitte dich's, ich bitte dich nur eines, and then extending the analogy. In the phrase jemand Lügen strafen, accuse one of lying, which looks like an instance of two accusatives, Lügen is probably an old gen. of cause (chide one for lying).

2. The two objects are the person or thing named and the name, the verbs those meaning to call (nennen, heißen, schelten, schimpfen, taufen); e. g. du nennst dich einen Teufel (G.), you call yourself a part; ich darf mich nicht des Glückes Liebbling schelten (S.), I can not call myself a favorite of Fortune.

a. After verbs of making, choosing, appointing — machen, wählen, erwählen, ernennen — what would be in English the second or factitive object is usually put in the dat. with zu; e. g. die Verzweiflung macht mich zur Furie, zum Tier (S.), makes me a fury, a beast; der Reichstag erwählte Rudolf zum Kaiser, elected Rudolf emperor.

3. The second object is an appositive with als or wie. The verbs are especially those of regarding, representing, knowing, finding, but many others admit the construction; e. g. ihr habt mich stets als eine Feindin nur betrachtet (S.), you have always regarded me only as an enemy; das Alter findet uns nur noch als wahre Kinder (G.), old age finds us still real children; du behandelst mich wie jene Katze (G.), you treat me like the cat in the fable.

a. Als denotes the character or capacity, wie the manner, in which the first object is concerned; e. g. man betrachtete ihn als Spion und behandelte ihn wie einen Hund, they regarded him as a spy and treated him like a dog.

b. For the nom. instead of the second object after a reflexive verb see § 271, 3.

c. Certain verbs of regarding and representing, as achten, halten, ausgehen, erklären, are most often followed by für with acc.; e. g. acht es nicht für Raub (G.), do not esteem it a derogation; für was hältst du das Tier (G.)? for what do you take the beast?

266. The Adverbial Accusative. The accusative may be used to denote various adverbial relations, as follows:

1. The way; e. g. wandle deine fürchterliche Straße (S.), go thy fearful way; doch ziehen sie ihren Weg dahin, er geht den seinen (G.), but they go on their way, he goes his.

a. As used with intransitive verbs the acc. of the way might be regarded as a cognate acc., only we can not separate er ging den kürzesten Weg from er sandte mich den kürzesten Weg, both of which are good German. This acc. is often accompanied by an adverb of direction; e. g. er ging die Treppe hinauf, he went up the steps; der Landvogt führt ihn den See herauf (S.), is bringing him up the lake.

2. Time; e. g. wir müssen fort noch diese Nacht, we must go this very night; und träte sie den Augenblick herein (G.), and were she to enter this moment; er leert' ihn jeden Schmauß (G.), he drained it at every feast.

a. As we have seen above, time is also denoted by the gen. In general the gen. is less definite, or is used in phrases implying repetition or custom ; e. g. eines Abends, one evening ; eines schönen Tages (indefinite time) ; des Abends, nachts, vormittags (custom). In the phrase jeden Abend, every evening, the idea of repetition is contained in jeden. Distinguish the acc. of time in gleich diesen Augenblick, this very moment, from the acc. of measure, in warte einen Augenblick, wait a moment.

b. Note the use of Ende, end, Mitte, middle, Anfang, beginning, without article before the name of a month ; e. g. er kehrte Ende März nach Hause, he returned home the last of March.

3. Measure of time, space, weight and cost ; e. g. er ist schon einen Monat hier, has been here a month ; wir gingen eine Strecke weiter, we went a piece further ; es wiegt einen Centner, it weighs a hundred ; es kostet sechs Mark, it costs six marks.

a. Measure of difference after an adjective was formerly expressed by a gen., and traces of the construction are found in the classics ; e. g. eines Hauptes länger als die Ritter alle (W.), a head taller than all the knights. One would now say um ein Haupt länger.

b. The acc. of measure is very often accompanied by an adjective or adverb ; e. g. drei Jahre alt ; sechs Fuß hoch ; eine Elle breit ; drei Meilen entfernt.

267. The Accusative Absolute. The accusative is often used absolutely, as if dependent upon habend understood ; e. g. das Schwert im Herzen blickst du hinauf (G.), the sword in thy heart, thou lookest up ; ich eile fort, vor mir den Tag, und hinter mir die Nacht (G.), I hasten on, the day before me and the night behind. So also in set phrases ; e. g. sie ruhten atmend Arm in Arm (G.), they rested, panting, arm in arm.

1. This accusative is often connected with a perfect participle used absolutely ; e. g. wenn ich so saß, den Ellenbogen aufgestemmt (G.), when I would sit thus, with my elbow propped up ; schon den Hals entblößt, kniet' ich auf dem Mantel (L.), my neck already bared, I was kneeling on my mantle.

2. Different is the acc. dependent upon a verb of wishing or offering ; e. g. guten Morgen ! good morning ! diesen Kuß der ganzen Welt (S.) ! this kiss to the whole world !

3. Note finally, in this connection, the occasional use of the acc. with an interjection; e. g. pfui dich! fie upon you! o mich vergesslichen (L.)! oh me, forgetful! i. e. how forgetful I am!

268. The Accusative with Prepositions. The accusative is always used after eight prepositions and sometimes after nine others. For lists see §§ 376–7.

269. The Accusatives with Adjectives. A few adjectives that regularly take the genitive admit the accusative instead. See § 252, 1, a.

APPOSITION

270. Immediate Apposition. An appositive agrees in case with its antecedent; e. g. was können wir, ein Volk der Hirten (S.)? what can we do, a race of shepherds? das Hauptaugenmerk mein, des Geognosten (G.), the chief concern of me, the geologist; trink ihn aus, den Trank der Labe (G.), drink it up, the draught of solace.

1. A noun in apposition with a sentence is put in the nominative; e. g. Pappenheim starb gleich am folgenden Tag, ein unersetzlicher Verlust für das kaiserliche Heer (S.), Pappenheim died the very next day, an irremediable loss for the imperial army.

2. For titles in apposition with proper names see § 285.

271. Mediate Apposition. Apposition may be mediated by als or wie (cf. § 242, 2); e. g. komm' ich als Gattin (G.)? do I come as wife? wie einen Kreis trüb's mich um (S.), like a top it sent me around.

1. An appositive with als may denote cause, real or supposed; e. g. mir, als dem ältesten, fiel es zu, it fell to me as the oldest; am 24ten als am Tage, wo — (G.), on the 24th, that being the day on which —. Such an appositive may be used to explain an adverb; e. g. doch morgen, als am ersten Ostertage (G.), but to-morrow, that being the first Easter holiday.

a. After als = in the capacity of, an appositive may stand in the nominative without regard to the case of its antecedent, and may even explain a possessive; e. g. die Ansprüche dieses Menschen als Dichter, the claims of this man as poet; seine Stellung als Haupt einer großen Partei, his position as head of a great party.

b. The rule of congruence in case holds also after als = than; e. g. das weiß niemand als ich, no one but me knows that; das sag' ich keinem andern als ihm (Gr.), I will tell no one but him.

2. After wie in comparisons the nominative sometimes occurs without regard to the preceding case; e. g. einem Manne wie Sie kann es nicht an Gelde fehlen (L.), money can not be lacking to a man like you.

3. After a reflexive pronoun one sometimes meets with the nominative instead of an appositional object; e. g. er bewährte sich als treuer Freund, proved himself a true friend; ich unterzeichne mich als der Ihrige, I sign myself 'yours'; er fühlt sich bald ein Mann (G.), feels himself a man. But this construction is hardly to be approved except with true reflexives; for zeigt sich als frecher Lügner, shows himself a bold liar, say rather frecher Lügner (Blatz). Still, Lessing wrote: Sie sehen mich ein Raub der Wellen, you see me a prey to the waves.

272. Spurious Apposition. As we have seen (§ 246, 1, a, § 253, 2, a), an appositional construction has taken the place of an older partitive genitive after indeclinables and also after nouns of weight, measure and number; e. g. etwas Gutes; mit etwas Gutem; ein Glas Wein; eine Menge Kinder.

1. After nouns of weight and measure the appositive generally denotes material and is uninflected; e. g. mit einem Glas Wein, with a glass of wine; gegen drei Pfund Silber, about three pounds of silver. After a noun of number the rule of apposition holds when the dat. plu. is concerned; e. g. mit drei Dutzend Eiern, with three dozen eggs; aus einer Menge Beispielen, from a multitude of examples.

THE DECLENSION OF NOUNS

273. Strong and Weak Declension.

The terms 'strong' and 'weak,' as applied to the declension of nouns, were introduced by Grimm (Deutsche Grammatik II, 597, Geschichte der deutschen Sprache, p. 652). Nouns with stem ending in a vowel he called 'strong' because they apply the case-ending directly, thus seeming to rely upon their own resources; whereas the 'weak' nouns need the support of an n-suffix. The names are fanciful, but convenient and in universal use. It is therefore best to keep them, tho they have little force as applied to modern German, in which the old vowel-stems no longer appear as such and the original conditions are in other respects very much obscured.

THE STRONG DECLENSION

274. The First Class. Besides the nouns specified in § 79, the First Class contains one masculine in e, namely, Räße, cheese. Here belong also verbal nouns (infinitives) in (e)n, including Scin and Tun, which are the only monosyllables. But infinitives form no plural.

1. The nouns of Class 1 which have umlaut as plural-sign are as follows, the * marking those in which it is optional:

Acker, field	*Hammel, wether	Nagel, nail
Apfel, apple	Hammer, hammer	Ofen, stove
Boden, ground	Handel, trade	Sattel, saddle
*Bogen, bow	Kloster, convent	*Schaden, injury
Bruder, brother	*Laden, store	Schnabel, beak
*Faden, thread	Mangel, defect	Schwager, brother-in-law
Garten, garden	Mantel, mantle	Tochter, daughter
Graben, trench	Mutter, mother	Vater, father
Hafen, haven	Nabel, navel	Vogel, bird

a. Of the above all are mas. except das Kloster, die Mutter and die Tochter. — Not good, tho sometimes seen and more often heard, are the plurals Rästen, boxes; Krägen, collars; Läger, camps; Mägen, stomachs; Wägen, wagons; Wässer, waters. Some also condemn Bögen as bad. — It is usual to distinguish between Fensterläden, shutters, and Kaufläden, stores.

b. The nouns mentioned in § 279, 2, may be regarded as of this class if we posit as nom. the form in en.

275. The Second Class. For the genitive and dative of monosyllables the long forms, e. g. Tages, Tage, are to be looked upon as the normal literary usage; but the short forms Tagē, Tag, are common in all styles. In poetry and studied prose rhythm is often a deciding factor in the choice; in the case of compounds, the accent; thus Vo'rſtandē, but Verſta'ndē.

a. Some authorities, e. g. Blatz, state that the dropping of e is more apt to occur after a long stem-vowel; i. e. that Baumē, Baum, Tagē, Tag, are more common than Fallē, Fall, Sinnē, Sinn. But no great importance can be attached to this principle. For the dat. after a preposition numerous set phrases prefer the short form; e. g. zu Fuß, on foot; mit Fleiß, purposely; mit Recht, rightly; zum Teil, in part; mit Weib und Kind, with wife and child. But others have the long form; as zu Hauſe, at home; bei Tiſche, at table.

1. The monosyllabic feminines of Class 2 are as follows (all with umlaut in the plural, if possible):

Angſt, distress	Hand, hand	Mauſ, mouse
Art, axe	Haut, skin	Nacht, night
Bank, bench	Kluft, gorge	Naht, seam
Braut, bride	Kraft, force	Not, need
Bruſt, heat	Kuh, cow	Ruß, nut
Bruſt, breast	-kunft, coming	Schnur, string
Fauſt, fist	Kunſt, art	Schwulſt, swelling
Flucht, flight	Lauſ, louse	Stadt, city
Frucht, fruit	Luſt, air	Wand, wall
Ganſ, goose	Luſt, delight	Wurſt, sausage
Gruf, grave	Macht, might	Zucht, breeding
Gunſt, favor	Magd, maid	Zunft, guild

a. Bank = bank, is weak. — The phrase zu Gunſten, in favor of, also written zu gunſten, preserves an old dat. plu. without umlaut (cf. § 238, 1, a). Of like character is Handen in the phrases zu Handen, at hand, abhanden, missing, vorhanden, existent. Note, further, nachten, instead of Nächte, in Weiſhnachten, Christmas. The adverb nachts, at night, as if from a mas. stem, descends from an old nahtes, formed after the analogy of tages. — The verbal -kunft is not used as a separate word, but occurs in numerous compounds, as Ankunft, arrival, plu. Ankünſte. — Schwulſt is sometimes weak.

b. Sau, sow, used to belong to this class, but is now usually weak, with plu. Sauen, instead of Säuē.

2. As a rule masculine monosyllables of Class 2 have umlaut in the plural. The following, however, are without it in the normal usage of to-day, tho many of them also occur with it, especially in early writers :

Aal, eel	Herzog, duke	Schall, sound
Aar, eagle	Huf, hoof	Schluck, swallow
Alt, act	Hund, dog	Schmuck, ornament
Amboß, anvil	Kran, crane	Schuft, wretch
Arm, arm	Lachs, salmon	Schuh, shoe
Bau, building	Laut, sound	Spalt, cleft
Dachs, badger	Luchs, lynx	Star, starling
Docht, wick	Lump, rascal	Stoff, stuff
Dolch, dagger	Molch, salamander	Strolch, lubber
Dom, cathedral	Mord, murder	Strauß, ostrich
Druck, print	Ort, place	-such, seeking
Erlaß, edict	Park, park	Takt, tempo
Forst, forest	Psad, path	Tag, day
Gau, district	Plan, plan	Thron, throne
Gemahl, consort	Puls, pulse	Tod, death
Grad, degree	Punkt, point	Trupp, troop
Hall, sound	Quast, tassel	Tusch, flourish
Halm, stalk	Rost, gridiron	Verlust, loss
Hauch, breath

a. The plu. Baue is rare, its place being taken by Bauten. — Notice Drucke, prints, and Abdrucke, deprints, but Ausdrücke, expressions, and Eindrücke, impressions. — The plu. Orte prevails in the collective use ; e. g. an allen Orten (cf. the adverb allerorten), in all places, but zwei Örter, einzelne Örter. — The usual plu. of Park is not Parke, but Parks. — The plurals Morde, Schmucke, Tode are rare, their place being taken by Mordtaten, Schmuckstücken, and Todesfälle. — Under -such are included Besuch, visit, Versuch, attempt, and others. — Forst, Gau, Halm, Lump, Strauß, Thron occur also with weak forms, especially in the plu., but the strong are to be preferred.

3. Monosyllabic neuters of Class 2 are regularly without umlaut, but there are two or three exceptions. Das Chor, choir of a church (der Chor = chorus), makes die Chöre. — Das Floß, raft, usually has die Flöße, but sometimes Flüße, also Flößer. — Das Boot, boat, has Boote, rarely Böte. — Die Röhre, as plural of das Rohr, reed, no longer occurs.

4. To Class 2 belong a large number of borrowed words (both masculine and neuter), with accent on the ultima ;

e. g. der Admira'l, admiral; der Defa'n, deacon; der Rapi-tä'n, captain; der Offizie'r, officer; der Plura'l, plural; das Tale'nt, talent; das Manda't, mandate; das Telegra'mm, telegram; das Adjekti'v, adjective.

a. As a rule such foreign words are without umlaut in the plu., but there are a few well established exceptions, namely: Altäre, altars; Bischöfe, bishops; Choräle, chorals; Kanäle, canals; Kapläne, chaplains; Kardinäle, cardinals; Moräste, marshes; Paläste, palaces. On the other hand, the form without umlaut is still preferred in Admirale, admirals; Generale, generals; Korporale, corporals. Tenor, tenor, has both Tenore and Tenöre.

b. Foreign words in § with preceding short vowel double the § in inflection; e. g. Brama'rbaß, boaster, plu. -aße; P'ltis, polecat, plu. -isse; Omnibus, omnibus, plu. -usse. But Topa's, topaz, with long a, plu. Topase.

276. The Third Class. The monosyllabic neuters, all with umlaut in the plural if possible, are as follows (the * calling attention to a remark under a below :

*Aas, carcass	*Gewand, garment	Loch, hole
Am, office	Glas, glass	*Mal, mark
Bad, bath	Glied, limb	Mahl, meal
*Band, ribbon	Grab, grave	Maul, mouth
Bild, picture	Gras, grass	Nest, nest
Blatt, leaf	Gut, estate	Pfand, pledge
*Brett, board	*Haupt, head	Rad, wheel
Buch, book	Haus, house	Reis, twig
Dach, roof	Holz, wood	Rind, cow, ox
*Ding, thing	Horn, horn	*Scheit, billet
Dorf, village	Huhn, fowl	*Schild, shield
Ei, egg	*Joch, yoke	Schloß, castle
Fach, specialty	Kalb, calf	Schwert, sword
Faß, cask	Kind, child	Stift, peg
Feld, field	Kleid, dress	Tal, valley
*Gehalt, salary	Korn, grain	*Trumm, fragment
Geld, money	Kraut, weed	*Tuch, cloth
Gemach, room	Lamm, lamb	Volk, folk
*Gemüt, spirit	*Land, land	Wams, jacket
Geschlecht, race	*Licht, light	Weib, woman
*Gesicht, face	Lied, song	*Wort, word Geist, ghost

a. Haas ; plu. (rare) Äſſer, also Haſe. — Band ; plu. Bänder, ribbons, but Bande, bonds ; Bände, from der Band, = volumes. — Brett ; plu. usually Bretter, but often brette in compounds. — Ding ; regular plu. Dinge, but sometimes Dinger, especially as applied to girls, as in Faust, l. 3693, ihr armen, armen Dinger. — Gehalt ; der Gehalt, die Gehalte, are better than das Gehalt, die Gehälter. — Gemüt ; plu. Gemüter, rarely Gemüte. — Geficht ; plu. Gefichter, faces, but Gefichte, sights, visions. — Gewand ; plu. Gewänder, rarely Gewande. — Haupt ; plu. Häupter, but note the phrase zu Häupten, at the head. — Joch, plu. Jöche, but sometimes Jöcher in a technical sense. — Land ; plu. Länder ; Land is poetic and is also met with in compounds, as die Rheinlande. — Licht ; plu. Lichter, lights, but Lichte, candles. — Mal ; plu. Mäler, marks, but Male, times. Denkmal, monument, has =mäler or =male. — Scheit ; plu. Scheiter and Scheite. — Schild ; usually der Schild, die Schilde, but also das Schild, die Schilder, especially in the sense of signs. — Trumm ; used only in plu., die Trümmer ; and even this has been replaced in part by the weak Trümmern. — Tuch ; plu. Tücher, pieces of cloth, shawls ; also in compounds, as Handtücher, towels ; but Tuche, kinds of cloth. — Wort ; plu. Wörter, disconnected vocables ; but Worte, words, in connected discourse.

b. The foreign neuters that have come into Class 3 are Spita'l or Spita'l, hospital, plu. =ale or äler ; Regime'nt, regiment, plu. =er for military regiments, but =e in other senses ; Ram'ſol', waistcoat, plu. =ole or =öler ; Kapitäl', capital of a column, plu. =äle or =äler.

c. For the uninflected plu. of monosyllabic neuters see § 283, 2.

1. The masculines of Class 3 are :

Böſewicht , villain	Mann , man	Strauß , nosegay
Geiſt , spirit	Ort , place	Vormund , guardian
Gott , God	Rand , rim	Wald , forest
Irrtum , error	Reichtum , riches	Wurm , worm
Leib , body	Strauß , bush

a. These words are interlopers in Class 3, and the most of them have, or have had, secondary plurals in e. Böſewichte is less common than Böſewichter. — Geiſte is archaic or technical, = essences. — Leibe is archaic. — Mann forms Mannen in the sense of vassals. — For Ort see § 275, 2, a. — The plu. Rande is rare. — Sträuche is better than Sträucher, and Sträüſe than Sträuffer. — Wälde and Würme are archaic.

b. Note the anomalous Wiſing, viking, plu. Wiſinger.

THE WEAK DECLENSION

277. Feminines. The monosyllabic nouns referred to in § 92 number about sixty, some of the most common being Bahn, track; Form, form; Frau, wife; Pflicht, duty; See, sea; Tat, deed; Welt, world; Zahl, number; Zeit, time. A complete list need not be given, since all monosyllabic feminines not included under § 275, 1, are weak. The polysyllabic feminines are countless (cf. § 93, 1).

1. In Old German weak feminines took the ending (e)n in the gen., dat. and acc. sing. The inflection is now obsolete except in auf Erden, on earth, but is common in the classics as a poetic license; e. g. in Glanz der Sonnen (S.), in the light of the sun.

278. Masculines. Here are included:

1. Nouns in e and a number of others that have lost an e, thus becoming (as a rule) monosyllabic. These last are:

Bär, bear	Pagestolz, bachelor	Dñ(ē), oz
Bursch(e), lad	Helb, hero	Prinz, prince
Christ, Christian	Herr, sir	Pfau, peacock
Fink(e), larch	Hirt, shepherd	Schent, cup-bearer
Fürst, prince	Lump, vagabond	Spatz, sparrow
Ged, fop	Mensch, man	Eproß, scion
Genoß, companion	Mohr, Moor	Steinmetz, mason
Gesell(e), companion	Narr, fool	Tor, fool
Graf, count

a. Some of the above, as Bursche (in the plu.), Fink (in the sing.), Ged, Pagestolz, Lump, Pfau, admit of strong inflection. Note also the phrase Narrs genug (W.), fool enough.

b. The titles Fürst, Graf, Prinz (but not Herr) are regularly uninflected when used without the article before a proper name; e. g. Fürst Bismarcks Reden, Prince Bismarck's speeches; ein Brief an Graf von Moltke, a letter to Count Von Moltke; mit Prinz Karl, with Prince Karl; but Herrn Schmidts Haus, ein Brief an Herrn Schmidt, etc. Note also the undeclined title in ich hat er erwählt zum Fürst der Liebe (S.), he has chosen me Prince of Love; willst du der Liebe Fürst dich würdig nennen (S.).

2. Most foreign words in t, ant, ent, denoting persons; also words ending in the Greek suffixes arch, graph, ist, frat, log(e), nom, soph, and some others not easily classifiable; e. g. Poet, poet; Bandit, bandit; Protestant, protestant; Referent, reviewer; Monarch, monarch; Geograph, geog-

a. Foreign words in t and nt that do not denote persons are mostly strong, second class, as Salat, salad; Granit, granite; Moment, moment; Horizont, horizon. But a few have come into the weak declension; e. g. Brillant, brilliant; Elefant, elephant; Planet, planet; Komet, comet.

3. Ethnic names in ar, as Barbar, barbarian; Bulgare, Bulgarian; Janitscha, Janizary; Magyar, Magyar; Tartar, Tartar; Ungar, Hungarian. Also Bayer, Bavarian, and Pommer, Pomeranian.

THE MIXED DECLENSION

279. Masculines. These may be grouped under three heads, to wit:

1. The following words, which are normally strong in the singular, but weak in the plural:

Bauer , peasant	Nachbar , neighbor	Stachel , goad
Dorn , thorn	Nerv , nerve	Strahl , ray
Gaum , palate	Psalm , psalm	Untertan , subject
Gevatter , gossip	See , lake	Better , cousin
Konful , consul	Sporn , spur	Vorfahr , ancestor
Mast , mast	Staat , state	Zins , interest
Muskel , muscle

a. The most of these occur also with weak forms in the sing. and strong in the plu. — Dorn has plu. Dornen = thorns, Dörner = drills; but one meets also with Dorne and Dörne. — Gaum is rare in the sing., its place being taken by Gaumen. — Muskel and Nerv are often fem. whence the weak plurals. — Sporn has plu. Sporen, less often Sporne and Sporen. — Stachel was once fem., whence the plu. Stacheln.

b. Several foreign words are of unsettled inflection; as Fasan, pheasant; gen. -s, plu. -en or -e; Magnet, magnet; gen. -es or -en, plu. -e or -en; Tribun, tribune; gen. -s or -en, plu. -e(n); Pedell, beadle; gen. -s or -en, plu. -e(n).

c. In talk one often hears an n-plural where it does not belong; e. g. Pantoffeln, slippers; Stiefeln, boots. So also with neuters, as Möbeln, furniture, and even Fenstern, windows.

2. Several nouns in (e)n with genitive in enſ. These are for the most part weak nouns in e that developed a secondary nominative in en, which gave rise to the genitive in enſ, the rest of the inflection remaining weak. In some cases the secondary nominative in en has become the usual form. If we start with that, the entire group may be regarded as of Class 1, strong declension. The words, in the form now usual for the nominative, are:

Frieden, peace	Glaube, faith	Same, seed
Funke, spark	Haufen, heap	Schaden, injury
Gedanke, thought	Name, name	Wille, will Gefallen, favor

a. Buchſtabe, letter, and Schmerz, pain, sometimes form a gen. in enſ, though they have no nom. in en (cf. the neuter Herz, § 97, 2, a). — Fels, rock, originally strong, developed a secondary form, Feſſen, under the influence of which Fels became weak; we have now nom. Fels and Feſſen, gen. Feſſes (rare), Feſſen and Feſſens, dat. Feſſen and Feſſen, acc. Feſſen and Feſſen, plu. Feſſen (Feſſe archaic).

3. Latin masculines in or, plu. o'ren, together with a few of Greek origin in on, plural o'nen; e.g. Doſtor, plural Doſto'ren; Dä'mon, demon, plural Dämo'nen; Ä'on, æon, plural Äo'nen.

a. Paſſöre, for Paſtoren, is provincial. Tenore, or Tenöre, tenors, is of Italian, not Latin, origin.

280. Neuters. The neuters of the mixed declension are:

1. The following words:

Auge, eye	ſemb(e), shirt	Juwe'l, jewel
Bett, bed	Herz, heart	Ohr, ear
Ende, end	Inter'eſſe, interest	Weh, pain

a. The older plurals Bette, ſembe, ſember are now practically obsolete. For the inflection of Herz see § 97, 2, a. — Juwel, sometimes mas., has also plu. Juwe'le. — Weh forms plu. Wehen only in the sense of birth-pains.

2. Latin words in um (together with a few that have dropped um), several in al and il, and most Greek words in ma; words in ium, al and il have the plural in ien if the Latin plural ended in ia. Examples with plural in en: Individuum, individual, Individuen; Verb(um), verb, Verben (but see § 281, 1); Inse'kt, insect, Inse'kten; Statu't, statute, Statu'ten; Drama, drama, Dramen; Thema, theme, Themen. With plural in ien: Minera'l, mineral, Minera'lien; Kapita'l, capital, Kapita'lien; Fossi'l, fossil, Fossi'lien. Here belong also several plurals without singular; as Mobi'lien, movables; Natura'lien, 'specimens'; Rea'lien, exact sciences.

a. Greek words in ma that have lost their final vowel in German form the plu. in me; e. g. Axi'o'm, axiom, plu. Axi'o'me; Proble'm, problem, plu. Proble'me. Cf. § 281.

FOREIGN AND ANOMALOUS INFLECTIONS

281. Latin and Greek Words that have become so far naturalized as to admit of German inflections are provided for in the preceding sections. It remains to consider those which, because of an intractable form, retain more or less the character of foreign words.

1. In the case of Latin and Greek words that have not become naturalized the nom. sing. is now generally used for the entire sing. (but a gen. in s is always permissible unless the word ends in a sibilant), the nom. plu. for the entire plu.; thus das Verbum, the verb, des Verbum(s), dem Verbum, die Verba, der Verba, etc. The practice of using Latin inflections in German discourse, tho once very common, is now on the wane, and is hardly to be approved, tho still often met with. For Goethe's Blätter des Codicis, leaves of the codex, one would now prefer Blätter des Coder. So also in allen diesen Fällen (not Castibus), in all these cases; die Bildung solcher Composita (not Compositorum), the formation of such compounds.

a. A few words in s that are thus indeclinable in the sing. form German plurals in en; e. g. Globus, globe, plu. Globen; Rhythmus, rhythm, plu. Rhythmen. So also words in ismus, ism, as Solöcismus, solecism, plu. Solöcismen. The plu. of Atlas, atlas, is Atla'ten; of Primas, primate, Prima'ten; of Klima, climate, Kli'mata or Kli'mate.

b. Words that admit a German plu. are sometimes given a foreign plu. instead; e. g. Adjekti'v, adjective, plu. Adjektive, or -a; Faktum, fact, plu. Fakten or Fakta.

282. The Plural in s. Words borrowed from languages that have a plural in s often retain such plural in German; e. g. Clowns, Clubs, Lords, Strifes, Parks, Beefsteaks, Chefs, Babies, Bills, from the English, and Chefs, Genies, Abbés, Adieus, Arrangements, Bicycles, from the French.

1. A plu. in s is also sometimes given to words, both German and foreign, which are not nouns, but are used as such; e. g. die Facits, the amounts (Lat. facit, it makes); die Amens, the amens; die Wens and die Abers, the ifs and the buts.

2. Thru Low-German influence a plu. in s is sometimes given (in familiar language or for humorous effect) to genuine German words instead of the regular form; e. g. Fräuleins, misses; Mädels, girls; Jungens, lads; Kerls, fellows.

283. Defective Inflection.

1. The poets, especially Goethe, sometimes drop the case-ending from the first of two nouns connected in the same construction; e. g. an Eier und Vögeln fehlt es nicht, there is no lack of beasts and birds (Faust, l. 238); von Sonn- und Welten, of suns and worlds (ibid. l. 279).

2. Monosyllabic neuters, and also Mann, once formed an uninflected plu. identical in form with the nom. sing. Such plurals are common in early modern German, and even later in poetry; e. g. drei arme Kind (G.), three poor children; über vierzehn Jahr (G.), over fourteen years. There is no elision in such cases.

INFLECTION OF PROPER NAMES

284. Personal Names. The brief statements in §§ 99–100 need to be supplemented as follows:

1. Down to about the beginning of this century names of persons were more fully inflected than at present, forming a gen. in ens as well as s, and a dat. and acc. in (e)n; e. g. Goethens, Goethen, Gertrudens, Gertruden. So, too, the gen. in s was used after the article; e. g. das Ansehen des Homers (L.), the prestige of Homer; die Leiden des jungen Werthers (G.), the sufferings of young Werther. With names in e or a sibilant the gen. in ens is still common in books, tho seldom used in talk; for Helenens, Maryens, the tendency is to employ Helenes, Mary'. (Colloquially, Fritz seine Bücher may take the place of Fritz' or a. But when a proper name with preceding adjective and article is followed by the noun on which the gen. depends, the gen. in s is still the rule; thus one would say des jungen Werthers Leiden.

(Frißens Bücher.) The dat. and acc. in en are still used to a certain extent, especially in baptismal names.

b. To mark the gen. an apostrophe is needed only after a sibilant; e. g. Voss' Schriften, Voss's writings; but Schillers, Ciceros Briefe, Schiller's, Cicero's letters.

2. More restricted than formerly, again, is the use of Greek and Latin inflections; for Musäi Schriften, write Musäus' Schriften or die Schriften des Musäus. Well-known classical names are apt to take the article, after which, of course, there is no inflection; e. g. die Gedichte des Horaz, the poems of Horace. Biblical names still retain to a greater degree their Latin inflections; e. g. die Bücher Moses, the books of Moses; die Briefe Pauli, the letters of Paul.

a. The name Jesus Christus forms gen. Jesu Christi, dat. Jesu Christi, acc. Jesum Christum.

3. A plu. of modern surnames is often formed in s; as die Grimms, die Brentanos, the Grimms, the Brentanos.

a. In phrases like bei Müllers, at (the) Müllers', or Engels sind ver-reist, the Engels have gone away, we have a gen. sing. (cf. § 246, 5, d) which has come to be felt as a plu.

b. Christian names form a plu., when one is needed, in e, en, or s; as die Heinriche, die Mayen, die Ottos, die Bertas.

c. Latin names in o, gen. onis, make a plu. in ne or nen; as die Scipionen, die Catone.

d. Note finally die Judasse, the Judases. But classical names should not be treated thus; say die Plautus, not die Plautusse.

285. Names in Connection with Titles. The rule of apposition in § 270 does not fully cover the inflection of names used with titles. Thus:

1. When a name is preceded by a title (other than Herr) that is without the article, only the name is inflected; e. g. Kaiser Wilhelms Regierung, or die Regierung Kaiser Wilhelms, the reign of Emperor William; mit König Friedrichs Macht; Fürst Bismarcks Reden; das Lied von Prinz Eugen; Doktor Schmidts Patienten; but Herrn Schmidts Haus; ein Brief an Herrn Schmidt.

a. If a preceding title has the article, then only the title is inflected, and even that may drop an s, not an en; e. g. die Regierung des Kaiser(s) Wilhelm; die Neben des Fürsten Bismarck; die Wohnung des Doktor(s) Wagner.

b. For the conduct of Fräulein Müller one may say das Betragen des Fräuleins Müller, or, treating the title as fem., der Fräulein Müller. The last might be plu., an ambiguity which can be avoided by saying von Fräulein M. Des Fräulein M. is not to be approved, tho often heard. Quite proper is Ihre Fräulein Tochter, nom. and acc. or Ihrer Fräulein Tochter, gen. and dat.

c. The practice of adding in to a title to denote the wife of a man bearing the title is obsolescent; for Mrs. Dr. say Frau Doktor; Frau Doktorin means that the lady herself is a doctor. Still more obsolete is the addition of in to surnames to denote female members of the family, as Luise Millerin for Luise Miller (S.); die Karsthin, Frau Karsch.

2. A descriptive appositive must be declined whether the name is itself declined or not; e. g. die Wohnung des Doktor Wagner, des berühmten Naturforschers, of Dr. Wagner, the famous naturalist.

3. When two or more names occur together only the last is subject to inflection; e. g. Ernst Moritz Arndts Gedichte, E. M. Arndt's poems.

a. With names containing von the gen. inflection should go with the preceding name if the phrase denotes place or descent, but with the second if it denotes only nobility; e. g. die Ansprüche Rudolfs von Habsburg, the claims of Rudolf of Hapsburg; die Gedichte Heinrich von Kleists, the poems of H. von Kleist.

THE SYNTAX OF THE ADJECTIVE

286. The Uninflected Attributive. The following statements are supplementary to § 101:

1. In poetry an adjective is often uninflected before a neuter noun (less often before a masculine or feminine) in the nominative and accusative singular; e. g. ein redlich Wort (S.), an honest word; ein furchtbar, wütend Schrecknis (S.), a fearful, raging terror; lieb Knabe (S.), dear boy; hat Sie gut Bier und Wein (U.)? i. e. gutes Bier und guten Wein.

a. So, too, in colloquial phrases and ballad nicknames; e. g. bar Geld, cash; auf gut Glück, for good luck; Schön Suschen, Fair Susie.

2. An attributive adjective which follows its noun is uninflected. The usage occurs chiefly in poetry; e. g. Röslein rot (G.), little red rose; bei einem Wirte wundermuth (U.), with a wondrously generous host; der Räuber groß und wild, the robber, tall and fierce; ein Schloß so hoch und hehr (U.), a castle so high and grand; mein Vater selig, my late father.

3. An uninflected adjective is sometimes used to characterize a measure, weight, coinage, or the like; e. g. ein Glas bayerisch, a glass of Bavarian (beer); fünf Taler bar, five dollars cash.

4. Where two or more adjectives occur together in verse, inflection is sometimes confined to the last; e. g. mit grausam, teuflischer Lust (S.), with cruel, fiendish delight; ein stolz, verbrießlich, schwerer Narr (S.), a proud, peevish, stolid fool. Here grausam, stolz and verbrießlich have the form but not the force of adverbs. Such cases must be distinguished from those in which a true adverb occurs, as in ein herrlich schön geformter Mann (G.), a man of gloriously beautiful form.

a. Official designations like Kaiserlich Deutsche Post, Imperial German Mail, and Königlich Sächsische Regierung, Royal Saxon Government, fall under the head of compound adjectives (§ 109, 5).

3. Lauter, and the archaic eitel, are uninflected in the sense of sheer, nothing but; e. g. lauter Unsinn, sheer nonsense; mit lauter Wasser, with nothing but water; but mit lauterem Wasser, with pure water. So, too, genug, enough, which usually follows its noun; also, adjectives in erlei and several pronominals. For ganz and halb see § 109, 3.

287. Stems in Uninflected el, en, er show some difference of usage in the matter of contraction. Except before em and en, they usually drop the e of the stem unless both e's be retained; e. g. ein dunkler Tag; ein offnes Fenster; and(c)re Leute; nichts Besseres or Beßres. Before em and en stems in el and en usually drop the e of the stem, those in er that of the ending; thus bei offnem Fenster; mit edlem Stolz (but mit edelm Stolz is not uncommon); die ander(e)n (much better than die andren); zu was Besserm (better than Beßrem).

288. Variable Inflections. Certain cases of variation between strong and weak inflection require particular attention.

1. The use of the weak genitive before a noun in (e)ß, without preceding article (§ 104, a), as in voll frohen Lebens (G.), full of joyous life, is of quite modern origin (17th century). It is still condemned by some grammarians, but is common in the classics and prevails decidedly in the usage of to-day. It is due to a feeling that two strong forms in ß should not come together. Schiller has, in Wallenstein, both stehendes Fußes and stehenden Fußes; in Tell, both mildeß Laufß and muntern Laufß. Goethe's usage is similarly inconsistent. It may be said that argument favors the strong form, but that usage favors the weak.

a. Pronominal adjectives prefer the strong form; e.g. keineswegs, meines Wissens, jedes Umstands, andereß Sinnes. In allenfalls and jedenfalls we have, according to Grimm, not a weak gen., but an acc. with adverbial ß.

2. In the nom. of address the adjective is properly strong, as in werter Herr, worthy sir; geehrte Herren, honored sirs. But lieben Freunde is not uncommon for liebe Freunde.

3. The use of a weak adjective after all forms of der, dieß, jen-, jed-, and after all inflected forms of ein, sein and the possessives, is now a settled practice; but exceptions are met with in the classics, especially after die, diese and jene in the nom. and acc. plu.

a. After the forms (nom.-acc. pl.) alle, andere, beide, einige, etliche, manche, mehrere, solche, viele, wenige, and also after gewisse, sämtliche and verschiedene, usage permits either strong or weak inflection, but seems to favor weak after alle, beide, manche, solche, and strong after the others. Except in the nom.-acc. pl. these words quite regularly weaken a following adjective.

b. After zweier and dreier strong inflection is the rule, but weak occurs.

4. With personal pronouns the rule is: weak inflection except after the nominative and accusative singular; but strong forms occur after mir, dir, ihm, and also after uns and euch when accusative.

a. Strong inflection in these cases marks a less intimate association of noun and adjective, the latter, with its noun, being felt as an appositive even tho not set off by a comma. Thus the usual dat. of du armes Kind is dir armen Kinde, but this easily becomes dir, armem Kinde. Cf. further: ihr schönen Damen, ye fair ladies, but ihr, schöne Damen, you, fair ladies; euch, tapf're Helden, shall a woman conquer you, brave heroes?

5. In general two successive adjectives are either both strong or both weak, according to what precedes; e.g. guter alter (not alte) Wein; ein schönes neues (not neue) Haus. But when the first adjective is a strong genitive or dative, the second becomes weak if it is not coördinate in meaning with the first, but is a standing epithet of the noun; e.g. mit frischem, klarem Wasser, with fresh, clear water, but mit frischem kölnischen Wasser, with fresh cologne; ein Muster hoher sittlichen Güte, a model of high moral excellence, i. e. a moral excellence which is high, not an excellence which is high and moral; von großem politischen Interesse, of great political interest. In such cases coördinate adjectives are usually separated by a comma.

a. In like manner the adjectives of reference which dispense with the article (§ 224, 3, b) may weaken a following adjective; e.g. folgender bedeutende Umstand, the following important circumstance.

289. The Predicate Adjective. (Supplementary to § 110).

1. The uninflected appositional predicate must be distinguished from the inflected attributive in agreement with a noun understood; e.g. an Hoffnung reich, im Glauben fest, dacht' ich — (G.), rich in hope, firm in faith, I thought —; der Kaiser, kühn durch die errungenen Siege (S.), the emperor, emboldened by the victories won; but alle Menschen, schlechte wie auch gute, all men, bad as well as good; weiterer Verkehr, friedlicher und kriegerischer, further intercourse, peaceful and warlike.

a. While the appositional predicate is not rare, especially in participial constructions, it is much less common in German than in English. The latter is compelled to place the adjective after its noun whenever the adjective is qualified by a phrase; but in most such cases German prefers a prepositive attributive, the phrase being thrown in between the adjective and a preceding article. That is to say, such phrases as a young woman proud of her beauty, a boy prone to idleness, in a manner very painful to me, become in German, usually, eine junge, auf ihre Schönheit stolze Dame; ein zur Faulheit geneigter Knabe; in einer für mich höchst schmerzlichen Weise.

2. Of the adjectives which are used only in the predicate and hence never inflected (§ 109, 4), the most important are as follows:

abhold, unfriendly	gar, done	not, necessary
abwendig, alienated	getroßt, confident	nütze, useful ansichtig, in sight	gewahr, aware	quer, oblique angst, anxious	gewärtig, expectant	quitt, quits
ausfindig, evident	gram, offended	-schuld, to blame bereit, ready	habhaft, in possession	teilhaft, participant
brach, fallow	handgemein, hand to hand	unpaß, unsuited eingedenk, mindful	kund, known	verlustig, lacking
feind, hostile	leid, grievous

a. Several of the above occur chiefly in set phrases; as abwendig machen, alienate; ausfindig machen, find; gewahr werden, notice; leid tun, make sorry; verlustig gehen, become lost.

b. In old German predicate adjectives were declined — a state of affairs from which has survived voller, as stereotyped case-form of voll; e. g. da der Himmel voller Sterne glüht (G.), since the sky shines full of stars; das Faß ist voller Wein, the cask is full of wine. Of like origin are halber, half, and selber, self.

290. The Substantive Adjective. An uninflected adjective is sometimes used substantively in set phrases; e. g. zufrieden jauchzet groß und klein (G.), great and small shout contentedly; ein Buch für alt und jung, a book for old and young; gleich und gleich gesellt sich gern, birds of a feather flock together. Analogous is the elliptical use of the adjective in such a phrase as von jung auf, from youth up.

1. The names of languages are substantive adjectives which are indeclinable, except immediately after a form of das; e. g. ich lerne Deutsch, I am learning German; wie heißt es auf Englisch? in mein geliebtes Deutsch (G.), into my beloved German; die Merkmale eines guten Französisch, the marks of a good French. But er spricht das Deutsche gut; im Deutschen lügt man, wenn man höflich ist (G.). Yet one says das heutige Deutsch (not Deutsche).

a. Adjectives denoting color when used substantively are neuter nouns without inflection save sometimes a genitive in s; das schöne Blau (not Blaue) des Himmels, the lovely blue of the sky; Schattierungen des Grüns, shades of green.

2. Several English nouns are represented in German by substantive adjectives that follow the rules of adjective declension; e. g. ein Beamter, an official, der Beamte, eines Beamten, die Beamten; mein Verwandter, my kinsman, der Verwandte, die Verwandten; das Äußere, the exterior, but sein Äußeres, his or its exterior. Such words are subject to the same uncertainty of inflection as other adjectives after alle, andere, etc. (§ 288, 3, a); e. g., alle Gelehrte(n); viele Beamte(n).

a. Such a substantive adjective, if preceded by a strong adjective, may become weak, especially in the neut. and the gen. pl.; e. g. ein schönes Äußere (instead of Äußeres), a beautiful exterior; ein Kreis lieber Verwandten. So, too, one meets with ein großer Gelehrter, a great scholar, and sein reicher Verwandte, his rich relative: but Gelehrter and Verwandter are better. In the nom.-acc. pl. without article Verwandte, Beamte, are better than Verwandten, Beamten. But in the dat. sing. without article usage prefers the weak form; e. g. man könnte ihm als Beamten (rather than Beamtem) wenig vorwerfen (Andresen), one could reproach him with little as official. Notice further ein dummer Junge (not Junger), a stupid youth.

291. Adjectives and Prepositions. As in English the use of prepositions after adjectives is highly idiomatic. The following examples will illustrate (see further under prepositions):

achtam auf (acc.), heedful of arm an (dat.), poor in aufmerksam auf (acc.), attentive to bange vor (dat.), afraid of begierig nach, eager for beschämt über (acc.), ashamed of besorgt um, anxious about blaß vor (dat.), pale with blind auf or an (dat.), blind in böse auf (acc.), angry at eifersüchtig auf (acc.), jealous of empfindlich für, susceptible to empfindlich gegen, sensitive to fähig zu (or gen.), capable of freundlich gegen, friendly TOWARD krank am Herzen, sick AT heart neidisch auf (acc.), envious OF reich an (dat.), rich IN sicher vor (dat.), safe FROM stolz auf (acc.), proud OF taub gegen, deaf TOWARD verliebt in (acc.), enamored OF

292. Comparison with er and est is not confined, as in English, to short words; e. g. der allerchristlichste König, the most Christian king; das allererbärmlich-langweiligste Ding von der Welt.

1. A participle should not be compared unless it is in use, or admits of use, as an adjective in the positive degree; e. g. reizender, more charming; am bedeutendsten, most important; die gewagteste Annahme, the boldest assumption. But exceptions are very frequent in the classics; e. g. etwas Unterrichtenderes (H.), something more instructive; an dem in die Augen fallendsten Orte (L.) in the most obvious place; auf der blühendsten Wiese (U.), on the most flowery meadow.

2. Adjectives in isch may drop the e of the superlative ending est, but should retain the s; e. g. der nährischste or nährischste not nährische.

293. Umlaut in the Comparative and Superlative appears in fewer words than formerly. In the classics we find such forms as behäglichster, flächster, flärer, which are no longer used. Forms with umlaut are often heard in the dialects where the literary language prefers the unmodified vowel. The following adjectives regularly have umlaut in the comparative, the * marking those for which usage is unsettled:

alt, old
arg, bad arm, poor
*bang, afraid
*blaß, pale *brav, 'good'
dumm, stupid fromm, pious *gesund, healthy *glatt, smooth

groß, rude groß, great hart, hard hoch, high jung, young kalt, cold
*karg, stingy klug, clever krank, sick
kurz, short

lang, long nah, near *naß, wet rot, red scharf, sharp *schmal, narrow schwach, weak schwarz, black stark, strong warm, warm

a. The forms without umlaut seem preferable in case of bang, blaß, brav (bräuer, der bräuste are South German), gesund, targ; those with umlaut in case of glatt, naß, schmal.

294. Absolute and Relative Comparison. In relative comparison one object is compared with another or with others, as in er ist älter als ich; die Rose ist die schönste aller Blumen. Absolute comparison expresses simply an eminent degree; e. g. eine ältere Dame, an elderly lady; die neueren Sprachen, the modern languages; ein höchst lehrreiches Buch, a most instructive book.

1. The relative superlative is usually preceded by der and may be qualified by a prefixed aller, by some other partitive genitive, or by a phrase with von; e. g. der allerfühnste Held, the boldest of all heroes; der Güter höchstes, the highest of blessings; dem ärmlichsten von allen Erdenöhnen (G.), the poorest of all the sons of earth.

a. Except allerliebste, which is now felt as an absolute superlative, a relative superlative without der may not stand in the predicate; one may say das Bild ist allerliebste, is most lovely, but not ist schönste, nor aller schönste.

2. The absolute superlative is generally denoted by an adverb, as höchst, äußerst, sehr, recht, überaus, durch und durch; or by composition, as wunder schön, wonderfully fine; blutwenig, mighty little; pudelnaß, wet as a drowned rat.

a. Occasionally the inflected superlative is used absolutely; e. g. weil es die wenigsten können (G.), since very few can do it; Leidenenschaften, die sich in seinem schönsten Leibe darstellten (Arndt), passions which showed themselves in his most beautiful body. But in the last example wunderbar schön would be more idiomatic.

3. After ein an inflected superlative is not in general to be approved, since a highest is necessarily THE highest. Still one meets with ein höchstes Wesen, a supreme Being; cf. also es gibt ein Äußerstes in allen Dingen, there is an extreme in all things. Goethe is fond of this construction.

4. For the greatest possible one may say der größtmögliche or der möglichst große. The former is more logical, the latter probably more usual. An awkward double superlative, der größtmöglichste, also occurs.

5. The phrase with am (§ 112) forms a relative superlative capable of use only in the predicate. Its ordinary and proper function is to compare an object not with other objects, but with itself under other conditions; e. g. Schiller war am größten als Dramatiker, S. was greatest as dramatist. Here am größten = at the greatest; cf. English at his best. Cf. further, es wäre mir am liebsten, it would be most agreeable to me, i. e. I should prefer, but es wäre mir äußerst lieb, it would be extremely agreeable to me.

a. But modern German often uses the phrase with am in comparing an object with other objects.

295. Comparison with mehr and am meisten is less common than with more and most in English (§ 292). The form with mehr is to be preferred whenever the comparison is between different qualities rather than between different degrees of the same quality; e. g. er ist mehr gelehrt als klug, he is more learned than wise.

a. But even in this case good writers sometimes use the comparative in er; thus Goethe has erster als lieblich, more serious than winsome.

1. Mehr and am meisten are also used in comparing the indeclinables in § 289, 2; e. g. sie war mehr schuld als ich (G.), she was more to blame than I; was mir am meisten leid tut, what grieves me most.

2. Aside from the cases mentioned above, comparison with mehr and am meisten may occur where it is not strictly required, especially with participial adjectives; e. g. niemand ist mehr geplagt (G.), more plagued; der am meisten gebildete (G.), the most cultivated; ein mehr besonnenes Gemüt (Platen), a more circumspect disposition.

3. Note that the simple meist as modifier does not form a superlative, but = meistens, for the most part; e. g. sie ist meist lebensmüdig, does not mean she is most amiable, but she is amiable as a general thing.

296. Defective and Irregular Comparison. (Supplementary to § 114).

1. The following adjectives, denoting position, have no positive except in the form of the preposition or adverb from which they are derived : äußer, outer ; hinter, hinder ; inner, inner ; nieder, lower ; ober, upper ; unter, lower ; vorder, further forward. The superlative is formed in each case by adding st to the comparative ; der äußerste, der hinterste etc.

2. Mittler, middle (superlative mittelft), has positive meaning, the real positive mittel having gone out of use except in compounds : thus die Mittelstufe or die mittlere Stufe, the middle stage.

3. The stem of erst, first, appears in eh, before, and eh, ere ; that of lezt, last, in the obsolete laß, lazy. Erstest and leztetst occur, but are needless monstrosities.

4. For Goethe's meiner = mehr mein, see § 308, 2.

USE OF THE NUMERALS

297. Notes upon the Cardinals. The form eins is used in counting (where no noun is thought of), except when und follows ; e. g. eins, zwei, drei ; einmal eins ist eins ; hundert und eins ; but ein und zwanzig. So too in giving the time, e. g. halb eins, half past 12. But in all these cases ein is also correct, and is preferred in parts of Germany.

a. A thousand and one nights (the noun being fem.) = tausend und eine Nacht ; but a hundred and one reasons, or years (the noun being mas. or neu.), = hundert und ein Gründe, Jahre.

1. The declined forms zweier, dreier, zweien, dreien are apt to be used when the case would not otherwise be obvious ; e. g. durch zweier Zeugen Mund (G.), by the mouth of two witnesses ; was zweien zu breit ist dreien zu enge, too broad for two, too narrow for three.

a Down to about the close of the 18th century the form zween, twain, was used for the mas. and neu., and zwo for the fem. ; thus Voss wrote zwo Nächte zugleich und zween der Tag. These forms, as also the ordinal zwoit- = zweit-, are now obsolete or dialectic.

2. The numbers from drei to zwölf are generally unvaried, but may form a nominative or accusative in e (less often a dative in en) in colloquial language, when no noun follows ; e. g. es waren unser fünf, five of us. Note also the phrases auf allen vieren, on all fours; mit vieren, with coach and four; vor vieren (G.), before 4 o'clock.

3. Fünfzehn, fünfzig are better than funfzehn, funfzig. Fufzehn, fufzig are colloquial. The short forms ſechzehn, ſechzig, ſiebzehn, ſiebzig, are more common than ſechszehn, ſechszig, ſiebenzehn, ſiebenzig.

4. Hundert and tauſend can be used as substantives; e. g. viele Hunderte, many hundreds; zu Tauſenden, by thousands. Million is regularly so used; hence zwei Millionen, not zwei Million.

298. Expressions of Time. In giving a date the year is designated by a cardinal number, with or without preceding im Jahre; e. g. Schiller iſt 1805 geſtorben (or im Jahre 1805, but in 1805 is not good), Schiller died in 1805.

1. The day of the month is designated by an inflected ordinal, with preceding article, followed by the name of the month without preposition; thus am 4. (or 4ten, both being read vierten) Juli, 1776, on July 4, 1776. In dating a letter the accusative without preposition (den 4. Juli, 1776) is usual.

2. For the time of day the following are the usual forms of expression: um ſechß (Uhr), at six (o'clock); es iſt 6 vorbei, or nach 6, it is past 6; ein Viertel (auf) 7, a quarter past 6; halb 7, half past 6; drei Viertel (auf) 7, a quarter to 7.

3. It happened in the fifties = es geſchah in den fünfzigſten Jahren, or in den Fünfzigern. The same for a man in the fifties.

299. Numeral Derivatives. Besides those mentioned in § 118 are to be noted:

1. Iteratives in mal, as dreimal, thrice; multiplicatives in ſach, as dreifaſch, threefold; variatives in erlei, denoting number of kinds, as dreierlei, of three kinds; ordinal adverbs in enß, as drittens, thirdly.

2. The obsolete or archaic compounds of ſelb; e. g. ich fuhr ſelbſt (er), I traveled with two others (myself the third); ſelbſt, with three others, etc. Selbander, with one other, takes the place of selbst, ander having once been commonly used in the sense of second (secundus); cf. am andern Tage, on the following day.

SYNTAX OF THE PRONOUN

THE PERSONAL PRONOUNS

300. The Genitive of the personal pronouns occurs mostly with verbs, adjectives and numerals; e. g. Ichone meiner (Heine), spare me; ihr Instramente spottet mein (G.), mock me; dein denk' ich alle Zeit, I think of thee (song); seiner uneingedenk, unmindful of him. After nouns it is rare; e. g. durch die Vergessenheit deiner (H.), forgetfulness of you; aus Verachtung euer (S.), from contempt of you.

1. The short forms mein, dein, sein, are older than meiner, deiner, seiner, and are probably possessives in their origin. They occur chiefly in poetry. In the genitive plural the original and proper forms are unser and euer, but unserer and eurer occur in the classics; e. g. und eurer wahrlich hätt' ich nicht gefehlt (S.), I should not have missed you; ja dann bedarf es unserer nicht mehr (S.).

2. The old gen. es still survives in certain locutions, but is no longer felt as a gen.; e. g. ich bin es müde, bin es zufrieden, I am tired of it, satisfied with it, where it is felt as an acc.; es nimmt mich Wunder, I wonder, where it is felt as a nom. (§ 265, 1, d).

301. The Pronouns of Address. The literary use of the pronouns of address is a somewhat complicated subject, the bare essentials of which are as follows:

a. Originally du was the only pronoun used in addressing one person. In the 9th century the plu. ihr began to be employed in certain social relations for politeness' sake, du being retained for all cases where formal politeness would be either unnecessary or out of place, e. g. in addressing intimates, inferiors, the lower animals, inanimate objects, the heart, the soul, one's self in soliloquy; also in prayers and apostrophes to supernatural beings, absent or imaginary persons, abstract qualities, etc. This has always been, and still largely continues to be, the usage of the higher poetry.

1. In the classics, then, ihr, as applied to one person, is polite or deferential, while du is simply natural. Du may imply familiarity or contempt, but it may also comport with the highest regard — a regard that feels no need of artificial speech.

a. Thus in Goethe's Iphigenie and Tasso the characters use only du. Sometimes fine shades of meaning turn upon the use of the pronoun: thus in Tell, l. 1690, the change from ihr to du marks the clearing up of a lover's misunderstanding. In Faust, l. 300, the transition from du to ihr marks a descent from the tone of reverence to that of everyday polite intercourse. In Nathan the hero uses the polite ihr to the obscure Templar, but stands on his dignity in returning the Sultan's du with du.

2. Toward the end of the 16th century began the practice of using Herr, Frau and Fräulein as a polite circumlocution for ihr. This led presently to the use of er, he, and sie, she, as pronouns of address.

a. Both usages survive in the classics; e. g. was steht dem Herrn zu Diensten (Faust, l. 1322)? how can I serve the gentleman (i. e. you)? komme der Herr nur wieder mit zurück, just come back again with me, (Nathan, I, 3, where the Friar, who usually says ihr to the Templar, several times substitutes the more ceremonious der Herr); such' Er den reiblichen Gewinn (Faust, l. 548), seek you (i. e. let him, the 'gentleman' seek) honest gain; ach seh' Sie nur (ibid. l. 2881), oh, just see!

b. Er was at first the acme of politeness; it survived longest as a form of address to a social or official inferior, as from ruler to subject, master to servant, teacher to pupil. In the classics the sudden transition from du to Er may denote vexation, as in Faust, l. 548 and l. 2304; that from Er to du, as in Faust, l. 2882, an increase of cordiality, a putting aside of ceremony.

3. The next stage was the employment of Sie, they, in the sense of you.

a. This grew out of the use of a verb in 3. plu. with titles; e. g. Eure Majestät sind, your majesty are, instead of is; Herr Doktor wurden katechisiert (Faust, l. 3523), the doctor WERE catechized. In such a locution as the last, if a pronoun were to take the place of Doktor, it could only be sie, they. This awkward form of address, which poetry for the most part repudiates, became established about the middle of the 18th century.

4. At present, then, in the language of common life, one uses Sie in addressing strangers (one or more), acquaintances, or any but very intimate friends. Social differences count for nothing, except that for princes and high dignitaries the old forms Euer (Eure) Gnaden, Hoheit, Majestät, Excellenz etc. with plural verb are still in use. Du is said to a member of one's family, an intimate friend, a very young child, an animal or a thing. Ihr is appropriate only as plural; i. e. in addressing several persons each one of whom would be du. In advertisements and notices to the public at large good usage avoids a pronoun of direct address.

5. As to the writing of the pronouns of address usage is still somewhat unsettled. Sie and Ihr, when they mean you and your, are always given a capital. Also Er, Sie = she, and their possessives, are best written with a capital when used in address. As to du, bein, ihr, euer, there is no uniformity, but Ihr rather than ihr is usual in referring to one person. The rules recommend that these pronouns be given a capital in letters, where the word will fall under the eye of the person addressed.

302. Omission of Personal Pronouns. As a rule a pronominal subject is expressed, except in the imperative, but ich, du, er, sie, es, are often omitted in colloquial language; e. g. (ich) danke Ihnen, thank you; (ich) bitte, 'please'; (es) schadet nichts, it does no harm; (ich) heiße Magister (Faust, l. 360); (du) erkenneſt dann (ibid. l. 422); (er) geht da ſtraß (ibid. l. 2867).

a. For the omission of es with impersonal verbs see § 204, 2.

1. Far less common is the omission of wir, ihr, sie (plu.), but cases occur.

2. In the imperative du and ihr are omitted unless emphatic, as in führe du mein Heer (S.), do thou lead my army. The other pronouns er, sie, wir, Sie, are always expressed.

3. The omission of ich in letter-writing is characteristic of the commercial style; e. g. Ihr Geehrtes vom geſtrigen Datum habe erhalten, (I) am in receipt of your favor of yesterday.

303. Special Uses of es. Besides serving as pronoun of reference to a neuter noun, es has a variety of special uses, as follows:

1. As indefinite subject of impersonal verbs; e.g. es regnet; es tut mir leid. The poets often use such an impersonal es to convey an idea of something mysterious, vast, or gruesome; e.g. bahnlos liegt es hinter mir (S.), a trackless waste lies behind me; regt sich's nicht quillend schon (G.)? is there not already a quickening stir?

a. The es in es gibt, there is, denotes in a general way the situation, or state of affairs, which 'gives,' i. e. affords, or produces, what is denoted by the object (cf. § 340). Quite similar is the es in es hat Gefahr, there is danger; es steht Feuer, there is a fire on.

2. As subject of ist or sind (without reference to the gender or number of the predicate noun) in expressions of identity; e.g. es ist mein Bruder; es ist meine Schwester; es sind Freunde von mir, they are friends of mine.

a. But for it is I, it was you, etc. (where the predicate is itself a pronoun), German reverses the order, saying ich bin es, du warst es (Sie waren) es, etc.

3. As expletive, or formal subject, with all sorts of verbs, to anticipate a real subject which, for any reason, is to come after the verb. This use of es is only in part parallel to that of English there; e.g. es war einmal ein König, there was once a king; es lebe die Freiheit! long live freedom! es irrt der Mensch, man errs.

a. The office of the expletive in such cases is simply to justify the inversion. In old German, however, and even later in poetry, the inversion may occur without es; e.g. sah ein Knab' ein Röslein stehn (G.), a boy saw a little rose growing.

4. As indefinite object with certain verbs, taking the place of English it, things, matters; e.g. es ist ohne Beispiel, wie sie's treiben (S.), how they carry things on; wie wir's dann so herrlich weit gebracht (G.), how we have brought matters so gloriously far.

a. Sometimes es is used loosely for an object or subject inferrible from, but not distinctly contained in, the context. See e. g. Faust, II. 285, 534.

5. To avoid repetition of a noun, adjective, pronoun, or clause; e. g. er ist glücklich (ist Gelehrter, ist einer der Großen), ich bin es nicht, he is happy (is a scholar, is one of the leaders), I am not; wie viel Uhr ist es? ich weiß es nicht, what time is it? I do not know.

6. To refer to a number of persons in a general way; e. g. was sich sonst an meinem Lied erfreuet, wenn es noch lebt (Faust, I. 24), they who (was) once delighted in my song, if they still live.

304. The Reflexive. In a simple independent sentence the reflexive of the third person is always sich; e. g. sie hatte kein Geld bei sich, she had no money with her; der Krieg bringt Elend mit sich, war brings misery with it; sie haben eine schöne Zukunft vor sich, they have a fine future before them.

a. But in old German, just as in the English of the above examples, the personal pronoun was used reflexively in the dat. The usage is common down to the 18th century; e. g. die Heiden sind ihnen selbst ein Gesetz (Lu.), the heathen are a law unto themselves.

b. Sich not referring to the subject is rare, but one may say die Freundschaft verbindet die Menschen unter sich, binds men among themselves, i. e. together.

1. In a subordinate clause sich refers to the subject of the clause, the subject of the principal verb being referred to by a personal pronoun; e. g. er belobte die Soldaten, die sich gehorsam gegen ihn bewiesen hatten. (Blatz), he praised the soldiers who had shown themselves obedient to him.

a. So, too, when the subordinate clause is represented by an infinitive or an adjective: e. g. sie bat ihn sich zu entschuldigen und sie zu begleiten, to excuse himself and accompany her; er borgte das ihm nötige Geld, he borrowed the money needful to him.

2. Sich as reciprocal may be ambiguous; sie gefallen sich may mean they please themselves or they please each other. The uncertainty can be removed by the use of the true reciprocal einander, the adverb gegenseitig, mutually, or the Gallicism der eine, der andere, — sie gefallen sich, der (die) eine dem (der) andern.

3. Observe that the usual equivalent of the objective myself, thyself, etc. is the simple ich, du, etc. Selbst or selber is added only when emphasis is desired.

THE POSSESSIVES

305. The Absolute Possessive. In agreement with a noun the possessive is always some form of mein, dein, sein, unser, euer, ihr, inflected as in § 125; but for the possessive used absolutely, i. e. without a noun, there is a choice between three, in the predicate sometimes four, forms of expression; e. g. your judgment is more favorable than mine = Ihr Urteil ist günstiger als meines, or das meine, or das meinige.

a. In meaning these forms are to a large degree interchangeable, but der meine belongs in general to more stately, der meinige, to more familiar diction. In the predicate the uninflected form implies simple ownership, while inflection may denote emphasis or contrast; e. g. das Buch ist mein, but es ist nicht dein Buch, es ist meines.

1. Letters end with such formulas as Hochachtungsvoll Ihr (der Ihre, der Ihrige), respectfully yours; ganz der Ihrige, der Deinige, etc.; Ihr (Dein) treuer, ergebener, treuester, ergebester, etc.

2. A friend of mine, a relative of yours = ein Freund von mir, ein Verwandter von Ihnen.

306. The Compounds meinetwegen, meinesgleichen, etc.

1. Meinetwegen comes from an old dat. plu. minen wegen (i. e. meinen Wegen) used adverbially. Developing an excrescent t the phrase became meinentwegen, which is still sometimes met with, tho the usual form drops n before t. The halben of meinetthalben is also a dat. of Halb, half, behalf, sake; here again the stages were meinen Halben, meinentthalben, meinetthalben. Meinetwillen comes from um meinen Willen, for my sake, with the same phonetic development as in the other cases.

2. In meinesgleichen we have the adjective gleich, like, governing a preceding gen. which logically should be the personal pronoun mein or meiner, but became the possessive, giving my like instead of the like of me. The § is hard to account for. It may be due to the analogy of beigleichen, or of noun-stems with gen. in §. After meines the adjective naturally took a weak form.

3. Such compounds as meinerseits, on my part, and meinsteils, for my part, come under § 251, 3.

307. Notes upon sein and ihr. As in English the possessive of the third person may refer reflexively to the subject of the sentence (= Latin suus) or to another noun (= Latin ejus); e. g. die Sonne vollendet ihre Reise, the sun completes its journey; ihr Anblick gibt den Engeln Stärke (G.), its aspect (i. e. the sight of it) gives strength to the angels.

1. Where an ambiguity might arise it should be avoided by the use of der or derselbe for the possessive that does not refer to the subject of the sentence; e. g. er verdrängte seinen Bruder und trat an dessen Stelle (or an Stelle desselben), he crowded out his brother and took his (the brother's) place; er besuchte seinen Sohn und dessen Frau, he visited his son and his daughter-in-law.

a. Such an ambiguous possessive as appears in the English he ordered his servant to polish his boots can be avoided in German by the right use of the dative: er befahl seinem Bedienten ihm die Stiefel zu putzen has reference to the master's boots, sich die Stiefel zu putzen, to the servant's own boots. But many would be content to say seine Stiefel and let the ambiguity stand, as in English.

2. Formerly sein might refer to a fem. noun, ihr being not yet in use as a reflexive possessive. Traces of this usage survive in colloquial phrases; e. g. die Sache hat seine Richtigkeit, the thing is quite true; sein Tor kennt jede Kuh, every cow knows her own gate.

a. Note further the stereotyped adverb seiner Zeit, meaning not only in his or its time, but in her time, in our time, or simply in due time; e. g. wir waren seiner Zeit muntere Bursche, we were merry lads in our day.

308. Archaisms and Irregularities. In popular poetry the possessive (of course uninflected) may follow its noun; e. g. Roland gedacht' im Herzen sein = in seinem Herzen, in his heart.

1. The form Ihro, in Ihro Majestät, your Majesty, is an old gen. plu. of sie, introduced in quite modern times after the analogy of Dero (§ 309, 5). It is used only in princely titles, and is either mas. or fem., sing. or plu.

2. The comparison of a possessive, as in Goethe's nun ist das meine meiner als jemals, now mine is more mine than ever, is a bold poetic license. Ordinarily one would say mehr mein.

THE DEMONSTRATIVES

309. Der. (Supplementary to §§ 129–131).

1. The inflection of der was at first precisely that of the definite article, the long forms dessen, deren, denen being of quite modern origin. Present usage prescribes dessen, deren, denen when the pronoun is used absolutely, but des, der, den when a noun follows; e. g. des Adels rühme dich (S.), boast of that nobility; infolge dessen, in consequence of that.

a. But des, der, den are used absolutely in compounds; e. g. desßhalb, deswegen (also dessentwegen), dergleichen, etc. Other archaic exceptions occur in the classics; e. g. des wird Jupiter ergrimmt (G.), at that Jupiter becomes wroth; die Gegenwart des, der die Donner wirft (S.), the presence of him that hurls the thunderbolts.

2. For the genitive plural of der the usual form is now deren, unless a relative clause follows, in which case derer is preferred, especially if the pronoun refers to persons; e. g. deren habe ich viele gesammelt (G.), I have collected many of them; die Mißgunst derer, die das Übermaß meines Glückes beleidigte (W.), the ill-will of those whom the excess of my happiness offended.

a. Derer occurs before noble names even if there is no relative; e. g. das Schloß derer von Stein, the castle of the Von Steins.

3. Der is the pronoun most often used before a genitive or phrase with von, to take the place of a noun previously mentioned; e. g. die Wege Gottes sind verschieden von denen des Menschen, the ways of God are different from those of men; die Bevölkerung Londons ist größer als die von Paris, greater than that of Paris. Derjenige also occurs in this use, but is not so good.

a. Daß, for die referring to persons, is usually contemptuous; e. g. das schlenkert wie die Schnecken (S.), those fellows dawdle like snails.

5. Dero is an old gen. plu. once common in ceremonious address before high titles; as Dero Gnaden, your (properly their) Grace.

310. The Compounds of da do not refer to living beings, but exceptions occur in familiar language; e. g. ein Paar Perle, worüber sie streiten können (G.), a brace of fellows to quarrel about; ein Vater hatte drei Söhne, davon (cf. § 314) war der älteste klug und geschickt (Gr.), three sons of whom the eldest was shrewd and clever.

1. A compound of da should not stand as the antecedent of a relative; e. g. I thought of what you said = ich dachte an das (not daran), was du sagtest. Note also that some prepositions, notably ohne, never combine with da.

2. Tmesis of a da-compound is rare in literary language, but common in certain dialects; e. g. da behüte mich Gott vor (= davor behüte mich), God keep me from that.

311. The Determinatives. De'rjenige is an emphatic der used to particularize the antecedent of a relative; e. g. das ist derjenige, von dem wir redeten, that is the man we were talking about; diejenige Freiheit, die ich mir herausnehme (Kant), the (particular) liberty I take.

1. Derselbe must refer to something already known. It is a frequent substitute for er, sie, es; e. g. Kleinigkeiten, die er von Marianen erhalten oder derselben geraubt hatte (G.), trifles that he had received from Mariane or stolen from her.

a. Some prescribe that derselbe always be substituted for the acc. es governed by a preposition; e. g. das Kind ist krank; wir wollen für dasselbe sorgen, we will take care of it. But others repudiate this rule and prefer für es.

b. Observe the contractions am selben Tag = an demselben Tag, zur selben Zeit = zu derselben Zeit; sometimes also zu dieser (jener) selben Zeit, at this (that) selfsame time. Selbig-, for selb-, is obsolescent.

c. Einundderfelbe, one and the same, is best written as one word with ein uninflected; thus an einunddemselben Tage, rather than an einem und demselben.

d. In ceremonious address Dieselben, sometimes with prefixed Hoch Höchst, Allerhöchst, may take the place of Sie.

2. Solch is sometimes used, but not very elegantly, for derselbe; e. g. ich glaube, meine Gedanken sind wahr; prüfen Sie solche (S.), I believe my thoughts are true; test them.

3. The indeclinables selbst and selber, while treated in Part I for convenience with the personal pronouns, are not strictly of that class, since they do not denote a person, but emphasize pronouns of every person and also nouns. They may be regarded as a species of determinatives.

a. The two forms selbst and selber do not differ in meaning, but selbst may be used adverbially = even, while selber can not. Further, selber always follows the word it emphasizes, while selbst may precede or follow. Cf. § 289, 2, b.

THE INTERROGATIVES

312. Wer and was never agree with a noun, seeming exceptions with was being old partitive genitives which have lost an s; e. g. was Wunder(s), what wonder; was Teufel! what the deuce! Cf. § 253, 2, b.

1. Wessen is less used than whose; for whose picture is that? idiom prefers (referring to the person portrayed) wer ist das auf dem Bilde? (referring to the owner of the picture) wem gehört das Bild? The form wes is rare except in compounds, but occurs adjectively; e. g. wes Sinnes der Herr sei (G.), of what mind the master may be.

2. Colloquially, not so often in literature, was is used after prepositions that govern the dative; e. g. zu was taugt es? what is it good for? mit was kann ich dienen? how can I serve you? Here wozu and womit would be better. On the other hand warum, wofür, etc., are very often, but unnecessarily, substituted for um was, für was, etc.

3. Was is very common in the sense of warum; e. g. was reitst du so schnelle (G.)? why do you ride so fast? This was is an adverbial accusative.

313. Welch and was für. The neuter welches is sometimes used absolutely (like es, das and was) without reference to the gender or number of a following predicate noun; e. g. die Eltern fannen einen ganzen Tag, welches der schönste Name sei (Riehl), queried which was the most beautiful name.

1. Was für is always used adjectively; was für ein, usually so, but sometimes without a noun. In the latter case ein has pronominal inflection; e. g. ein Grund ist es allerdings, aber was für einer! a reason it is to be sure, but what kind of one!

THE RELATIVES

314. Der and welcher. Der as relative is of secondary origin, having developed out of the demonstrative der. Hence the frequent use of the latter, especially in folktales, where one would expect a relative; e. g. es war einmal ein alter König, der war krank, he was sick, instead of der krank war, who was sick. Cf. also the example with davon in § 310.

1. The genitive singular of der is dessen, deren, dessen, the genitive plural deren (not derer), and the dative plural denen; but short forms, identical with those of the article der, occur in the classics; e. g. die Krone, der (for deren) mein Fürst mich würdig achtete (G.), the crown of which my prince deemed me worthy; die Heil- und Linderungskraft, der wir stündlich bedürfen (G.).

2. The use of der as 'compound' relative (containing its own antecedent) is not uncommon; e. g. ach! der mich liebt und kennt, ist in der Ferne (G.), alas, he who loves and knows me is far away. Such a der differs from wer in that it refers to a particular antecedent.

3. In early modern German a relative is often preceded by als, the effect being a subaudition of cause; e. g. ihr habt diesen Menschen zu mirbracht, als der das Volk abwende (Lu.), ye have brought this man unto me as one that perverteth the people. Later this als became all but pleonastic and has now gone out of use, tho common in Lessing and Goethe; e. g. Äneas, als welcher sich an den bloßen Figuren ergohet (L.), Aeneas, who delights in the mere figures; aus dem Zimmer, als in welchem sie allein Ruhe hatte (G.), from the room in which alone she had peace.

315. Wer and was. The implied antecedent of wer must be expressed (always after wer), if there is change of construction; e. g. wer nicht denkt, dem wird sie geschenkt (G.), who does not think, to him it is given. In other words, wer can stand only for der, der (not for dem, der, nor for den, der).

a. The rule applies also to was, but less rigidly, since the form was is both nom. and acc.; thus it is permissible to omit das in was ich nicht weiß, (das) macht mich nicht heiß, what I don't know doesn't bother me; or even in was mich nicht brennt, (das) blas' ich nicht, what doesn't burn me I don't blow.

1. Distinguish between the interrogative in wer könnte das glauben? who could believe that? the indefinite relative in es ist wahr, was man auch glauben mag, it is true, whatever one may think, and the exclamatory indefinite in wer so etwas glauben könnte! as if any one could believe that!

2. In general was is not used in referring to a definite noun, but exceptions occur in good writers; e. g. die Alten kannten das Ding nicht, was wir Höflichkeit nennen (L.), the ancients did not know the thing which we call politeness. Conversely, das or welches is sometimes used for was in referring to a sentence; e. g. ihm hatte man Hilarien bestimmt, das ihm sehr wohl bekannt war (G.), they had destined Hilarie for him, which was very well known to him.

3. The form wes is still sometimes used adjectively, just as often in the classics; e. g. wes Standes er auch sein möchte, of whatever station he might be. Without a noun wes is archaic, save in compounds.

4. Was referring to persons is not uncommon in familiar language; e. g. früh übt sich, was ein Meister werden will (S.), he who wishes to become a master practices early.

316. Relative Adverbs. A compound of wo or wes is never positively required except when the antecedent is not a noun or pronoun; thus for the book of which we were speaking, the task I am writing upon, one may say das Buch, von dem, von welchem, or wovon; die Aufgabe, an der, an welcher, or woran. But in he rises early, by which he saves much time, one can only say wodurch, not durch welches, nor durch das, tho durch welches Mittel would be permissible. So also ich war krank, weshalb (not wegen dessen) ich nicht schreiben konnte, for which reason I could not write.

1. So as relative is now archaic, but was once very common; e. g. heilig ist das Gesetz, so dem Künstler Schönheit gebietet (S.), holy is the law which, etc.

2. An untranslatable da is sometimes added to a relative as a kind of generalizing particle; e. g. wen da dürstet, whoever thirsts; keiner, der da dichtet (G.), no one who makes poetry. But the usage is now quaint.

a. In like manner a pleonastic denn is often inserted — it is especially common in Goethe — after a relative pronoun or particle; e. g. ihr Betragen, das mir denn nun freilich in einem ganz anderen Lichte erschien (G.), her conduct that now appeared to me in a quite different light.

3. Da and its compounds usually have demonstrative force, rarely that of a relative; as in die Zeiten, da ich noch selbst im Werden war (G.), the times when I myself was still growing. Also and wo selbst, relative particles = so, are archaic.

THE INDEFINITE PRONOUNS

317. All. The undeclined all is most common before der or a possessive in the nominative and accusative singular, masculine and neuter; e. g. all der Schmerz, all the pain; all das Leid; all seinen Kummer. In the genitive it is rare but occurs; e. g. der Schauplatz all meiner Glückseligkeit (G.), the scene of all my happiness.

1. The form alle occurs mostly after prepositions that govern the dative; as von alledem, from all that; aus alledem; trotz alledem. But it may stand as nominative; e. g. alle das Neigen (G.), all the inclining; alle sein Mammon (S.), all his wealth.

2. Alles may mean everybody, as in alles tanzte wie toll (G.), everybody was dancing like mad. It may also follow wer, was and even wem, without change of form; e. g. wer war alles da? who all was there? wem alles gabst du das Geld (Gr.)?

3. All does not admit of weak inflection: one says der Vater unser aller (not allen); das alles, dies alles, nach dem allem (better than allen). For allenfalls, see § 288, 1, a.

4. In the classics all sometimes = jed-, every; e. g. aller Zustand ist gut (G.), every condition is good; bei allem irdischen Ding (S.); die Frauen alles Standes (G.). In these cases present usage would prefer the sing. of jed- or the plu. of all. Cf. alle Tage, every day; alle paar Minuten, every few minutes. Quite common are: wir haben allen Grund, allen Anlaß, every reason, every occasion.

5. In like manner early writers use all in the sense of gan-, the whole; e. g. allen Winter (Logau); durch alles Leben (Frank). One would now say den ganzen Winter, durch das ganze Leben. Cf. die ganze Nacht, all night; gan-, Amerika, all America. But alle Welt is still common, along with die ganze Welt, for all the world, tout le monde.

6. After ohne, all and jed- occur sometimes in the sense of Eng. any; e. g. ohne allen (or jeden) Begriff, without any idea.

7. Note finally the idioms in aller Eile, in all haste; in aller Frühe, very early in the morning; also es (der Wein, die Freude) ist alle, i. e. is all gone; er wird sein bißchen Geld bald alle machen, he will soon make an end of (run thru) his little money.

318. Ein-. As pronoun ein- may take the place of (irgend) jemand, some one, any one; e. g. da liegt schon einer tot (G.), there lies some one dead; da fragt niemand, was einer glaubt (S.), what any one believes.

1. The neuter form eins may refer to a person; e. g. nun sag' mir eins (G.), now let some one tell me; wenn unser eins am Spinnen war (G.), when you and I were at our spinning.

a. More often it is used, sometimes almost untranslatably, as cognate object of singen, trinken and other verbs; e. g. eins singen, sing a song; eins trinken, take a drink; wenn dir das Mädchen leiht, da liebt sie eins zum Spaß (G.), she just falls in love for fun.

319. Einig- and its Synonyms. For the singular of einig- present usage prefers a substitute (ein, irgend ein, ein wenig, etwas), but it is not uncommon in literature ; e. g. aus Furcht des Todes oder sonst einiges Dinges (Claudius), from fear of death or some other thing ; nach einiger Pause (G.), after a short pause ; nicht ohne einiges Bedenken, not without some hesitation.

1. The plu. einige implies, according to Grimm, more than two but less than five. For five or more one says mehrere, eine Menge, manche, viele. The ill-sounding einige wenige occurs in the sense of a few, but a few is better denoted by einige alone, or else by ein paar. Note the orthographic distinction in ein paar Minuten, a few minutes, but ein Paar Stiefel, a pair of boots.

a. Etliche, welche and etwelve have the same meaning as einige, but etwelve is obsolete and etliche becoming so.

2. Einige may precede a numeral ; e. g. einige zwanzig, twenty odd. The article ein is sometimes used in a similar way ; e. g. ein acht Tage, some eight days.

3. Mehre for mehrere is not good. For the phrase morgen ein Mehres (L.), more to-morrow, one would now prefer morgen mehr, Weiteres, or das Weitere.

320. Etwas, was, nichts. Both was and etwas may mean something of importance ; e. g. laßt mich auch etwas sein, let me be something too ; sie rüsten sich schnell, denn sie dünken sich was (G.), for they think themselves 'some.'

1. The acc. of etwas forms a common adverb = somewhat, a little ; e. g. etwas kalt, somewhat cold. Distinguish therefore between etwas besser, somewhat better, and etwas Besseres, something better.

2. Nichts, tho classed for convenience with pronominals, is really a substantive — the gen. of nicht = naught, — which is still preserved as a dat. in the phrases zunichte werden, come to naught, and mit nichts, by no means. In early modern German nicht took a partitive gen. ; e. g. und hätte der Liebe nicht (Lu.), and had not love, i. e. naught of love. This construction still occurs in the phrase hier ist meines Bleibens nicht, there is no staying here for me.

321. Man and its Compounds. Man, from Mann, like French on from homo, does not individualize at all, whence it is never preceded by irgend, though it may approach the meaning of irgend jemand ; e. g. man pocht, there is a knock, some one is knocking. Most often it is an indefinite representative of people at large, mankind, the public, as in man sagt, they say, it is said; man kommt zu sehen, man will am liebsten schaun (G.), people come to see, they wish to gaze.

1. Again, man may take the place of a personal pronoun of any person. Goethe often uses it for ich in describing his own doings, and interchanges it with wir in the same sentence. Man schweige is much the same, only less brusque, as schweige, schweigt, or schweigen Sie. The policeman says wer ist man? was will man hier? for who are you? what do you want here?

2. Jemand and niemand are compounds of man with ex-crescent b. For the dative and accusative present usage prefers the uninflected form, tho the dative in em and (less often) the accusative in en, still occur. Their plural is supplied by einige and keine.

322. Viel and wenig. With these words there is great freedom in the use of uninflected forms. Inflection is required only after der or a possessive; e. g. das viele Geld, das er besitzt, the large amount of money that he possesses; trotz seines vielen Geldes; mein Weniges, my little.

a. But wenig after der or a possessive and in agreement with a noun in the singular is not common. For sein weniges Talent (G.), his little talent, one would now prefer sein geringes Talent, sein kleines, or sein bißchen Talent.

1. Except after der or a possessive, inflection prevails in the plural and genitive singular (where it may be needed to show case), non-inflection in the nominative singular, masculine and neuter; elsewhere both are about equally common. Examples: schon viele Tage (S.), these many days; er freut sich vieler Ehre, enjoys much honor; viel Lärm um nichts, much ado about nothing; viel Geschrei und wenig Wolle, much noise and little wool; viel Dank, many thanks; mit vieler Mühe; mit wenig Wiß und viel Behagen (G.); viel Grüße hat er aufgetragen (G.).

2. Sometimes inflection is associated with the idea of variety; e. g. ich meine nicht vieles, sondern viel; ein wenigcs, aber mit Fleiß (L.); I mean not (a little in) much, but much (in little); a small quantity, but with care. Stahr writes: ich habe vieles gesehen, hier und da auch viel, many things, here and there also much (of importance); wer vieles bringt (G.), he who offers a great variety; viel Wein, much wine; vieler Wein, many kinds of wine.

THE VERB

SUPPLEMENTARY DETAILS ON CONJUGATION

323. Haben and sein as Auxiliaries. All transitive verbs (including reflexives), the modal auxiliaries and many intransitives are conjugated with haben.

1. With a very few exceptions (bleiben, geschehen, gelingen, glücken, sein) the verbs that form their perfect tenses with sein contain the idea of transition from one place or condition to another. They either denote literal motion, as gehen, kommen, or else a change of status, as altern, bersten.

a. Often this idea of change is given by a prefix, and thus we may have a compound conjugated with sein, while the simple verb takes haben; e. g. schlafen, sleep, and ein-schlafen, fall asleep; stehen, stand, and er-stehen, arise. Such compounds are quite numerous and only a few specimens of them are given in the list below. The most important of the verbs that take sein are, then, the following, together with their intransitive compounds:

altern, grow old	gehen, go	schleichen, creep
aufstehen, arise	gelingen, succeed	schmelzen, melt
begegnen, meet	genesen, recover	schreiten, stride
bersten, burst	geschehen, happen	schwimmen, swim
bleiben, remain	gleiten, glide	sein, be
eilen, hurry	glücken, succeed	sinken, sink
entschlafen, fall asleep	klimmen, climb	springen, spring
erscheinen, appear	klettern, clamber	steigen, climb
ertrinken, drown	kommen, come	sterben, die
erwachen, awaken	kriechen, creep	stürzen, rush
fahren, go	laufen, run	treten, step
fallen, fall	quellen, gush forth	verarmen, grow poor
fliegen, fly	reisen, set out	verhungern, starve
fliehen, flee	reiten, ride	wachsen, grow
fließen, flow	rennen, run	weichen, recede
folgen, follow	rinnen, flow	werden, become
frieren, freeze	scheitern, be wrecked	ziehen, pass
gedeihen, thrive

b. Intransitives that do not come under any of these heads are conjugated with haben. This is the case not only with verbs which contain no idea of motion, as ſchlafen, sleep, but also with verbs of motion that denote simply a verbal activity, without any idea of transition from one point to another. Verbs of motion that are usually of this character are omitted from the list above. Such are, e. g. hüpfen, hop; knien, kneel; rauſchen, rustle; ſchwanken, waver; ſchweben, sweep; tanzen, dance. But any of these may take ſein, if they express transition; e. g. der Vogel iſt durchs Fenſter gehüpft, has hopped thru the window.

c. On the other hand several of the verbs in the list above may take haben if the tense denotes simply a verbal activity, or a temporal, rather than a local, relation; e. g. die haben ſchon was Rechts geſprungen (G.), have danced a good bit, but one would say ſind ins Waſſer geſprungen, have leaped into the water; er hat viel gereiſt, he has traveled much, but er iſt nach Paris gereiſt, has set out for Paris; das Kind hat erſt heute gegangen, has never walked until to-day, but iſt heute von einem Stuhl zum andern gegangen, walked from one chair to the other; iſch habe eine Stunde geritten, I rode for an hour, but iſch bin aufs Land geritten, rode into the country; iſch habe fortgefahren, I continued, but iſch bin fortgefahren, I went away.

d. The general principle regulating the use of haben and ſein is simple: haben calls attention to a verbal action, ſein to the state or condition that has resulted from the action. There is, however, much confusion of the two auxiliaries, ſein being often used where the rule would call for haben; cf. Goethe's iſt viel gereiſt (Faust, l. 3019). Even ſtehen, ſitzen and ſiegen are sometimes conjugated with ſein. On the other hand, begegnen and folgen occur with haben.

324. Omission of the Auxiliaries. The auxiliaries of tense are often omitted at the end of a dependent clause; e. g. dasjenige, was wir von andern gehört (sc. haben), that which we have heard from others; das iſt im Feld derſelbe Rain, wo wir dereinſt gegangen (sc. ſind), the ſelfſame tract where we once walked.

a. In this way it is often possible to avoid an unpleasant concurrence of auxiliaries; e. g. der Sieg, den er errungen (hatte), hatte bewieſen, daß —, the victory he had won had proved that —; was damit gewonnen worden (war), war unbedeutend, what had been gained by this, was insignificant.

b. The frequent omission of the auxiliary is characteristic of certain authors, e. g. Lessing, Goethe, Richter. With writers on style the matter is a moot-question, some advocating, others disapproving, the 'hatte-war style.' In general it is not well to omit the auxiliary if an ambiguity of mode or tense would result. On the other hand, in such a sentence as the following, quoted by Wustmann, the two final war's would be intolerable: da die Zeit, für die das Herrenhaus gewählt worden (war), abgelaufen war, since the time had expired for which the House of Lords had been chosen.

325. Periphrastic and Causal Auxiliaries. Standard German recognizes no auxiliary corresponding to English do in I do believe, I did think, etc., but tun is so used in dialect, and the usage is more or less reflected in literature; e. g. die Augen täten ihm sinken (G.), his eyes sank, i. e. did sink; (ich) tät ihn recht herzlich lieben (G.), I loved him right heartily.

a. Tun as auxiliary usually has pret. ind. tät, not tat. See the examples above. This tät, which looks like a subjunctive but is not, comes from the middle High German tete, which was both indicative and subjunctive.

1. Lassen, let, is sometimes called a causative auxiliary, but its meaning may be permissive as well as causal; e. g. laß mich gehen auf deiner Spur (Stolberg), let me go upon thy track (permissive); die Mutter ließ einen Pfaffen kommen (G.), had a priest come (causal); ich lasse mir meinen Hermann nicht scheuten (G.), I will not let my Hermann be scolded.

a. On the peculiar passive use of the active inf. after lassen, as in the last example, see § 366, 1, a.

b. Machen, make, also occurs as causative auxiliary: e. g. ihr habt mich weiblich schweißen machen (G.), you have made me sweat vigorously.

326. Omission of the Augment ge.

1. The prefix ge was not at first a necessary element of the perfect participle. In composition with verbs the particle had various functions, one of which was to denote the completion of the action; e. g. do der hauptman gelas den brief, when the captain finished reading the letter. Becoming thus associated with the idea of completed action, the particle attached itself more and more to the perfect participle and finally became a regular 'sign' of that form.

a. The above statement sufficiently explains the occasional occurrence in the classics of such participles as gefunden, for gefunden; fommen, for gefunden, etc. They are survivals.

2. At present the following classes of verbs regularly form their perfect participle without ge :

a. Inseparable compounds and verbs in ie' ren, — because of a feeling that ge should not immediately precede an unaccented syllable.

b. The modal auxiliaries, and also heißen, lassen, sehen, when the participle occurs in connection with an infinitive ; e. g. ich habe es nicht tun können, I have not been able to do it ; er hat mich rufen lassen, he has had me called. The old participle of these verbs looks and sounds like an infinitive ; for which reason several other verbs that have followed their analogy put the infinitive in place of the participle when an infinitive precedes. Such are, quite regularly, helfen, hören, which seems to have followed sehen, and sometimes also brauchen, lehren, machen and lernen ; e. g. ich habe sagen hören, I have heard say ; ich hatte ihn kennen lernen, I had learned to know him ; ihr habt mich schwitzen machen (G.), you have made me sweat.

c. Werden in the passive voice, to avoid two concurrent forms with ge.

d. Certain adjective compounds, as hausbacken, home-baked, homely (backen instead of gebacken) ; halbwachsen, half-grown.

327. Use of the Connecting Vowel and the Endings. The rules in § 176 present the normal usage of to-day, but there are many exceptions. Solemn or stately diction tends to long forms, easy talk to short, while the poet may take advantage of either for his meter's sake ; e. g. redest du von einem der da lebet (S.) ? ich habe gelebt und geliebet (S.) ; die schönste Jungfrau sitzt (Heine) ; begreife nicht, was er an mir find't (G.). Here the normal forms would be: redest, lebst, geliebt, sitzt, findet.

1. In talk it is usual to drop the connecting vowel e in the pres. ind. 2. sing. after a sibilant (contrary to § 176, 3). In such cases the f of the ending st is also dropped and the form becomes identical with the 3. sing. ; thus du wischst, instead of wischest ; du ließt, for liestest ; du läßt, for lässest ; du sitzt, for sitzest. In the pret. such contractions (du aßt, for du aßest, from essen) are much more rare.

a. So too a final t of the stem is not heard (tho it is best to write it) before st ; i. e. hältst, gilst, sichst, are pronounced, usually, häfst, gilst, sichst.

2. In the imv. 2. sing. the ending e belongs properly to all weak verbs. If, therefore, it is omitted, an apostrophe is proper ; e. g. lieb' solang du lieben kannst; folg' nur dem alten Spruch (G.). But faff', preff', and the like, become faß, preß.

a. Strong verbs have no ending in the imv. 2. sing. after a radical i or ie changed from e; thus hilf, tritt, ließ. In other cases the use of the final e is in large measure optional. It is quite uniformly omitted in komm, laß and lauf. In beiß(e), fließ(e), geh(e), halt(e), lauf(e), schlaf(e), schlag(e), schrei(e), schweig(e), steh(e), stoß(e), tu(e), trag(e), zieh(e), the omission of e is at any rate so common that no apostrophe is needed.

b. Strong verbs with radical e that have vowel-change in the pres. ind. should have it also in the imv. 2. sing.; but trete for tritt, nehme for nimm, messe for miß, and other such substitutions of weak for strong inflection, are common in good writers.

3. In early modern German a spurious final e is sometimes found in the pret. ind. 1. and 3. sing. of strong verbs; as sahe for saß.

328. Strong and Weak Conjugation.

1 As in the case of nouns, so in that of verbs, the terms 'strong' and 'weak' were introduced by Grimm. They were intended to contrast those verbs which form their pret. by means of an internal vowel-change, thus seeming to rely upon their own inner 'strength,' with those which have the 'weakness' to rely upon foreign aid in the shape of a suffix. The terms are fanciful, but convenient and in universal use. They are at any rate better than 'old' and 'new,' and far better than 'irregular' and 'regular.'

2. The characteristic 'ablaut' of strong verbs (sometimes translated by gradation, as umlaut is by mutation), is a definite series of changes undergone by the radical vowel in different forms derived from the same root. It is by no means confined to verbs; thus with binden, baud, gebunden, cf. the nouns Vinde, Baud, Bund.

3. The vowel-change of the pres., in strong verbs, is always a species of umlaut tho it is not always marked by the modern sign of umlaut. It is due (cf. § 21) to the former presence of an i in the endings of the 2. and 3. sing. Thus du trägst, er trägt, represent an earlier du tragis(t), er tragit; whereas the forms now without umlaut had no i in the ending: ich trage, from ih tragu, wir tragen, from wir tragem(es), etc.

a. Verbs with radical ie formerly made a pres. ind. 2. and 3. sing. and an imv. 2. sing. in eu; e. g. fliegst, fliegt, instead of fliegst, fliegt, from fliegen; freuchst, freucht, instead of friedst, friedt, from frieden. These archaic forms are often met with in the classics.

4. In Old and Middle German the pret. of most strong verbs had two different ablaut-stages, i. e. two different radical vowels, one for the sing., the other for the plu. ; thus ich sang, I sang, but wir sungen, we sang ; ich reit, I rode, but wir riten, we rode. In modern German the vowel of the sing. has usually prevailed for the entire tense. In some cases, however, the vowel of the plu. was transferred to the sing. (cf. Eng. I sang and I sung), giving rise to doublets, such as ich stamb and ich stund. Such double preterits were once common, and one of them, ward, wurde, still survives. Ward is more stately and bookish than wurde.

a. The secondary vowel of the pret. is much more apt to appear in the subj. than in the ind. ; thus while ich stirb, from sterben, no longer occurs, ich stirbe, is common. It even has the advantage of ich stirbe, in that it is not liable to be confounded by the ear with ich sterbe. There are many such cases.

329. Ablaut Classes.

1. It is impossible to draw up a classification of strong verbs that will appreciably facilitate the learning of their forms. They must simply be memorized one by one. The only classification that is of any use (and its value is scientific rather than practical) is that which groups together those verbs which originally had the same series of vowel-changes in their principal parts. Such a group is called an ablaut class.

2. There are in all seven such classes. Since, however, the classification is based primarily upon the older forms, which have undergone great changes with the lapse of time, it can not be made fully intelligible without detailed historical explanations which lie beyond the scope of this work. (Consult Brandt's German Grammar, §§ 122 ff. and 459 ff.) In the subjoined scheme is given, first, the vowel of the inf. ; then, after the first dash, the vowel of the pret., and after the second dash the vowel of the perf. pple. The statistical numbers refer to the list in § 331. The classes, then, are as follows :

Class I : Ablaut ei — i, ie, — i, ie ; e. g. reiten, ritt, geritten ; bleiben, blieb, geblieben. 43 verbs.

Class II : Ablaut ie, ü, au, — o — o ; e. g. fließen, floß, geflossen ; lügen, lag, gelogen ; saufen, soff, gesoffen. 33 verbs.

Class III : e, i, — a short — u short, o short ; e. g. werfen, warf, geworfen ; binden, band, gebunden. 47 verbs.

Class IV : Ablaut e, ä — a long — o ; e. g. brechen, brach, gebrochen ; gebären, gebar, geboren. 16 verbs.

Class V : Ablaut i, e, ie, — a long — e ; e. g. bitten, bat, gebeten ; geben, gab, gegeben ; liegen, lag, gelegen. 15 verbs.

Class VI: Ablaut $a - u - a$; e. g. fahren, fuhr, gefahren. 15 verbs.

Class VII: Vowel-change which looks like ablaut, but is not ; $a, au, ei, o, u - ie - a, au, ei, o, u$; e. g. fallen, fiel, gefallen; laufen, lief, gelaufen; stoßen, stieß, gestoßen. 18 verbs.

Remark. A few verbs have passed out of the class to which they originally and properly belong. Thus beßen, bark, formerly made pret. baß, pple. geboßen. But baß early gave way to boß (with the vowel of the pple.), and beßen, boß, geboßen, does not conform to any of the seven classes as above given. In the list below such cases are denoted by a bracketed number ; e. g. beßen [III] means that the verb once belonged to Class III.

330. Irregular Weak Verbs. Nine weak verbs have in the preterit and perfect participle a vowel-change which looks like ablaut. These are :

Inf.	Pret. ind.	Perf. pple.	Pret. subj.
brennen, burn	brannte	gebrannt	brennte
bringen, bring ✓	brachte	gebracht	brächte
denken, think ✓	dachte	gedacht	dächte
dünken, seem	deuchte	gedeucht	deuchte
kennen, know ✓	kannte	gekannt	kannte
nennen, name ✓	nannte	genannt	nennte
rennen, run	rannte	gerannt	rennte
senden, send	sandte	gesandt	sendete
wenden, turn	wandte	gewandt	wendete

a. dünken, senden and wenden are often regular ; brennen, kennen, nennen and rennen, rarely so.

1. The only other weak verbs that present any irregularities are haben (§ 171), the modal auxiliaries (§ 189) and wissen (§ 190).

331. List of Strong Verbs.

The following list is meant to contain all the verbs of late modern German that have any strong forms. After the principal parts is given, first, the pres. ind. 2. sing., from which the 3. sing. can usually be got by simply dropping f of the ending st ; thus, du bäckst, er bäckt. Whenever the 3. sing. can not be got in this way, as in du gilst, er gilt, it is given separately. Next comes the pret. subj. 1. sing., and then the impv. 2. sing., the latter distinguished by an [!]. The Roman numeral gives the ablaut class to which the verb belongs or belonged (§ 329, remark). Obsolete forms are enclosed in [], forms that are not to be recommended in (). For beginnen, verderben, etc., see under -ginnen, -derben.

Baden, bake, bat, gebaden; bädſt; büſe; bad(e)! VI.—Often weak thruout, except that there is no ppl. gebadt. Bat has short u. *Gebad-*fen without ge occurs in hausbaden, neubaden, etc.

-bären, =bar, =boren; =bierſt or bärſt; =bäre; =bier! or =bäre! IV.—Only in gebären, give birth to (earlier geberen, whence gebierſt, gebierst, gebier!). Gebäre as pret. subj. is avoided, being like the pres.

Beißen, bite, biß, gebissen; beiß(e)t, beißt; bisse; beiß(e)! I.

Bellen, bark, [bell], [gebollen]; [billſt]; [bölle]; [biß!] [III].—Now always weak, but strong forms occur in the classics. Grimm wrote: ein Hund bellt noch heute, wie er zu Anfang der Schöpfung bell, with weak pres. and strong pret. in the same sentence.

Bergen, hide, barg, geborgen; birgſt; bürge or bärg; birg! (berge!). III.

Berſten, burst, barſt, [borſt], geborſten; birſteſt or birſt, birſt; börſte or bärſte; birſt! III.—Often weak thruout.

Biegen, bend, bog, gebogen; biegſt [beugſt]; böge; biege! [beug!] II.

Bieten, offer, bot, geboten; bieteſt [beutſt, beut]; böte; biete! [beut!] II.

Binden, bind, band, gebunden; bindeſt; bände; binde! III.

Bitten, ask, bat, gebeten; bitteſt; bäte; bitte! V.

Blasen, blow, blies, geblasen; bläſ(e)t, bläſt; bliese; blä(e)! VII.—Sometimes weak in pres. The pret. blus (Claudius) is jocose.

Bleiben, remain, blieb, geblieben; bleibſt; bleibe; bleib(e)! I.

-bleichen, =blüch, =blüchen; =bleichſt; =bleiche; =bleich(e)! I.—Strong only in erbleichen, verbleichen, turn pale, die, which may be weak in the pret. Bleichen, bleach, is weak.

Braten, roast, briet, gebraten; brätſt, brät; briete; brate! VII.—Sometimes weak, but no gebratet.

Brechen, break, brach, gebrochen; brichſt; bräche; brich! (breche!) IV.—Radebrechen, murder (a language), is weak: radebrechte, geradebrecht.

-beihen, =dieh, diehen; =diehſt; =diehe; =diehe! I.—Only in gebeihen, thrive.

-verben, =darb, =dorben; =dirbſt; =dürbe or =därbe; =dirb! III.—Only in verderben, ruin, be ruined, which is apt to be weak when transitive. Verderbt means morally corrupt; ein verderbtes Herz, but ein verborbener (bankrupt) Kaufmann.

Dingen, hire, dang, gebungen; dingſt; dinge! III.—Originally and still, usually, weak. Pret. subj. always dingte, not dänge, nor dünge. Bedingen, stipulate, is usually weak, always so in the ppl. adj. bebingt, conditioned.

Dreschen, thresh, drasch or brosch, gedroschen; drisch(es)t, drischt; drösche, or dräsch; drisch! III.—Often weak.

=brießen, = broß, = broffen. Only in verbrießen, vez, which is hardly used except in the 3. sing.; verbrießt [=dreußt]; verbrösse. II.

Dringen, press, drang [brung], gedrungen; dringst; dränge [dränge]; bringe! III.

Essen, eat, aß, gegessen; issest or ißt, ißt; äße; iß! (esse!) V. — *Ge-*essen contracted to gessen (cf. Faust, l. 2838), where ge ceased to be felt as a prefix, and so was prefixed anew.

Fahren, go, fuhr, gefahren; fährst; führe; fahre! VI.

Fallen, fall, fiel, gefallen; fällst; fiele; falle! VII.

Fangen [fahen], catch, fing (fieng), gefangen; fängst [fäht]; finge (fienge); fange! VII.

Fechten, fight, focht, gefochten; ficht(es)t, ficht; föchte; ficht! [III.] — Sometimes weak.

=fehlen, = fahl, = fohlen; = fühlst; = fühle or = fähle; = fieh! (= fehle!) IV. — Only in befehlen, command, and empfehlen, recommend. Fehlen, fail, is weak.

Finden, find, fand, gefunden; findest; fände; finde! III.

Flechten, braid, flocht, geflochten; flicht(es)t, flicht; föchte; flicht! [III.]—Sometimes weak.

=fleihen, = fliß, = flissen; = fleißest, = fleißt; = flisse; = fleiße! I. — Only in sich befleihen, attend to.

Fliegen, fly, flog, geflogen; fliegst [fleugt]; flöge; fliege; [fleug!] II.

Fliehen, flee, floh, geflohen; fliehst [fleuchst]; flöhe; fliehe! [fleuch!] II.

Fließen, flow, floß, geflossen; fließ(es)t [fleußt], fließt [fleußt]; flöße; fließe! [fleuß!] II.

Fragen, ask, fragte (frug), gefragt; fragst (frägst); fragte; frage! VI. — A weak verb that has developed strong forms after the analogy of schlagen and tragen. But the weak forms are better.

Fressen, eat (said of animals), fraß, gefressen; frisstest or frist. frist; fräße; friß! (fresse!) V.—A compound of ver and essen.

Frieren, freeze, fror, gefroren; frierst; fröre; friere! II.

Gären, ferment, gor, gegoren; gierst; göre; [gier!] [IV.] — Usually weak, especially in the figurative sense be perturbed.

Geben, give, gab, gegeben; gibst (giebst); gäbe, gib! (gieb!) V.

Gehen, go, ging (gieng), gegangen; gehst; ginge (gienge); geh! VII.

Gelten, be worth, galt, gegolten; giltst, gilst; gölte or gälte; gilt! (gelte!) III.

=gessen, -gaß, -geessen; -giss(ef)t or -gist, -gist; -gäße; -giß! (-geße!)
 V. — Only in vergeffen, forget.

Gießen, pour, goß, gegossen; gieß(ef)t [geußt], gießt [geußt]; göße; gieße! [geuß!] II.

=ginnen, -gann, -gonnen; -ginnst; -gänne or -gönne; -ginne! III. — Only in beginnen, begin. Begonnte for begann, occurs in the classics.

Gleichen, be like, gleich, geglichen; gleichst; gleiche; gleiche! I. — Usually weak in the transitive sense make like.

Gleichen, shine, gliß, gegliffen; gleiß(ef)t, gleißt; glisse; gleiße! I. — Now usually weak, but little used in any form.

Gleiten, glide, glitt, geglitten; gleitest; glitte; gleite! I. — Sometimes weak.

Glimmen, glimmer, glomm, geglommen; glimmst; glömmе; glimme! [III]. — Sometimes weak.

Graben, dig, grub, gegraben; gräbst; gräbe; grabe! VI.

Greifen, seize, griff, gegriffen; greiffst; griffe; greife! I.

Greinen, grin, [grinn], [gegrinnen]; greinst; [grinne]; greine! I. — Now weak, and used only in the sense of whine, cry.

Halten, hold, hielt, gehalten; hältst, hält; hielte; halte! VII. —

Hängen, hang, hing (hieng), gehängen; hängst; hänge (hienge); hange! VII. — There is also a weak hängen, which, like hangen, is both transitive and intransitive.

Haue, hew, hieb, gehauen; haust; hiebe; haue! VII. — Sieb is for hiew; there is no change of stem, as in gehen, ging.

Heben, raise, hob or hub, gehoben; hebst, hübe or höbe; hebe! [VI.] The old pple. gehoben survives in erhaben, exalted.

Heißen, call, be called, hieß, geheißен; heiß(ef)t, heisst; heiße; heiße! VII.

Helfen, help, half, geholfen; hilfst; hülfе or hälfe; hilf! (helfe!) III.

Reifen, quarrel, [kiff], [getiffen]; teiffst; [kiffe]; teife! I. — Now always weak.

Riesен, choose, for, geforen; fief(ef)t; före; fiese! II. — Often weak. Cf. füren.

Kleben, cleave, klob, gekloben; kliebst; klöbe; kliebe! II. — Usually weak, and little used in any form.

Klimmen, climb, kломм, geklommen; klimmst; klömmе; kimme! [III.] — Often weak.

Klingen, sound, klang, geklungen; klingst; klänge; klinge! III. — Often weak.

Kneifen, pinch, kniff, gekniffen; kneißt; kniffe; kneise! I.—Often weak.

Kneipen, pinch, [knipp,] [geknippen]; kneipst; [knippe]; kneipe! I.—Now always weak. Kneipen, drink, is weak.

Kommen, come, kam, gekommen; kommst (kömmt); käme; komm! [IV.].—Kömmst, kömmt, are common in the classics, but kommst, kommt, are to be preferred.

Kreischen, scream, krich, gekrichen; kreich(ef)t, kreichst; kriche; kreiche! I. See under freischen.

Kreißen, scream, [riß], [gekrissen]; kreich(ef)t, kreißt; [kriffe]; kreiße! I.—Both freiß and kreich, related words, are often weak, freiß now regularly so.

Kriechen, creep, kroch, gekrochen; kriechst [kreichst]; kriche; kriche! [kreich!] II.

Küren, choose, for, geforen; kürst; köre; küre! II.—Often weak. The pret. for, of kiesen, gave rise to the spurious present kürren.

Laden, load, lud, geladen; lädst, lädt; lübe; lade! VI.—Laden, invite, was at first weak, but early became confounded with laden, load. Both now prefer weak forms in the pres., strong in the pret.

Lassen, let, ließ, gelassen; lässest or läßt, läßt; ließe; laß! VII.

Laufen, run, lief, gelaufen; läufft (laufft); liefe; lauf! VII.

Leiden, suffer, litt, gelitten; leidest; litte; leide! I.—Entleiden and verleiden, from leid, are weak. So is bemitleiden, pity, from Mitleid.

Leihen, lend, lieh, geliehen; leihst; liehe; leihe! I.

Lesen, read, las, gelesen; lei(ef)t, ließt; läse; lies! (lese!) V.

Liegen, lie, be situated, lag, gelegen; liegst; läge; liege! V.

-lieren, -lor, -loren; -lierst; -löre; -liere! II.—Only in verlieren, lose.

-lingen, -lang, -lungen; 3. sing. -lingt; -länge. III.—Only in gesingen, succeed, and mißlingen, fail. Used impersonally.

Löschen, go out, put out (of a light), lösch, gelöscht; lösch(ef)t, löschst; lösche; lösch! [III.].—Often weak, especially, when transitive. Originally leschen, whence löschest, löschst, lösch!

Lügen, lie, speak falsely, log, gelogen; lügst; löge; lüge! II.

Mahlen, grind, [müh], gemahlen; [mähst]; [mühle]; mahle; VI.—Now weak, except gemahlen.

Meiden, shun, mied, gemieden; meidest; miede; meide! I.

Meißen, milk, molf, gemolken; mißst; möste; miß! [III.].—Now usually weak.

Messen, measure, maß, gemessen; missest or mißt, mißt; mäße, miß! (messe!) V.

Nehmen, take, nahm, genommen; nimmst; nähme; nimm! (nehme!) IV.

-nesen, -nas, -nesen; -nes(ef)t, -nest; -näse; -nese! V. — Only in genesen, recover.

Zeihen, accuse, zieh, gezogen; ziehst; ziehe; zeihe! I.

Ziehen, draw, zog, gezogen; ziehst [zeuchst]; zöge; ziehe! [zeuch!] II.

Zwingen, force, zwang, gezwungen; zwingst; zwänge; zwinge! III.

USE OF THE MODAL AUXILIARIES

332. While it belongs to lexicography rather than grammar to explain in detail the meanings of words, the modal auxiliaries are of such peculiar idiomatic importance as to justify a departure from the rule in their case. The brief account in § 191 is therefore recapitulated and amplified in the following sections.

333. Dürfen. The root-meaning is need, in which sense it is used by Luther with a gen.; e. g. die Gefunden dürfen des Arztes nicht, need not a physician (Luke v, 31). This sense is now given by bedürfen.

1. From the meaning be in want of it was an easy step to have occasion for, as in Lessing's was darf ich eben Loren fragen: wer ist der größte Mann? what need (occasion) have I to ask? This sense is now given by brauchen.

2. From the last meaning came naturally that of have authority, hence, be allowed, be justified in. This is the usual meaning of dürfen in modern German. Sometimes it approaches sönnen, or, with a negative, müssen, and is to be translated by may, can, must, according to the connection. Examples: ich darf annehmen, I may assume; darf ich bitten? may I ask? ich durfte mich ärgern, I had a right to be annoyed; er ist krank und darf nicht ausgehen, can not, must not, go out (for he may (possibly) not go out, one would say er kann möglicherweise nicht ausgehen); hier bin ich Mensch, hier darf ich's sein (G.), I can be, may be, have the right to be one; ich darf nicht sagen wie, I can not, must not, say how (because propriety forbids), but ich kann nicht sagen wie, I can not say how (because I am unable).

3. Dürfen early became confounded with the now obsolete turren, dare (ich tar, I dare; ich torste, I durst), whence the occasional meaning of dare, venture; e. g. wer darf mir's ins Gesicht sagen? who dares say it to my face? ich darf behaupten, I dare assert. But the student should, in general, be wary of translating dürfen by dare.

4. The pret. subj. dürfte is used in mild expressions of probability; e. g. man dürfte manches einwenden, one might make many objections; diese Mittel dürften sich nicht bewähren, these means may not prove effective; das dürfte der Fall sein, may be the case.

334. Können. The original meaning, to know, is preserved in a few phrases, mostly of the school; e. g. kannst du die Regel (das Spiel, den Katechismus)? do you know the rule (the game, the catechism)? Können Sie Deutsch? do you know German? Ich kann es auswendig, I know it by heart. Here no verb is understood, tho it may seem natural to supply one.

1. Very often it expresses simple ability, being then = vermögen; e. g. du kannst ja alles, Tell (S.), you can do everything, you know; wenn ich etwas auf dich könnte (G.), if I could influence you somewhat; was kann die Welt mir wohl gewähren (G.)? what can the world offer me?

2. Most commonly it denotes possibility, variously conditioned by circumstances, inclination, the nature of things; e. g. ich kann nicht hohe Worte machen (G.), I can not make fine phrases (it being contrary to my nature); kann das natürlich geschehen? can that happen naturally? das kann der Fall sein, that may be the case (much the same as das mag der Fall sein).

a. If the conditioning circumstances imply a right, or permission, können may take the place of dürfen; e. g. nun könnt ihr hereinkommen, now you can (may) come in; kein Kaiser kann, was unser ist, verschenten (S.), no emperor can (has the right to) give away what is ours.

3. Akin to the last is that meaning which implies that there is good reason for the action; e. g. Sie können mir glauben, you may well believe me; darauf kannst du stolz sein, you have reason to be proud of that; in diesem Sinne kannst du's wagen (G.), you can afford to venture it.

a. Hence können may convey a request, a suggestion, a mild command or remonstrance. Thus (to a child): kannst du nicht einmal zu mir kommen, come and see me, won't you; (to a servant): Sie können mir eine Flasche Wein bringen, you may bring me, etc.; ich könnte später zurückkehren, I might return later (I suppose); so etwas können Sie glauben? can you believe such a thing.

335. Mögen. The radical meaning is to be able, and this sense is occasionally met with in modern German; e. g. da keiner dich ergründen mag (G.), since none can fathom thee; du magst es prächtig maßen (Geibel), you can (i. e. you are the man to) paint it gloriously. But this sense is now for the most part given by the compound vermögen, or else by können, with which mögen is sometimes pleonastically associated; e. g. was ich kann und mag, as much as ever I can. Vermögen requires zu before a dependent infinitive; e. g. ich vermag nicht zu urteilen, I can not judge.

1. More common, but still not the most common, is the meaning of possibility, conditioned by outward circumstances; e. g. ohn' ihn mag ich auf Erden, mag dort nicht selig werden (Bürger), without him I can not be happy; was mag wohl drinne sein (G.)? what can be in it, pray? er möchte ein böses Gewissen haben (L.), he possibly had a bad conscience; wie möchte das zu erweisen sein? how could that be proved?

a. Möchte is common in narrative to denote a rough approximation; e. g. ungefähr zwei Monate möchte ich so zugebracht haben, I may have spent about two months thus.

b. Out of the general meaning of possibility grows the permissive or concessive force of mögen; e. g. ein Ding mag noch so närrisch sein, however foolish a thing may be; mag er kommen oder gehen, was schiert's mich (L.), he may come or go, what do I care. As thus used in indirect discourse it may denote a mild command; e. g. sie rief, er möge gehen, wohin er wolle, she called to him to go where he chose.

2. The subjunctive forms may serve as a periphrasis for a potential or optative mode; e. g. die Straße wird bestreut, damit die Pferde nicht ausgleiten mögen (G.), that the horses may not slip; des Himmels Heere mögen dich bebeden (U.), may heaven's hosts protect thee; möchte ich doch im stande sein (G.), would that I were able. Note that in the first two of these examples a simple subjunctive would be undistinguishable from the indicative.

3. The usual office of mögen now is to denote a wish, choice or preference; e. g. sie mag sich gerne putzen (G.), she likes to adorn herself; magst du ein redlich Wort von mir vernehmen (S.)? do you want to hear an honest word? ich möchte wissen, I should like to know; ich möchte bittre Tränen weinen (G.), I would fain weep; es möchte kein Hund so länger leben (G.), no dog would care, etc. The infinitive is often omitted; e. g. behalten Sie es für sich, ich mag es nicht, I do not care for it; warum magst du, was du nicht vermagst? why do you wish to do what you can not do?

336. Müssen. In the oldest German müssen usually means to have liberty, to be permitted, i. e. it corresponds to the modern dürfen. This sense appears now only in negative sentences, where müssen is sometimes interchangeable with dürfen; e. g. das mußt du nicht tun, you must not do that; ihr müßt nur nicht erschrecken (S.), you must not be frightened.

1. The modern müssen generally implies a constraint from without, as of circumstances, authority, duty, logic; e. g. durch diese hohe Gasse muß er kommen (S.), he must come (there being no other way); Sigeth muß fallen, Sigeth must fall; ich muß gestehen, I must confess; ich mußte lachen, I had to laugh; ihr müßtet euch schweigend fügen (S.), you should have yielded, = ihr hättet euch fügen sollen.

2. Less often it denotes certainty, assurance; e. g. dieser Mensch muß ein Mörder sein, 'no doubt this man is a murderer' (Acts xxviii, 4); man muß keinen Philosophen kennen, wenn man glaubt (L.), one must needs be a stranger to philosophers, etc.; es mußte der Teufel dahinter stecken (G.), the devil would needs be in it.

3. It may denote that something is so fated, ordained, or it may present a voluntary action as due to constraint; e. g. weh mir, was muß ich hören? alas, what must I hear? warum mußtest du mich verlassen? why did you have to leave me? ich setzte mich hin, um zu arbeiten, und war in guter Laune; nun aber mußte ein langweiliger Besuch mich stören, a tedious call had to interrupt me, i. e. it was my fate to be interrupted.

337. Sollen. The radical meaning of sollen, to which Schuld is a verbal abstract, is that of obligation, duty. The pret. subj. with present force, corresponds to English should, ought to, while the pres. ind. may denote a peremptory command; e. g. er sollte sich schämen, he ought to be ashamed; du sollst nicht stehlen, thou shalt not steal. So in toasts; e. g. der König soll leben! long live the king!

1. More often, however, sollen denotes not that something ought to be, but that it is to be, in accordance with another's will or decree; e. g. er soll gleich kommen, he shall come at once (i. e. I promise that he shall); die Wahl sollte bald gehalten werden, the election was soon to be held. Thus often in confident promises; e. g. in deine Hütte soll der Schweizer wallen (S.), to thy hut the Swiss shall journey.

a. Hence sollen corresponds to English shall in deliberative questions; e. g. was soll ich tun? what shall I do? what am I to do? was soll der Mensch verlangen (G.)? what shall man desire?

b. Similar to the last is the use of folgen in was soll der Hut (S.)? what is the hat meant for? was soll es bedeuten? what is it meant to signify? i. e. what construction is to be put upon it?

2. Very often it is used in reporting on hearsay, or on the authority or claim of others; e. g. das Buch soll sehr interessant sein, is said to be very interesting; soll (or sollte) das möglich sein? can that be possible? i. e. shall (or should) one be expected to believe it?

3. Now and then sollte (pret. subj.) has about the force of the conditional; e. g. ich sollte meinen, I should think; man sollte glauben, one would believe.

338. Sollen denotes etymologically a will or intention on the part of the subject; e. g. ich will euch lehren Gesichter machen (G.), I will teach you to make faces; du willst uns gar noch grob begegnen (G.)? do you actually mean to insult us?

a. Very often, however, it denotes a wish rather than a will, especially if there is no infinitive; e. g. was wollt ihr da? what do you want there? er will noch Dank, he even wants thanks. Still fainter is the radical meaning in wollen Sie so gut sein, will you be so kind (polite request); wir wollen einen Papst erwählen, we will choose a pope (proposal).

1. Since the intent is apt to be followed by action, wollen often comes to have the meaning to be on the point of; e. g. er will gehen, he is about to go (common in stage directions); die Uhr schrillte (screeched) wie immer, wenn sie eben schlagen wollte, whenever it was about to strike; der Krieg schien sich nun auf deutschen Boden spielen zu wollen (S.), seemed about to play.

2. Specially important is the idiomatic use of wollen with non-personal subjects, which strictly can have no will. The shades of meaning thus given are many and subtle; e. g. das will euch nicht befallen (G.), that won't suit you, i. e. doesn't suit you at all; das will nichts sagen, that means nothing; es will eben verlauten, it is just being noised abroad; es will ohnehin regnen, it is bound to rain any way; das Buch will studiert sein, the book must be studied (cf. § 344, 1).

3. Wollen often implies a claim, an attitude, a seeming intention, on the part of the subject; e. g. willst heller sehen als deine edeln Väter (S.)? dost claim to see more clearly? er will es gehört haben, he claims to have heard; ich will es nicht bemerkt haben, I will act as if I had not noticed it; ich will es gern gelogen haben, I am ready to be called a liar for having said it; ich such' ihn überall, allein er will mir nicht begegnen (G.), he is bound not to meet me, seems bent on not meeting me; wir warteten lange auf ihn, da er aber nicht kommen wollte, etc. but since he didn't seem inclined to come; mit der Wahl wollte es immer mehr ernst werden, it was bent on becoming, i. e. the prospect seemed, more and more serious.

a. Care must be taken in all cases to avoid confounding wollen with a mere auxiliary of the [future; es will mir nicht einleuchten, I do not understand it at all, is different from es wird mir nie einleuchten, I shall never understand it; er will mir nicht begegnen, in the above example, from er wird mir nicht begegnen, he will not meet me. Nevertheless wollen sometimes approaches werden pretty closely; e. g. ich weiß nicht, was das werden will, I do not know what will come of it (werden wird would be cacophonous).

4. Notice finally the use of the subjunctive in das wolle Gott nicht, God forbid; wollte Gott, daß, would to God that; ich wollte lieber nichts davon wissen, which may mean I had rather know nothing of it, as well as I preferred to know; wie wollt' es auch zu euren Ohren kommen (G.)? how should it come to your ears?

IMPERSONAL VERBS

339. The Personal and the Impersonal Construction. With certain verbs there is a choice between a personal and an impersonal form of expression; e. g. between es dauert mich and ich bedaure, I am sorry; between mich friert and ich friere, I am cold.

1. In these cases the impersonal form properly denotes an involuntary experience, the personal a voluntary activity of the subject; thus mir träumte, als stünde ich (G.), I dreamed (the dream came to me) that I stood; er träumt von einer Palme (Heine), he is dreaming of a palm-tree; mich hungert, I am hungry, but er hungert aus Geiz, he goes hungry from avarice. Still the distinction is often ignored in practice; thus Grimm writes damit ihr nicht friert and damit euch nicht friere, with precisely the same sense.

340. Es gibt, with object in the accusative, is used in the sense of there is, if the object is plural, there are; e. g. es gibt was Neues, there is something new; heute wird's noch ein Gewitter geben, there will be a shower yet to-day; o, gibt es Geister in der Luft (G.), if there are spirits in the air.

1. On the es of this phrase cf. § 303, 1, a. Since the pronoun denotes a general situation, es gibt should not be used if the object is a concrete thing definitely limited in time or place. Thus one would not say es gibt einen Dieb (but es ist ein Dieb) im Hause, there is a thief in the house; not es gibt (but es sind) 10 Mark in dem Beutel, there are 10 marks in the purse. The object is apt to be a neuter pronoun, a plural, an abstract, an infinitive; e. g. was gibt's? what's up? what's the matter? es gibt im Menschenleben Augenblicke (S.), there are moments, etc.; es muß auch solche Ränze geben (G.), there must be such fellows; hier gibt's zu tun (G.), here is work to do; hier gibt's zu unterscheiden (L.), here there is a distinction to be made; was gibt's zu essen? what is there to eat?

a. The use of the nom. after es gibt, as in es gibt frischer Hering, there is fresh herring, is provincial. So, too, is the use of geben for gibt when the object is plu.; e. g. er ist ein Kauz, wie's mehr noch geben (G.), such as there are many more.

COMPOUND VERBS

341. The Adverbial Prefixes which form separable compounds are as follows, the * marking those that may be inseparable:

ab, off, down	entzwei, in two	ob, over, upon an, at, on	entgegen, toward	*über, over auf, up	fort, away, forth	*um, around aus, out	gegen, against	*unter, under bei, by, with	in(ne), in	vor, before bevor, before	heim, home	*wieder, again
da(r), there	her, hither	weg, away dazwischen, between	hin, thither	zu, to *durch, thru	hinter, behind	zurück, back ein, into	mit, with	zusammen, together empor, up

a. To these must be added a number of compound particles formed by combining some two of the words given above, the compounds of da(r), her and hin being especially numerous; e. g. davon, off; dahin, thither; herauf, up here; herein, in here; hinab, down there; hinüber, over there; einher, along; umher, around; zuvor, before; überein, in accord; voraus, in advance.

1. Bevor hardly occurs as separable prefix except in bevorstehen, impend. — Da occurs in dableiben, dastehen, but is rare, dar being preferred, as in darbieten, darreichen, darstellen. In composition with another particle da is preferred before consonants, dar before vowels; thus dabei, damit, but daran, daraus. — Gegen and in are hardly used alone, their places being taken by entgegen, and ein or inne.

2. Of the separable prefixes, some, as ab, ein, empor, fort, heim, weg, hin and her and their compounds, are used only in composition with verbs or in the predicate after sein; while others are in use as prepositions or as ordinary adverbs. Distinguish between the compound davonkommen, in für diesmal kommst du so davon (G.), for this once you shall get off thus, and the simple verb kommen modified by the adverb davon, in ich bin eben davon gekommen, I have just come from it (e. g. from the concert).

3. As to compounds of durch, über, um, unter, wieder, separable composition accents the idea of the prefix and is apt to be preferred if the meaning is literal, while inseparable composition is associated more with figurative meanings; e. g. unfern Zustand hatte sie längst durchblickt (G.), she had long since seen thru (i. e. comprehended) our condition, but ich nahm ein Fernrohr und blickte durch, I took a spy-glass and looked thru; die Kälte durchdringt das ganze Haus, permeates the whole house, but das Dach war morsch und das Wasser drang durch, the water pressed thru; der Kutscher hat ein Kind überfahren, ran over a child, but er hat uns übergefahren, he drove us over (e. g. over the bridge).

a. In many cases, however, the two modes of composition are used interchangeably without perceptible difference of meaning; thus Goethe writes: am 29. durchging ich die Rolle, I went thru the rôle, and in the next sentence: ich ging dieselbe Rolle durch.

b. As to compounds of wider and hinter see § 212, 1.

342. Phrase-Compounds. By this name we designate those compounds in which the first part (the separable prefix) is an adjective, a noun, or a prepositional phrase. They may be divided into three groups, as follows:

1. Compounds of adjective and verb, the adjective having a factitive sense; e. g. bloßstellen, expose; festhalten, hold fast; freisprechen, acquit; hochachten, esteem; losgehen, go off; tödtschlagen, kill; wahrnehmen, perceive; weismachen, hoax. These and some others follow the ordinary rules of separable composition; thus festhalten, hielt fest, festgehalten.

a. But a few such compounds are inflected like a simple stem ; e. g. liebſoſen, caress, liebſoſte, geliebſoſt. So also weiſſagen and wahrſagen, prophecy. Like the latter are also certain quasi-compounds derived from stems already compounded ; as frühſtücken, breakfast (from Frühſtück), frühſtückte, gefrühſtückt ; langweilen, bore (from Langweile) ; frohlocken, rejoice ; rechtfertigen, justify.

2. Compounds of noun and verb, the noun being the object ; e. g. aſſtgeben, heed ; danſſagen, thank ; fehſſchlagen, miscarry ; glückwünſchen, congratulate ; hoſſhalten, hold court ; hoſnlaſchen, mock ; hoſnſprechen, defy ; lobſingen, praise ; preisgeben, give over. These and some others follow the rules of separable composition ; thus teilnehmen, participate, naſhm teil, teilgenommen. But hoſnlaſchen admits of both hoſnlaſchte and laſchte hoſn.

a. Other such compounds are inflected like a simple stem, a strong verb becoming weak ; e. g. brandſchagen, levy tribute ; lobhubeln, flatter fulsomely ; luſtwandeln, walk for pleasure ; mutmaſſen, conjecture ; radebrechen, torture ; wetterleuchten, lighten ; willſahren, gratify ; thus zu luſtwandeln, luſtwandelte, geſuſtwandelt ; zu radebrechen, radebrechte, geradebrecht. Like these again are certain quasi-compounds, as argwiſſen, suspect (from Argwiſſen) ; brandmarken, stigmatize (from Brandmarke) ; handhaben (handhabte, gehandhabt), handle ; hoſmeiſtern, play the pedant with ; ratſchlagen (ratſchlagte, geratſchlagt), take counsel ; welkſagen, lament ; wetteiſern, emulate.

b. Whether the separated noun of such compounds is to be written with a capital, or not, will depend upon how far it has lost its substantive character. The matter is not yet very strictly regulated ; thus while the rules prescribe naſhm teil and ſand ſtatt, they permit ſagte Dank instead of danſſagte. Formerly all such nouns were given a capital, as they still must be if qualified by an adjective ; thus ich naſhm daran teil, but ich naſhm daran keinen Teil. For such matters the wisest must consult the official rules (see Appendix I), or else Duden's Orthographisches Wörterbuch.

c. Numerous compounds of a verb with a noun or adjective admit of use only as participial adjectives or substantive infinitives ; e. g. fruchtbringend, fruitful ; ſinnbetörend, sense-distracting ; rotblühend, red-blooming ; das Atemholen, the drawing of the breath. But there are no verbs fruchtbringen, atemholen, etc.

3. Compounds of prepositional phrase and verb, as auſeinanderſetzen, explain ; burcheinanderwerfen, jumble together.

a. Here may be noticed a numerous class of verbal phrases which are in all respects separable compounds, except that phrase and verb are not written as one word in the inf. and perf. pple. Their spelling is, again, in a very unsettled state. Examples are : zuſſte tun, do for the love of; von flatten gehen, go off; zu stande (or zustande) kommen, come to pass; in stand (or instand, also in Stand) setzen, put in position; zu Grunde gehen, go to ruin.

343. Compounds of Compounds. These always have the first prefix separable, as in anerkennen, recognize, auferziehen, bring up. Seeming exceptions are not really compounds, but are derived from nouns; as beauftragen, commission (from Auftrag); benachrichtigen, apprise (from Nachricht); verabscheuen, abhor (from Abscheu). Such verbs are weak and inseparable; thus beauftragte, beauftragt.

1. While verbs doubly compounded are regularly separable (auferziehen, zog auf), there are some of them that are avoided in forms where separation would be in order; e. g. auferstehen, rise from the dead; auferlesen, select; einverleiben, embody. One can say er ist auferstanden, or als er auferstand, but not er erstand auf. Some writers even prefer er anerkannte to er erkannte an.

USE OF THE PASSIVE VOICE

344. Werden and Sein. The true passive with werden (§ 195, 1), denotes an activity, the quasi-passive with sein a state; e. g. es wird behauptet, it is asserted, i. e. people assert; so ist es nicht gemeint, it is not meant thus, i. e. such is not the meaning; dorthin wurde ich gezogen (G.), I was drawn thither, i. e. something drew me; sein gepudertes Haar war in eine runde Locke aufgesteckt (G.), was fastened up into a round mass, i. e. such was the style of hair-dress that had resulted from the operation of 'fastening up'; der Entschluß war gefaßt (G.), the resolution was formed, i. e. had been previously formed; diese ist teils auf Felsen gebaut (G.), is built partly on rocks, i. e. has a rock foundation.

a. Such a form as ich bin gezwungen, I am compelled, has reference, then, to the state of constraint in which I find myself, whereas ich werde gezwungen implies an agent. Ich bin gezwungen forms a perf. ich bin gezwungen gewesen, I was constrained.

1. In old German sein was used as auxiliary of the passive, and survivals of this usage are still often met with; e. g. in the imv., sei gelobt regularly takes the place of werde gelobt. So also one says seib gegrüßt, not werdet gegrüßt, be greeted, and laß es dir gesagt sein, for be assured. Instead of werde überredet, for be persuaded, usage prefers laß dich überreden. Noteworthy is the use of sein after wollen = must; e. g. das Buch will nicht nur durchblättern, sondern studiert sein, must be not only perused but studied.

2. The ppl. geboren, born, is used with sein in speaking of living persons, with werden in speaking of the dead: ich bin geboren, I was born, but Luther wurde geboren, Luther was born. War geboren is properly a pluperfect in sense.

3 The clumsy forms ending in worden sein are very rare in the classics.

345. Notes on the Passive Construction. The fundamental use of the passive is to furnish a form of statement in which the action itself, or the object of it, is made more prominent than the active agent; thus in der Blitz traf den Baum, lightning struck the tree, one thinks primarily of the lightning, but in der Baum wurde vom Blitz getroffen, of the tree.

a. It follows, therefore, that the passive is out of place if the connection shows that the agent is the real subject of thought.

1. With verbs that take two accusatives in the active, both accusatives become nominatives in the passive; e. g. man nannte ihn Wilhelm den Verschwiegenen, they called him William the Silent, becomes er wurde Wilhelm der Verschwiegene genannt.

a. After lehren, teach, the acc. of the thing-object is sometimes retained, but the construction is rare. Instead of ich wurde die Musik gelehrt, I was taught music, one says ich wurde in der Musik unterrichtet, or die Musik wurde mir gelehrt.

2. Exceptions to the general rule that intransitive verbs can only be used impersonally in the passive (§ 198) occur in talk and even in the classics; e. g. von Jammer gefolgt, schreitet das Unglück (S.), misfortune strides on followed by wailing. Here and elsewhere gefolgt von imitates the Fr. suivi de. Other verbs so used occasionally are denken, glauben, helfen, schmeicheln; but it is better to follow the rule and to say mir wurde gedankt, geglaubt, geholfen, geschmeichelt and not ich wurde gedankt, geglaubt, etc.

SYNTAX OF NUMBER AND PERSON

346. Congruence of Number. A verb agrees with its subject in number.

a. Singular titles may take a plural verb; e. g. Eure Majestät (Exzellenz, Hoheit, Durchlaucht) haben befohlen, Your Majesty (Excellence, Highness, Serene Highness) has ordered; Herr Doktor wurden catechisiert (G.), the doctor was catechized. Except in ceremonious address to high dignitaries this construction is no longer common.

1. A collective noun takes a singular verb unless there is a plural appositive; e. g. die Menge macht den Künstler irr' und scheu (G.), the crowd makes the artist confused and shy; das Volk ist frei (G.); das junge Volk der Schnitter fliegt zum Tanz (S.), but eine Menge Gäste waren versammelt, a number of guests were assembled.

2. After the expletive es the verb takes the number of the logical subject; e. g. es reden und träumen die Menschen viel (S.), men talk and dream much.

a. After es, dies, das, in expressions of identity, the verb takes the number of the predicate noun; e. g. das sind Taschenspielerstücke (G.), those are juggler's tricks.

3. Two or more singular subjects require a plural verb only when they denote different persons or things that do not form a unity; otherwise — and the cases are very much more common than in English — the verb stands in the singular; e. g. der König und die Kaiserin . . . machten endlich Friede (Bürger), the king and the empress finally made peace; der ganze Himmel und Juno erstaunten darüber (L.), all Olympus and Juno were astonished at it; Altar und Kirche prangt in Festesglanz (S.), altar and church are bright with festal splendor; der Strom, das Meer, das Salz, gehört dem König (S.); und Fels und Meer wird fortgerissen (G.).

a. Very often, especially in poetry, position favors the singular verb, it being made to agree with the nearest subject; e. g. Meister rührt sich und Geselle (S.), master and man bestir themselves.

b. Singular subjects connected by oder, weder . . . noch, nicht allein . . . sondern auch, sowohl . . . als, take a singular verb.

347. Congruence of Person. A verb agrees with its subject in person.

1. Where there are subjects of different person, the general rule is that the plural verb stands in the first person, if the first person is represented among the subjects, otherwise in the second; e.g. was du und ich dereinst im Himmel hoffen (S.), what you and I hope for one day in heaven; du und er seid beide im Irrtum, you and he are both in error.

a. If the verb precedes, or if the subjects are connected by oder, weder . . . noch, nicht allein . . . sondern auch, sowohl . . . als, the verb is apt to agree with the nearest subject; e.g. in dieser Sache, irrst du und ich (Blatz), in this matter you and I are mistaken; entweder du oder ich muß sterben, either you or I must die.

b. In a relative clause (§ 137) the verb stands in the third person, regardless of the person of the antecedent, unless a personal pronoun is inserted after the relative; e.g. o Gott, der im Himmel thront, who art enthroned; but der du von dem Himmel bist (G.), thou who art in heaven; bist du es, der . . . in allen Lebensstufen zittert? is it thou that dost tremble?

USE OF THE TENSES

348. The following account of the tenses must be understood as referring primarily to the tenses of the indicative mode. The use of tenses in the other modes can best be dealt with in treating of the modes themselves.

1. There is nothing in German corresponding to the English 'progressive' forms, I am going, I have been thinking, etc. A pres. pple. after a form of sein is felt as an adjective. Cf., however, Lessing's er ist die Gräfin hier nicht vermutend, is not expecting, which approaches the English usage.

349. The Present is the tense of present time and of general statements true without regard to time; e.g. die Sonne tönt nach alter Weise (G.), the sun makes music as of old; Genießen macht gemein (G.), pleasure makes vulgar.

1. As in English, and even more freely, the pres. may take the place of a fut. to denote a present purpose or a confident expectation; e. g. entschuldigen Sie mich einen Augenblick, ich bin gleich zurück, I shall be back directly; warte nur, ich krieg' ihn schon (G.), just wait, I'll get him.

2. The historical present for the preterit is common in vivid narration; e. g. plötzlich wurden die Pferde angehalten, drei Räuber überfallen den Wagen und verlangen von dem Reisenden sein Geld (Auerbach), suddenly the horses were stopped, three robbers attack the carriage and demand of the traveler his money.

3. For the English perfect, denoting that which has been and still is, German uses the present, generally with an adverb of time; e. g. der arme Knabe wartet lange (G.), has been waiting long; schon viele Tage seh' ich' schweigend an (S.), these many days I have been noticing.

4. For the pres. as mild imperative, see § 363, 3, c.

350. The Preterit refers to a particular past time defined by the connection. It is thus the tense for narrating past events in their relation to one another; e. g. es war einmal ein junger Kerl, der ließ sich als Soldat anwerben, hielt sich brav und war immer der Tapferste, wenn es blaue Bohnen regnete (Gr.), there was once a young fellow who enlisted as a soldier, behaved bravely and was always foremost when it was raining bullets.

1. Just as in Eng. the pret. may denote a repeated or a continued past action. The former is called the 'iterative,' the latter the 'durative' pret. Examples: wenn ich so saß bei einem Gelag (G.), whenever I was sitting thus at a drinking-bout; Goethe kümmerte sich wenig um die Politik, cared little for politics.

2. For the distinction between the pret. and the perf. see § 351.

351. The Perfect denotes primarily a present status that has resulted from a past action; e. g. ich habe mir ein Pferd gekauft, I have bought me a horse, i. e. I have a horse got by buying, Christ ist erstanden, Christ has arisen, i. e. is now on high.

1. Very frequently, however, the perfect is used, without any implied reference to present time, to report an isolated past occurrence. In such cases English employs the preterit; e.g. Shakespeare hat etwa vierzig Dramen geschrieben, S. wrote some forty plays (English permits has written only in speaking of a living person); es ist dir recht geschehen, it served you right; wo ist er? ich hab' ihn rufen hören (G.), where is he? I heard him call.

a. The perf. then, is the tense for reporting isolated or unconnected facts, while the pret. is the tense for narrating events in their connection. With the pret. one thinks of the time when the thing occurred, with the perf. (save as it may be accompanied by an adverb of time), only of the fact that it occurred.

b. But in the written language the pret. encroaches largely upon the domain of the perf. and must very often be translated by the Eng. perf. Thus Steffens' autobiography is called Was ich erlebte, i. e. what I have experienced. Cf. Goethe's was ich irrte, was ich strebte, was ich litt und was ich lebte, sind nur Blumen hier im Strauß, what I have done amiss, etc. In poetry the two tenses are often used interchangeably; e.g. ich hatte selbst oft grillenhafte Stunden, doch solchen Trieb hab' ich noch nie empfunden (G.), I have often had crotchety hours myself, but I have never yet felt, etc.; da lief ich frisch hinzu, so wie ich war, und mit der Art hab' ich ihm's Bad gesegnet (S.), then I ran up quickly just as I was and with my axe I blessed his bath.

c. In the spoken language, on the other hand, especially that of the uneducated, the perf. encroaches on the domain of the pret. In some of the South-German dialects the pret. is practically extinct, the perf. having taken its place. Even good literature is affected to some extent by this tendency.

352. The Pluperfect denotes a past status resulting from a previous action, or an action completed prior to some past time. It corresponds closely to the English pluperfect; e.g. ich hatte Holz gefällt im Wald (S.), I had been cutting wood in the forest; er war mit König Friedrichs Macht gezogen in die Prager Schlacht (Bürger), had marched to the battle of Prague.

353. The Future and Future Perfect correspond in the main to the English tenses of the same name; e.g. wird uns das Reich beschützen (S.)? will the empire protect us? er wird seine Arbeit bald vollendet haben, he will soon have completed his work.

1. By a usage not exactly paralleled in English the future may denote a present, and the future perfect a past, probability ('presumptive' future); e. g. es wird Ihnen bekannt sein, it is probably known to you; du wirst gehört haben, you have probably heard.

2. After wenn the fut. is apt to be replaced by the pres., and the fut. perf. by the perf., just as in Eng.; e. g. wenn einst ich tot bin . . . und du, mein Auge, . . . nun ausgeweint hast (Kl.), when some day I am dead and thou, mine eye, hast done with weeping.

3. For the fut. as mild imperative see § 363, 3, c.

USE OF THE MODES

354. The indicative corresponds closely to the English indicative and presents, as a mode, no peculiar difficulties. On the other hand the subjunctive, which is all but extinct in English, is fully preserved in German and has a variety of special uses which require particular attention.

THE SUBJUNCTIVE

355. Classification of Uses. While the indicative is the mode of actuality, the subjunctive is, broadly speaking, the mode of contingency; it denotes that something is commanded, desired, possible, contrary to fact, reported, thought, or asked. Its various uses may be grouped under five general heads, namely: the imperative subjunctive, the optative subjunctive, the potential subjunctive, the unreal subjunctive, and the dependent subjunctive.

1. For the name 'subjunctive' the Germans employ 'conjunctive' (Konjunktiv). The mode is named, in both languages, from its use in expressing a 'subjoined,' 'conjoined,' i. e. dependent idea (the fifth of the above-named uses). This is upon the whole the most important and characteristic function of the mode. It is, however, of frequent occurrence in sentences that are not formally dependent, while on the other hand, any of the first four varieties may occur in a dependent sentence.

356. The Imperative Subjunctive denotes a command and is usually translatable by let. It occurs in the first and third persons (rarely in the first singular), where it fills out the inflection of the imperative; e. g. edel sei der Mensch (G.), let man be noble; doch gehen wir (G.), but let us go; gesteh' ich's nur (G.), just let me confess.

a. Here belongs the inv. with Sie, — haben Sie die Güte, have the kindness, being in its origin = let them have the kindness (§ 301, 3).

1. A special variety of the imperative subjunctive is the so-called 'concessive' subjunctive, which concedes a proposition to get a basis for some further statement; e. g. es sei Fabel oder Geschichte (L.), be it (whether it be) truth or fable; ich bin bei dir, du seist auch noch so ferne (G.), I am with thee, however distant thou mayest be.

a. The concessive subjunctive followed by denn or bann has acquired, thru the omission of the old negative particle ne, the force of a negative condition translatable by unless; i. e. es ne sei denn, be it not so then, became es sei denn, unless it be. Examples: und kommt man hin . . . erhält man nichts, man bringe denn was hin (G.), one gets nothing unless one brings something there; doch eher stimm' ich nicht mit ein, es regne denn in meinen Wein (L.), unless it rains in my wine.

357. The Optative Subjunctive denotes a wish; e. g. umsonst sei all dein Ringen (U.), may all thy striving be in vain; wären wir nur den Berg vorbei (G.), if we were only past the hill; des Himmels Heere mögen dich bedecken (U.), may heaven's hosts protect thee.

1. The present wishes for what is possible and is expected to happen, the preterit that what is so were not so, or vice versa, and the pluperfect that what was not so had been so, or vice versa; e. g. seine Seele ruhe in Frieden, may his soul rest in peace; wüßte ich nur, did I but know (but I do not know); hätte ich nur gewußt, had I but known (but I did not know); wär' ich weit von hier (S.), would I were far from here; o, wäre ich . . . entseelt dahingefunten (G.), would that I had fallen lifeless.

a. As thus used in the pret. and plup., regularly with inverted order, this subjunctive is practically identical with the unreal subjunctive in conditional clauses. In each of the above examples a conclusion can be supplied in thought.

358. The Potential Subjunctive expresses possibility or contingency. It is usually to be translated by may, might, could, would; e. g. er wär' ein Narr (G.), he would be a fool; ein heiliger Wille lebt, wie auch der menschliche wankt (S.), however the human will may waver; ich hätte gern nur immer fortgewacht (G.), I should have liked to keep right on sitting up.

1. Here belongs, as a special variety, the so-called 'diplomatic' subjunctive, used in modest or tentative expressions of opinion; e. g. ich möchte, I should think (a modest substitute for ich denke); nicht daß ich wüßte or daß ich nicht wüßte, not that I am aware of; es wäre wohl an der Zeit, it might perhaps be in order; daß dürfte gefährlich sein, that might be dangerous.

2. Another variety is the 'dubitative' subjunctive, used in questions and exclamations. It usually expresses a real certainty or assurance under the form of a pretended doubt or hesitation, or else it denotes a pretended surprise that what really is (or was) so, should be (or should have been) so; e. g. wer wüßte das nicht? who wouldn't know that? was hätten wir zu fürchten? what should we have to fear? da ließe sich ein Pakt mit euch schließen (G.)? so a compact might be made with you? das wär' antik (G.)! can that be antique? you call that antique? das wär' sie denn (G.)! can that be she? so that is she, is it? er hätte das gesagt? ich glaube es nicht (L.), can he have said that? I do not believe it; gastfreundlich hätte England sie empfangen (S.)? you contend that England received her hospitably?

3. This subjunctive is regularly used in hypothetical relative sentences; e. g. was wär' ein Gott, der nur von außen stieße (G.)? what would a God be who should only interfere from without? wer sie nicht kenne, wäre kein Meister (G.), any one who did not (i. e. should not) know them would be no master. Often such a clause is best rendered in English by a participle; e. g. wie ein Strahl der Sonne, der zu heiß das Haupt mir träfe (G.), like a sunbeam falling too hot upon my head.

4. Observe that the potential subjunctive may stand in a dependent clause without being in the technical sense a 'dependent' subjunctive; e. g. das sag' ich euch, damit ihr's wisset (S.), I tell you that that you may know it.

359. The Unreal Subjunctive supposes what is (or was) not so, and states what would be (or would have been) so under the supposition; e. g. wenn ich ein Vöglein wär', und auch zwei Flügelin hätt', flög' ich zu dir, if I were a little bird and had two little wings, I would fly to thee (folk-song); wäre Herder methodischer gewesen, so hätte ich . . . die köstlichste Anleitung gefunden (G.), if Herder had been more methodical, I should have found most valuable guidance.

1. The unreal subjunctive occurs both in the condition (protasis) and in the conclusion (apodosis), when the supposition is contrary to fact. The pret. refers to present time, the plup. to past. The condition may be expressed by means of a conjunction, usually wenn, or by the inverted order. In the conclusion the subjunctive mode may be replaced by the conditional.

a. Closely akin to the unreal subjunctive is the potential subjunctive, used in the pret. to denote a future possibility; e. g. wenn man uns überraschte (S.), if some one should surprise us; und träte sie den Augenblick herein, wie würdest du für deinen Frevel büßen (G.), were she to come in this moment, how you would atone, etc. In such cases there is always a present unreality, but it is of no importance, the thought turning altogether upon the future contingency. The two varieties may be closely associated; e. g. wäre nur ein Zaubermantel mein, und trüg' er mich in fremde Länder (G.), if I only had (unreal) a magic mantle, and it would (potential) carry me, etc.

b. If the conclusion is omitted, the condition may be undistinguishable from an optative subjunctive; e. g. hätte ich das nur gewußt! if I had only known that! On the other hand the potential subjunctive may often be construed as the conclusion of an implied condition; e. g. er wär' ein Narr, he would be a fool (sc. if he were to marry her, Faust, I. 3571).

2. In poetry the pret. indic. may take the place of the unreal plup. subj. either in the condition or in the conclusion; e. g. mit diesem zweiten Pfeil durchschloß ich euch, wenn ich mein liebes Kind getroffen hätte (S.), with this second arrow I should have shot you thru if I had hit my dear child; und tratsst du, Herr, nicht zwischen uns herein, so stünde jetzt auch ich, etc. (G.), if thou hadst not come between us, I should now be standing, etc.

a. On the other hand an unreal subjunctive in the condition may be followed by an indic. in the conclusion, to denote strong assurance; e. g. und wohnt' er droben auf dem Eispalast, . . . ich mache mir Bahn zu ihm (S.), and if he dwelt up there in the ice-palace, I will (instead of I would) make my way to him.

3. A special case of unreal subjunctive is the common construction after als ob, als wenn, as if, in which the conclusion is omitted; e. g. ich halte Egmont hier, als ob ich ihm noch was zu sagen hätte (G.), I will keep E. here as (I would do) if I had something to say to him; er war so stolz darauf, als ob die Erfindung sein gewesen wäre (G.), as if the invention had been his.

a. Very frequently ob or wenn is omitted, in which case the clause takes the inverted instead of the dependent order; e. g. da ward's so eng ihr in der Welt, als hätte sie Lieb' im Leibe (G.), as if it had love in its body.

b. The tenses follow the rule given above, but the pres. may stand for the pret. unless the form would be identical with the corresponding form of the indic.; i. e. one may say als sei er, or als ob er sei, instead of als ob er wäre, and als habe er, or als ob er habe, for als ob er hätte, but not als ob sie haben, nor als haben sie, for als ob sie hätten.

360. The Dependent Subjunctive occurs in the object-clause after verbs of telling, thinking, feeling, asking and the like; e. g. sie sagen, er les' auch in den Sternen die künftigen Dinge (S.), they say that he also reads the future in the stars; ihr fühlet nicht, wie schlecht ein solches Handwerk sei (G.), you do not feel how vile such a trade is; er fragte, wen er vor sich sähe (G.), he asked whom he saw before him; es hieß, er denke ihn ganz darum zu kürzen (S.), it was said that he was thinking to deprive him of it altogether.

a. The effect of this subjunctive is to express uncertainty, or at any rate to put the content of the object-clause on another's authority. It is thus very commonly used in reporting statements, opinions, rumors, etc. without quoting literally (indirect discourse). Daß is often omitted, in which case the clause has normal order. Such a sentence as es ist falsch, becomes, then, when reported in the direct form: „Es ist falsch“, sagt er, or er sagt: „Es ist falsch“; in the indirect form: er sagt, daß es falsch sei, or er sagt, es sei falsch.

1. Not every object-clause with daß requires the subjunctive. If the content of the clause is a fact, or appears as such to the speaker, the indicative is used. The subjunctive indicates that what is stated is matter of report, opinion, assertion, fear, hope, or the like, and relieves the speaker of responsibility for it; e. g. ich schwöre euch zu, mir ist's als wie ein Traum (G.), I swear to you, it is like a dream to me. Here the speaker avers what is in his own mind and is to him a fact, hence the indicative; but if the person addressed were to report the saying, he would give it the form: er schwört (or schwor) mir zu, es sei ihm wie ein Traum.

a. On the other hand, by an elliptical construction, the dependent subj. may stand in clauses that are not formally object-clauses, to imply that what is stated is matter of rumor, pretence, hope, fear, or the like; e. g. er ist zurückgetreten, weil er krank sei, he has retired because (as he alleges, or as people say) he is sick; but weil er krank ist, because he is (actually) sick. The indic. accepts the report as true, the subj. waives responsibility for it. Observe, then, the force of the modes in the following sentence from Andresen: Mein Bruder widerriet, weil die Sache gefährlich sei, und weil er den Direktor nicht kennt, my brother objected because (in his opinion) the thing was dangerous, and because (as a matter of fact) he does not know the director.

2. Naturally, therefore, those verbs that imply certainty, as verbs of knowing, seeing, proving, showing, comprehending, and phrases such as 'it is clear,' 'the fact is,' are apt to be followed by the indicative; thus one would not say ich weiß, daß es falsch sei (but ist), nor es ist klar, daß er recht habe (but hat), since the uncertainty of the subjunctive would contradict the certainty of the governing clause. Still, good writers sometimes use the subjunctive even after this class of verbs; e. g. du siehst, wie ungeschickt ich sei (G.), you see how unfit I am; wir wissen, daß sehr oft deutsches u oder o dem gr. oder lat. e zur Seite stehe (Gr.), we know that German u or o often corresponds to Greek or Latin e.

3. On the other hand, verbs of thinking and communicating (feeling, believing, hoping, fearing, inferring, asserting, writing, teaching, confessing, denying, etc.) are apt to be followed by the subjunctive, tho the indicative is always possible if the object-clause is felt as a fact. This last will be the case especially when the verb is in the first person; e. g. ich fühle (behaupte), daß ich schuldlos bin, I feel (assert) that I am blameless; but, usually, er fühlt (behauptet), daß er schuldlos sei. After a past tense, however, these verbs prefer the subjunctive without regard to person.

4. When the object-clause is an indirect question the subjunctive is no longer usual after a verb in the present tense; thus, for tell me who he is and how he lives, one does not say: sagen Sie mir, wer er sei und wie er lebe, but wer er ist und wie er lebt. In the classics, however, the subjunctive is quite common; e. g. und merkt euch, wie der Teufel spaße (G.), observe how the devil jokes. Cf. also the second example under § 360. The easy admissibility of either mode is shown by Goethe's line: Nicht was der Rnecht sei, fragt der Herr, nur wie er dient (Faust, l. 8794). After a past tense the subjunctive was and still is the rule.

5. When a dependent subj. has a verb depending on it (as often happens in sustained indirect discourse), such verb also stands in the subj. unless it states a fact which is not a part of the narration, but rests on the narrator's own authority ; e. g. es klagte, daß dieser Tag, welcher mein Glück mache, — wenn er es anders mache — sein Unglück auf immer entscheide (L.), it complained that this day which made my happiness, — if it really did make it, — decided his unhappiness forever; fordert er, daß ihm Du Chatel ausgeliefert werde, den er den Mörder seines Vaters nennt (S.), he demands that Du Chatel, whom he calls the murderer of his father, be given up to him.

361. Sequence of Tense in Object-Clauses. The tense of a dependent subjunctive is influenced, (1) by its own natural tense, i. e. the tense it had, or would have, in the direct form; (2) by the tense of the principal verb; (3) by the necessity of resorting, in certain cases, to a change of tense in order to render the subjunctive distinguishable from the indicative. We have, then, the following principles:

1. After a present or future the natural tense remains unchanged (but see 2, a, below), save that a preterit indicative (as well as a perfect) usually becomes a perfect subjunctive; e. g. he says that he is right becomes er sagt, daß er recht habe; he says that he was right, er sagt, daß er recht gehabt habe (or daß er recht hatte, but not daß er recht hätte, which might mean would be right); er meint, es sei nicht mehr zu ertragen (S.), thinks it is no longer to be borne; sie meint, du seiest entflohen (G.), she thinks you ran away (or, have run away; one can not tell which the direct form would be). Cf. Schiller's Tell, ll. 92–95.

2. After a past tense the tense of the dependent verb is more variable. A natural present may remain present, or may become preterit; e. g. he said he was sick (i. e. he said: I am sick), becomes er sagte, er sei krank, or er sagte, er wäre krank (as in English). A natural preterit indicative becomes perfect subjunctive: he said he came too late (he said: I came too late) becomes er sagte, er sei zu spät gekommen (käme would mean would come, or would correspond to a direct I come, and wäre gekommen would mean would have come). A natural future remains, or else becomes present conditional; e. g. he said he would be there (he said: I shall be there) becomes er sagte, er werde (or würde) da sein.

a. As to the choice between er sagte, er sei krank, and er sagte, er wäre krank (the direct form being ich bin krank) both literary usage and grammatical authority now favor the former. In old German, however, the latter was the rule. Speaking broadly, South Germans prefer sei, North Germans wäre. The latter use the pret. freely even after a pres. tense, saying er sagt, er wäre krank, for he says that he is sick. Both usages are abundantly illustrated in good literature; e. g. sie glaubten, es wäre Hahnengeſchrei (Heine), they thought it was the crowing of the cock; die Abergläubigen meinen, du hättest einen Kobold (Tieck), the superstitious think you have a kobold; (usual sequence) seine reine Seele fühlte, daß sie die Hälfte seiner selbst sei (G.), that she was half of himself.

b. But while there is in the main a free choice between the pret. and pres. subj., the former is to be employed in those forms in which the subj., if pres., would not be distinguishable from the indic. ; thus, while one may say for he said he had the headache, er sagte, er habe Kopfschmerz, or er sagte, er hätte Kopfschmerz, one may not say ich sagte, ich habe (but only ich hätte), nor sie sagten, sie haben (but only sie hätten).

THE CONDITIONAL AND IMPERATIVE

362. The Conditional Mode is simply a potential, or unreal, subjunctive used in the conclusion of conditional sentences. The present conditional refers to present time and corresponds to the preterit subjunctive, while the perfect conditional refers to past time and corresponds to the pluperfect subjunctive; e. g. und träte sie den Augenblick herein, wie würdest du für deinen Frevel büßen, were she to come in, how you would atone (G.); hätte er die geheimen Triebfedern gekannt, so würde er sich die Mühe gar nicht gegeben haben (G.), had he known the secret springs, he would not have taken the trouble at all.

1. For the most part there is a free choice between the subjunctive and the conditional, but the former is avoided when it would be undistinguishable from the indicative, as is regularly the case with weak verbs; i. e. there is a free choice between ich wäre and ich würde sein, or between ich ginge and ich würde gehen, but not between ich möchte and ich würde machen.

a. In indirect discourse after a past tense the conditional is preferable if futurity is to be denoted; e. g. ich erfuhr, daß ich Sie hier treffen würde (L.), I learned that I should find you here. Here träfe would not do.

2. The use of the conditional in the condition, while not uncommon in good writers, is not to be approved; for if it would only rain soon, say wenn es doch bald regnete, rather than wenn es doch bald regnen würde. Still, cf. Goethe's würdest du es ahnen können, du wärest Teufel g'nug, if you could understand it, you would be devil enough, etc. In passive conditions würde . . . werden is avoided; e. g. würden wir von ihr betroffen (G.), if we should be caught by her.

363. The Imperative denotes a command. Properly it has only a second person, the first and third being supplied from the subjunctive (§ 356).

a. Strictly the inv. has but one tense, though a kind of perf. sometimes occurs in locutions like er habe es umsonst getan, let him have done it in vain, i. e. let it be in vain that he has done it.

1. The subjects du and ihr are omitted unless emphatic, but other subjects are expressed; e. g. sei mein Freund! be my friend! sei du mit mir! be thou with me! schweige! be silent! but er schweige! man schweige! schweigen wir! always with pronoun.

2. The inv. often has concessive or conditional force. See § 356, 1 and 1, a.

3. Substitutes for the imperative are as follows:

a. The inf., in placards and brusque commands; e. g. rechts fahren! keep to the right! Maul halten! hold your tongue!

b. The perf. pple.; e. g. hinaufgeschaut (G.)! look up! Cf. § 369, 4.

c. The indic., pres. or fut., in mild commands; e. g. Karl, du kommst mit mir; du aber, Fritz, wirst zu Hause bleiben, Karl, you come with me; but you, Fritz, will stay at home.

d. lassen with infinitive in place of the regular passive inv.; e. g. laß dich überreden! be persuaded! Cf. § 344, 1.

THE INFINITIVE

364. Nature and Development of the Infinitive.

1. In its origin the inf. is a verbal noun having the force of the Eng. verbal in ing (which must not be confounded with the pres. pple. in ing). In old German it was inflected and the dat. with zu (ze tragene, for bearing, ze ritene, for riding), being of frequent occurrence, became a stereotyped phrase (zu tragen, to bear, zu reiten, to ride). This phrase developed uses of its own and encroached upon the simple inf., while the latter usurped, in a few cases, the functions of a pres. pple.

2. We have, then, in modern German: (1) the substantive inf., translatable usually by the verbal in ing; (2) the old inf. without zu, corresponding in the main to the Eng. inf. without to, but in part to the pple. in ing; (3) the inf. with zu, corresponding in the main to the Eng. inf. with to.

365. The substantive Infinitive generally has the article, forms no plural, and is modified by adjectives, not by adverbs; e. g. das Rauchen ist verboten, smoking is forbidden; du liebst nicht das laute Lieben (Schwab), thou lovest not loud loving; da hört er ein Singen wie Flöten so süß (S.), there he hears a singing, etc.; vergeht mir Hören, Sehn und Denken (G.), hearing, sight and thought forsake me.

1. Such a verbal with ein sometimes denotes vehemence, frequent repetition or indefinite continuance. See § 230, 2, a.

2. The substantive inf. is a noun, not a verb, and does not admit a separate object in the acc., as it may in Eng. The object becomes either an objective gen., a dat. with von, or else it is written in one word with the inf.; e. g. he is not the man for (the) making (of) a speech = er ist nicht der Mann zum Halten einer Rede (not eine Rede), or zum Redehalten; writing letters is tedious = das Schreiben von Briefen, or das Brief(e)schreiben, ist langweilig.

a. Adverbial modifiers must be written with the inf. in one word; hence such words as das Umsichgreifen, the spreading; das Nebeneinandergehenktwerden, the simultaneous execution; das Nichtsda gewesen sein, the non-existence hitherto.

366. The Infinitive without zu occurs in various constructions as follows:

1. After the modal auxiliaries and lassen; also after tun, when used as auxiliary or with nichts als, nothing but; e. g. es kann sein, it may be; wir mögen das nicht wieder hören (G.), we do not want to hear that again; laß alles Sinnen sein (G.), let all speculation alone; was tu' ich weiter fragen? why do I ask further? er hat nichts als schimpfen getan, he did nothing but call names.

a. The inf. with lassen has active force only when its subject is at the same time the object of lassen, as in laß mich dir etwas sagen, let me tell you something. Thru the omission of the object-subject in such locutions as the last, the inf. acquired passive force; i. e. laß ein Licht holen, let (some one) bring a candle, came to be felt as = let a candle be brought, have a candle brought. Laß dir sagen, is thus the same thing as laß dir gesagt sein (§ 344, 1), which also occurs. This use of the inf. then gave rise to the peculiar impersonal passive seen, e. g. in es läßt sich hoffen, it lets itself be hoped, i. e. there is room for hope, it may be hoped.

b. This use of the active inf. with passive meaning gives rise sometimes to ambiguity; e. g. er ließ den Kutscher fahren, may mean he let the coachman go, or he had him drive, or he had him driven. In such cases the connection must determine the sense.

c. When lassen is followed by an acc. and that in turn by an intransitive verb with predicate noun, such noun stands regularly in the acc.; e. g. laß mich deinen Freund sein (G.), let me be your friend. So one would say heiß ihn einen braven Knaben sein, bid him be a good boy. But the nom. occurs now and then in good writers; e. g. laß den Grafen dieser Gesandte sein (L.), let the Count be this envoy.

2. As true infinitive after fühlen, heißen, helfen, hören, lehren, lernen, machen, nennen, sehen; e. g. ich fühl' ein Herz in meinem Busen schlagen (W.), feel a heart beat; heiß mich nicht reden, heiß mich schweigen (G.), do not bid me speak, bid me be silent; helft den gemeinen Feind mir niederhalten (S.), help me keep down, etc.; ich hab' ihn rufen hören (G.), I heard him call; wenn ich dich ihn könnte verachten lehren (G.), could I teach you to despise him; ich habe jetzt dich kennen lernen (G.), have learned to know you; der Kaus macht mich lachen (G.), makes me laugh; daß nenne ich doch beweisen (W.), I call that proving; er sah ihn fallen (G.), he saw it fall.

a. Several of the above verbs, notably heißen, helfen, lehren, lernen, machen, may take the inf. with zu; e. g. o, lehre mich das Mögliche zu tun (G.), teach me to do what is possible.

b. After fühlen, hören, sehen, the active inf. may have passive force, just as after lassen and with a similar possibility of ambiguity; e. g. so hört und sieht man dich beneiden, thus one hears and sees you envied. Ich sah ihn schlagen, might mean I saw him strike or I saw him struck.

3. In place of a present participle, to denote a status, after bleiben, finden, haben, liegen, stehen; e. g. alles blieb stehen, everything (or everybody) remained standing; die Uhr ist stehen geblieben, the clock has stopped; heraustretend fand ich den Himmel von Sternen blinken (G.), I found the sky glittering with stars; ich habe Geld im Kasten liegen (Gr.), I have money lying in the box; Genua liegt schlafen (S.), Genoa lies sleeping; was steht ihr horchend (S.)? why stand you listening?

a. With all of these verbs, however, except perhaps bleiben, the pres. pple. is the more common construction. Between ich finde ihn schlafen and ich finde ihn schlafend there is no difference unless it be that the pple. better expresses duration. Cf. Schiller's Jungfrau, l. 447.

4. After gehen, fahren, reiten, and some other verbs of motion, but only in set phrases; as spazieren gehen (reiten, fahren), go walking (riding, driving); sich schlafen legen, lie down to sleep; jagen gehen, go hunting.

5. As subject of verbs, and as predicate after sein and heißen (particularly after das heißt = das nennt man mit Recht, that is properly called); e. g. blasen ist nicht flöten (G.), blowing is not playing the flute; dieses heißt die Zeit verlieren (U.), this is losing time; das hieße die ganze Sache verderben (G.), that would be to ruin the whole cause.

a. The inf. in the first example is distinguishable from the true substantive inf. by the fact that a modifier would have to be an adverb, not an adjective.

6. As brusque impv.; e. g. Maul halten! hold your tongue!

7. In the idiom er hat gut reden, it is all well enough for him to talk.

367. The Infinitive with zu — often called the 'prepositional infinitive' — is used:

1. To denote purpose ; e. g. man kommt zu schaun (G.), they come to gaze ; ich eile fort ihr ewiges Licht zu trinken (G.), I hasten away to drink her eternal light ; sie nahmen mir's, um mich zu fränken (G.), they took it from me in order to pain me ; man gab mir zu verstehen, they gave me to understand ; ich habe nichts zu essen, I have nothing to eat.

a. The original force of this inf. is seen if we translate it by for with a verbal: they come for seeing ; I have nothing for eating. When the inf. denotes the purpose for which the subject acts, it is now usually preceded by um, as in the third example above, but it is very common without um in classical poetry.

b. To denote a purpose which is not the purpose of the subject, modern German prefers in general a substantive inf. with zum, or else an equivalent verbal noun ; e. g. he gave me the letter to copy, er gab mir den Brief zum Abschreiben (not abzuschreiben) ; he sent me the book to look at, er schickte mir das Buch zur Ansicht (not anzusehen). Sometimes the purpose can be made the purpose of the subject by the use of lassen ; e. g. he brought me the watch to repair, er brachte mir die Uhr um sie reparieren zu lassen (to have it repaired). It should be observed, however, that exceptions to this rule are common in talk and even in good writers ; e. g. er wachte mich, um den Sonnenaufgang anzusehen (Heine), he woke me to see the sunrise, i. e. that I might see it.

c. As in Eng., the prepositional inf. may denote destiny or result under the form of purpose ; e. g. sie schieden, um sich nie wiederzusehen, they parted never to see each other again.

2. As subject of verbs ; e. g. euch zu gefallen war mein höchster Wunsch (G.), to please you was my highest wish.

3. As object or complement of verbs ; e. g. hör' auf mit deinem Gram zu spielen (G.), cease to play with your grief ; da beschlossen sie zu bleiben (S.), there they decided to remain ; mit der Hand winkt' er mir zu gehen, with his hand he signed to me to go ; was willst du dich das Stroh zu dreschen plagen (G.) ? why will you trouble yourself to thresh straw ? ich nehme mich in acht, mit solchen Hegen öffentlich zu gehen (G.), I am careful not to appear in public with such witches.

a. The verbs and verbal phrases that are thus followed by the inf. with zu are literally too numerous to mention, but the use of the construction corresponds in the main pretty closely to that of the Eng. inf. with to. The chief difference is that Ger. does not tolerate the prepositional inf. with subject-accusative; for I know him to be a liar, I judge him to be about 30 years old, Ger. says: ich weiß, daß er ein Lügner ist, ich glaube, daß er, etc. Still, classic writers, notably Lessing, sometimes use the construction in imitation of the Latin; e. g. bis er den rechten Zeitpunkt gekommen zu sein glaubte (L.), until he believed the right time to have come. Cf. further § 366, 2, a.

4. As predicate with passive meaning after sein, bleiben, scheinen, stehen; e. g. das ist zu erwarten, that is to be expected; das steht nicht zu ändern, that remains unchangeable. Cf. § 370, a.

5. As complement of nouns and adjectives; e. g. es ist wohl Zeit zu scheiden (G.), it is time to go, I think; dies ist die Art mit Hexen umzugehen (G.), that is the way to deal with witches; das wäre schwer zu beweisen, that would be hard to prove; ihr wäret wert, gleich in die Eh' zu treten (G.), you would be fit to enter the married state at once.

a. The construction is very common after adjectives preceded by zu; e. g. ich bin zu alt um nur zu spielen (G.), too old merely to play. Observe, however, that the familiar Eng. construction seen in the story is too good for me to believe, the book is too deep for him to have written (it), where an inf. with subject different from that of the principal verb is mediated by means of for, can not be imitated in Ger.; instead of it we have als daß followed by the potential subj.: die Geschichte ist zu gut, als daß ich daran glauben könnte; das Buch ist zu tief, als daß er es hätte schreiben können.

b. An inf. which complements the meaning of a noun or an adjective does not need um, tho the useless particle is very often inserted. One meets constantly with sentences of the type: er war geschickt genug, um den Gedanken zu erfassen, aber es fehlte ihm an Mut, um denselben auszuführen, he was clever enough to seize the idea, but he lacked courage to carry it out. But um is superfluous in both cases. Notice, then, the difference between ich gab mir die Mühe ihn zu besuchen, I took the trouble to visit him, and ich gab mir viel Mühe, um ihn zu besuchen, I took much trouble in order to visit him.

6. After the prepositions ohne and (an)statt, as well as um; e. g. ich muß euren Kummer noch vergrößern, statt ihn zu heilen (S.), I must increase your grief instead of healing it; sie gehen an dem Hut vorbei, ohne darauf zu achten (S.), they pass by the hat without noticing it.

a. Other prepositions do not govern the inf. with zu directly, but combine with an anticipating da; e. g. keiner dachte daran, den Hut zu grüßen (S.), no one thought of greeting the hat; er ist nicht dazu gemacht, anstrengend zu arbeiten (Gr.), he is not made for working hard.

7. Absolutely in exclamations; e. g. was! am Rand des Grabs zu liegen (G.)! what! to lie with his last breath! und nun — um's Haar sich auszuraufen (G.)! and now — it's enough to make one tear out one's hair!

THE PARTICIPLE

368. The Present Participle is used:

1. As adjective, adverb, and substantive; e. g. schäumende Weine (G.), foaming wines; man möchte rasend werden (G.), one could go mad; in auffallend kurzer Zeit, in a surprisingly short time; die Liebenden, the lovers; die Entsagenden (G.), the votaries of renunciation.

a. In the predicate after sein the pres. pple. has adjectival force and denotes a state or a quality. It does not form a tense as it may in Eng. Cf. § 348, 1.

b. A participial adjective has active force and the noun it qualifies should be the subject of the action, as in ein liebendes Herz, a heart that loves. But there are some phrases in use which are exceptions; e. g. der betreffende Punkt, the point concerned; eine vorhabende Reise, an intended journey; fahrende Habe, movables; die reitende Post, the mounted mail. Others are also current which are more or less dubious; for essende Waren, eatables, say rather Eswaren; for blasende Instrumente (G.), wind-instruments, say rather Blasinstrumente; for fallende Sucht, falling-sickness, Fallsucht, etc.

2. As appositional predicate, to denote a concomitant act or state; e. g. wir Schwestern saßen, die Wolle spinnend (S.), we sisters used to sit spinning the wool; und ihr Kuß war Götterbrot, glühend wie der Wein (G.), and her kiss was ambrosia, glowing like wine.

a. Observe that this pple. denotes a concomitant act or state, not one which is past or to come. Still, exceptions occur, just as in Eng.; e. g. dies sagend ritt er trübselig von dannen (S.), saying (i. e. having said) this he rode away dejectedly; in Zug ans Land steigend kehrten wir im Döfen ein (G.), disembarking in Zug we put up at the 'Ox.' In the permissible phrase das nächste erscheinende Buch, the book soon to appear, the idea of futurity is contained in the adverb. Cf. § 370, a.

b. The pple. may denote means, but not cause; e. g. kannst du mich schmeicheln je belügen (G.), if you can ever deceive me by flattering; und als wir sie frisch rudern bald erreicht (S.), and when we had presently reached it by rowing briskly; versinke stampfend (G.), sink out of sight by stamping. But for the Eng. causal pple., seen e. g. in the sentence having nothing else to do, I went to the theater, Ger. uses a clause with a causal conjunction: da ich sonst nichts zu tun hatte, ging ich ins Theater.

c. The appositional pple. usually refers to the subject, but may refer to an oblique case, if there is no chance of ambiguity; e. g. und find' ihn hier . . . spitzfind'ge Rätsel lösend (S.), and find him here guessing cunning riddles; noch zuckend, mit des Panthers Zähnen zerreißen sie des Feindes Herz (S.), still quivering (i. e. the heart) they rend with the teeth of the panther the heart of their foe. Such a construction as this last, however, is admissible only in poetry; in prose one would say das noch zuckende Herz. Still less admissible in prose is the use of a pple. referring to some word not contained in the sentence at all; e. g. erst knieend laß die treue Widmung dir gefallen, hohe Frau (G.), first kneeling let my loyal homage please thee, i. e. accept the homage I offer on my bended knees.

369. The Perfect Participle is used most frequently in the conjugation of the perfect tenses and the passive voice. Besides this it occurs:

1. As adjective, adverb, and substantive; e. g. geehrter Herr, honored sir; die Bedrückten, the oppressed; ein verflucht schlauer Kerl, a cursedly sly fellow.

a. As adjective the perf. pple. of transitive verbs has passive force, while that of certain intransitives conjugated with sein denotes the state that has resulted from the action; e. g. der gefällte Baum, the felled tree; der gefallene Baum, the fallen tree, = der Baum, der gefallen ist; ein mißlungener Versuch, an attempt that has failed, = ein Versuch, der mißlungen ist.

b. In general, then, one can not use adjectively the perf. pple. of an intransitive conjugated with haben, because such verbs form no passive. That is, one can not say das geschlafene Kind, the slept child, for das Kind, das geschlafen hat, tho one may say das eingeschlafene Kind for das Kind, das eingeschlafen ist. There are, however, a few participial adjectives with active force formed from intransitives conjugated with haben. Such are erfahren, experienced; gereist, traveled (ein Gereister, a traveled man, just as in Eng.); geschworen, sworn (die Geschworenen, the jurors); studiert, studied (ein Studierter, an educated man); trunken, drunk; verbient, meritorious; verschwiegen, silent.

c. There is in Ger. no perf. active pple., tho one meets with awkward attempts to form one by means of habend; e. g. die rühmlichst gekämpft habende Brigade, the brigade that had fought most creditably. Compounds such as ungefrühstückt (Bismarck), for without having breakfasted and ungebetet (Gerok), without having said grace, are quite on a par with 'unbreakfasted' and 'unprayed' in Eng. Still less admissible, grammatically, is the use of a perf. pple. with an object, tho it is not so very uncommon, especially when the object is sich; e. g. das den Grafen befallene Unglück (G.), the misfortune that had befallen the Count; an diesem nach und nach sich verbreiteten Geheimnis (G.), this mystery that had spread abroad gradually.

2. As appositional predicate, in the same way and under the same restrictions as the present participle (§ 368, 2, a, b); e. g. beschämt nur stehe ich vor ihm da (G.), I just stand there before him ashamed; entfernt von dir . . . ergötzt mich noch dein liebevolles Bild (G.), remote from thee, thy dear image still delights me.

3. In absolute construction, mostly with an accusative absolute; e. g. sie singt hinaus in die finstere Nacht, das Auge vom Weinen getrübet (S.), she sings out into the dark night, her eyes dimmed with tears.

4. With imperative force, thru the omission of auxiliary and subject; e. g. frisch gewagt! venture boldly; hinaufgeschaut (G.)! look up!

5. With kommen and gehen as the equivalent of a pres. pple.; e. g. da kommt mein Weib gelaufen (S.), thereupon my wife comes running. But in verloren gehen, to be lost (es ist verloren gegangen, it is lost), the participle has passive force.

6. As predicate after heißen; e. g. das heiße ich endlich fortgeschritten (G.), I call that getting along fast; das heiße die Willfür auf die Spitze getrieben (Andresen), that is carrying arbitrary caprice too far. But in this last case treiben would seem to be better on account of the object Willfür.

370. The Gerundive. This is in form the present participle preceded by zu and, when used attributively, declined like any adjective. Its force is that of a future passive participle, denoting feasibility, obligation, propriety; e. g. eine nie zu vergessende Freude, a never-to-be-forgotten joy; ein schwer zu erfüllender Wunsch, a wish difficult of fulfillment.

a. For the gerundive in the predicate see § 367, 4. Since the gerundive has passive force it should not be formed from intransitive verbs. Such locutions as das bald zu erscheinende Buch, for the book soon to appear, are ungrammatical, tho several are in use.

SYNTAX OF THE ADVERB

371. Classification of Adverbs. With respect to their function adverbs may be divided into two classes: simple adverbs and adverbial conjunctions.

a. The simple adverbs denote relations of time, place, degree and manner. They may modify a verb, as in gut schreiben, write well; an adjective, as in sehr gut, very good; an adverb, as in sehr gerne, very gladly; a prepositional phrase, as mitten im Feuer, right in the fire; a noun, as in der Mann hier, the man here; or they may stand in the predicate, as in es ist vorbei, it is past.

b. The adverbial conjunctions modify adverbially the verb of the sentence in which they stand, but serve at the same time to indicate the logical connection of the clause with what precedes or follows; e. g. zwar ist es leicht, doch ist das Leichte schwer (G.), to be sure it is easy, yet the easy is hard. Since the conjunctive aspect of these words is more important than the adverbial, they are treated further on under the head of conjunctions (§ 380).

1. With respect to their origin adverbs may be divided into three groups: (1) primitive words and compounds of such, as da, there; darüber, over there; (2) derivatives formed by means of a suffix, as theils, partly; blindlings, blindly; (3) adjectives in the stem-form, as gut, well.

372. Primitive Adverbs. These denote time, place and direction; e. g. jetzt, now; dann, then; hier, here; dort, yonder; dahin, thither; auf, up; unter, down. Many of them are in use as prepositions and as verbal prefixes (§ 341).

d. Words of this kind may be called demonstrative or positional adverbs. A few of them form adjectives in ig, as hieſig, from hier, bortig, jeſig, damalig, which are used prepositively; e. g. der damalige König, the then king (never der damals König); daſ hieſige Theater, the theater of this place. Cf. also § 296, 1.

1. Besides the demonstrative adverbs there are a few others that admit only of adverbial use, the corresponding adjective, if there be one, having either a different form or a different meaning. Such are balb, soon (adj. balbig); eben, just, lately (eben as adj. = smooth, even); faſt, almost (see below, § 373, 3); gar, quite; gern, gladly; ſaum, scarcely; ſchon, already, quite; ſehr, very; wohl, well, perhaps. Œchon has numerous idiomatic uses as a particle of assurance; e. g. ſchon gut, all right; ſchon daſ erſte Wort, the very first word; daſ ſieht ſchon beſſer auſ, that looks decidedly better; er wird ſchon kommen, be assured he will come. Wohl, while cognate with well, does not often modify verbs in that sense: he writes well = er ſchreibt gut. When used in the sense of well, it is accented, but its most common use is that of an unaccented particle of doubt or uncertainty; e. g. (with stress) iſch weiß ſehr wohl, I know very well; eſ iſt wo'hlbeſa'nnt, it is well known; (without stress) Sie wiſſen wohl, you probably know; eſ iſt wohl beſannt, it is doubtless known.

373. Adverb and Adjective. Most adjectives can be used in the stem-form adverbially; e. g. ſo ſalt verlaſſt ihr die gemeine Sache (S.)? do you thus coldly desert the common cause? ſchon wieder ſo ſtolz beſcheiden (L.)? again already so proudly modest?

1. While Ger. has no adverbial suffix of universal applicability, the suffix iſch, cognate with ly, does form a number of adverbs which can not be used adjectively; e. g. freiſiſch, to be sure (frei = free); iſchwerliſch, hardly (iſchwer = heavy, difficult); ſicherliſch, surely; wa'hrl'ich, truly. Cf. also hoffentliſch, as may be hoped (from hoffen); wiſſentliſch, knowingly (from wiſſen), and others like them. But most derivatives in iſch admit also of adjectival use; e. g. gütliſch, kindly; neuliſch, recent(ly); gänziſch, entirely.

2. Many adverbs are simply case-forms of adjectives, the genitive being the most common; e. g. rechtſ, to the right; ſtraſſ, directly; zuſehendſ, visibly; höchſtenſ, at the most; zweitendſ, secondly. Where the ending appears to be endſ, the en is inflectional.

a. The suffix wärts, cognate with ward in toward, homeward, is the gen. of an old adj. wert of uncertain meaning. It is applied to prepositions and nouns; e. g. vornwärts, forward; heimwärts, homeward; mauerwärts, toward the wall.

b. The acc. neut. (undistinguishable from the stem) of a pronominal adjective is often used adverbially; e. g. etwas kalt, somewhat cold; viel größer, much greater. So, too, comparatives and superlatives; e. g. besser bekannt, better known; höchst seltsam, very strange.

3. In Old Ger. adverbs were regularly formed from adjectives by means of the ending o; thus sconi, beautiful, but scono, beautifully. As i caused umlaut while o did not, we have several pairs like schön—schön; fast—fest; fruh (rare)—früh; spat (rare)—spät. The old adverbial ending still persists, tho no longer required in fern(e), gern(e), lang(e). So often in poetry for the meter's sake; e. g. warde nur balbe (G.); und schnell und unbegreiflich schnelle (G.).

4. The modifier of a participial substantive is regularly an adjective, not an adverb, e. g. ein grünblüher Gelehrter, a thoro scholar: ein naher Verwandter, a near relative.

374. Adverbs from Nouns. These are always case-forms, the genitive being the most common; e. g. abends, in the evening, evenings; vormittags, forenoons; teils, in part; flugs, speedily. Often there is a limiting adjective; e. g. größtenteils, in great part; keineswegs, by no means; gewissermaßen, in some sense; dergestalt, in such way.

a. When s had thus come to be felt as an adverbial suffix and not as a case-ending, it was often applied in places where it could not be a case-ending; e. g. nachts, by night (from a fem. noun); seitens, on the part of (von Seiten); allerdings (aller Dinge, gen. plu.); jedenfalls, in any case (auf jeden Fall).

b. Adverbs in ings are, in their origin, adverbial genitives of nouns in ing; e. g. blindlings, in the manner of a blind person (Blindling), blindly. Hence what appears to be an adverbial suffix ings applied to adjectives; e. g. jählings, precipitately.

1. A very few adverbs are in their origin datives; e. g. morgen, to-morrow; mitten, in the midst, shortened from inmitten.

2. A somewhat larger number are accusatives (§ 266), e. g. heim, home; weg, away; weise, in stückweise, piecemeal; zwangsweise, by force; teilweise, partly. The conversion of an adverb in weise into an adjective, as in die teilweise Erneuerung, for the partial restoration, is hardly to be approved, tho it is becoming common.

375. Comparison of Adverbs. As a rule only those adverbs which admit of adjectival use can be compared; e. g. willst heller sehn als deine edeln Väter (S.)? dost claim to see more clearly than thy noble fathers? die geht am weitesten (S.), she goes farthest.

1. Of the list in § 372, 1, eben, fast, gar and schon are not compared. Bald sometimes has balder (bälber), am baldesten (bäldesten), but these forms are avoided in favor of cher, am ehesten. Gern has lieber, am liebsten. Sehr compares, like viel, by means of mehr, am meisten. Besser, am wohlsten, are rare, their place being taken by besser, am besten.

2. The phrase with am forms a relative, that with aufß an absolute superlative; e. g. sie sang am besten, she sang best, i. e. better than any one else; but sie sang aufß beste, she sang her best, i. e. as well as she could. Further examples: der Mensch ist aufß nächste mit den Tieren verwandt (G.), man is very closely related to the lower animals; von allen Geistern, die verneinen, ist mir der Schalk am wenigsten zur Last (G.), the rogue is least burdensome to me.

a. An absolute superlative is also made with the ending ens; e. g. höchstens, at the most; meistens, for the most part; wenigstens, at least; ich danke bestens, my best thanks.

3. A few uninflected superlatives are used adverbially; e. g. höchst, in the highest degree, very; äußerst, exceedingly; meist, for the most part; jüngst, lately; längst, long since.

4. Comparison that belongs properly to an adverb should not be transferred to a following adjective; thus, say schwerer wiegende Gründe, not schwerwiegendere Gründe, for more weighty reasons; die höchstgestellten, rather than die hochgestellten, for those in the highest position. There are, however, a few well-established exceptions; e. g. hochverehrtester, for höchstverehrter, most honored sir; die wohlunterrichtetsten, for die am besten unterrichteten, the best informed people.

SYNTAX OF THE PREPOSITION

376. Prepositions and their Cases. Prepositions govern cases, thus forming phrases which generally have adverbial force, but may modify a noun; e. g. die Sonne tönt nach alter Weise (G.), the sun makes music in the old way; ein Kampf ums Leben, a battle for life.

1. Historically prepositions are most closely akin to adverbs. Even the old monosyllabic prepositions are adverbs in their origin, and the most of them are still in use as adverbs (separable prefixes). Their case-governing power is of secondary origin, having been acquired thru association.

2. The accusative is used after biß, durch, für, gegen, ohne, sonder, um and wider. (For meanings, examples and comments, see § 377.)

3. The dative is used after aus, bei, mit, nach, von and zu; also after ab, außer, binnen, entgegen, gegenüber, gemäß, nächst, nebst, samt, seit and zuwider.

4. The dative or accusative is used after an, auf, hinter, in, neben, über, unter, vor and zwischen.

a. The acc. answers to the questions 'whither?' 'how long?' the dat. to the questions 'where?' 'when?' But there are numerous phrases that do not come under this rule. See the list in § 377.

5. The genitive is used after (an) statt, außerhalb, diesseits, halb, infolge, inmitten, innerhalb, jenseits, kraft, längs, laut, ob, oberhalb, trotz, um . . . willen, unangesehen, unbeschadet, ungeachtet, unterhalb, (ver) mittels, vermöge, während, wegen and zufolge.

a. Besides the above there is a large number of prepositional adverbs that govern the gen. Most of them are of recent coinage and the number is constantly increasing. They are not included under § 377. Such are:

abzüglich, with deduction of angesichts, in view of anlässlich, apropos of antwortlich, by way of reply to ausschließlich, exclusive of behuß, for the sake of betreffs, concerning bezüglich, concerning einschließlich, inclusive of gegenwärtig, in the presence of gelegentlich, apropos of hinsichtlich, concerning inhaltlich, according to the content mangels, in lack of [of namens, by the name of rücksichtlich, concerning seitens, on the part of unfern, not far from unweit, not far from vorbehaltenlich, with reservation of zugüglich, with addition of zwecks, for the purpose of

b. Even adverbs of direction, like nördlich, to the north, rechts to the right, abseits, to one side, are sometimes constructed with a gen., but von with dat. is better; say nördlich vom Dorfe, not nördlich des Dorfes, for north of the village. The same is to be said of unfern and unweit, tho the prepositional use of these has become very common. They are sometimes followed by the dat. The order of preference should be: (1) unweit von dem Dorfe, (2) unweit des Dorfes, (3) unweit dem Dorfe.

377. List of Prepositions.

The use of prepositions is highly idiomatic and constitutes a difficult subject for the learner. It is hoped that the following alphabetical list, with the accompanying comments and illustrations, may be found useful for reference.

Ab, dat. As prep. a rare word. It occurs in South Ger. dialect and in the language of business, in the sense of from (= von); e. g. ab der Post, from the post-office. So of the delivery of goods: ab Hamburg, ab Bahnhof (from depot), ab hier, etc.

An, dat. and acc., at, by, on.

a. With dat. it denotes: (1) Position at or near, in phrases of rest; e. g. am Tische sitzen, sit at table; am Abend, at eventide; es ist an der Zeit, it is in order; am 4. Juli, on the 4th of July. It may be = on, in the sense of near to, or clinging to a surface not level; e. g. das Schloss am Meer, the castle on the sea, but das Schiff auf dem Meere, the ship on the sea; an der Wand, on the wall (of a picture), but auf der Mauer (of a person standing 'on the wall'); am Bergesabhang, on the hill-slope, but auf dem Berge, on the hill. (2) Official position; e. g. an einer Universität lehren, to teach at a university, but auf einer Universität studieren. (3) Occupation, concern; e. g. an einer Aufgabe arbeiten, work at a task; an der Feier teilnehmen, take part in the celebration. (4) The sphere of plenty and want, increase and decrease: e. g. reich (arm) an Gütern, rich (poor) in goods; Mangel an Verstand, lack of sense; an Stärke abnehmen (zunehmen), decrease (increase) in strength. (5) The seat of defect, disease, peculiarity; e. g. krank am Herzen, sick at heart; beschädigt am Fuße, injured in the foot; es ist an sich merkwürdig, it is remarkable in itself. (6) The occasion of suffering and death; e. g. an einem Fieber krank sein, be sick with a fever; an der Schwindsucht sterben, die of consumption. (7) The seat of evidence; e. g. man sieht dir's an den Augen an, one can see by your eyes; jemand am Gesicht erkennen, recognize one by his face. (8) The means of guidance; e. g. ein Tier an Seile führen, lead an animal by a rope.

b. With acc. it denotes: (1) The goal of motion; e. g. ans Fenster gehen, go to the window; einen Ring an den Finger stecken, put a ring on one's finger; an das Ziel gelangen, arrive at the goal. (2) The goal of thought; e. g. denkst ihr an mich? do you think of me? glaubst du an Gott? dost thou believe in God? jemand an den Tod mahnen, remind one of death. (3) The object to or for, after certain verbs; e. g. an einen schreiben, write to one; Waren an einen verkaufen, sell wares to one. (4) With bis, the end of a period or space; e. g. bis an sein selig Ende, even to his blessed end; bis an die Ohren, up to the ears.

Anstatt, gen.; from Statt, place, stead, governed in the dat. or acc. by an, hence = instead; e. g. anstatt der goldenen Lieder, instead of golden songs. Sometimes with tmesis; e. g. an Sohnes statt, in a son's stead. In talk sometimes with dat.: anstatt mir, anstatt dem Vater. But an meiner Statt, anstatt des Vaters, are better.

Auf, dat. and acc., on, upon.

a. With dat. it denotes: (1) Position upon, in phrases of rest; e. g. auf dem Boden stehen, stand upon the ground; auf dem Rücken liegen, lie upon one's back; auf dem Flusse rudern, row upon the river. (2) Location at, in numerous phrases; e. g. auf der Burg sitzen, reside at the castle; auf dem Rathause (der Universität, dem Balle, der Messe) sein, be at the town-hall (the university, the ball, the fair). (3) Status, in a looser locative sense; e. g. auf dem Wege, on the way; auf der Neige, on the decline; etwas auf dem Spiele haben, have something at stake; auf seinem Kopfe bestehen, insist on one's opinion, be obstinate; das hat nichts auf sich, that amounts to nothing (i. e. it is a basis with nothing on it). See under an.

b. With acc. it denotes: (1) The goal of motion; e. g. aufs Dach klettern, climb upon the roof; sich aufs Bett legen, lie down upon the bed. The verb of motion need not be expressed; e. g. Wasser auf meine Mühle, water to my mill. (2) The goal of perception, attention, preparation, hope, desire, waiting, etc.; e. g. auf die Uhr sehen, look at the clock; auf gutes Wetter warten (hoffen), wait (hope) for good weather; sich auf den Krieg rüsten, prepare for the war. Hence often in wishes, healths, etc.; e. g. auf gute Gesundheit, here's to your health; auf gut Glück, for good luck; auf Wiedersehen, good-bye. Cf. further: Ich bin hier auf kurze Zeit, for a short time (looking ahead); auf jeden Fall, in any case, at all events. (3) Close sequence; e. g. auf Leid kommt Freud, after sorrow comes joy; ich tue es auf deinen Rat (Befehl, Wink), on your advice (command, suggestion); ich glaube dir aufs Wort, I believe you implicitly. (4) Manner; e. g. auf diese Weise, in this manner = in dieser Weise; auf Deutsch, in German; auf eigene Hand, on one's own 'hook'. (5) The direction of feeling, after various adjectives, as böse, eifersüchtig, neidisch, stolz; e. g. sie ist stolz auf ihre Schönheit, proud of her beauty. (6) The limit of extent, often with bis; e. g. drei Viertel auf zwei, a quarter to two; bis auf Speiß und Trank, even to food and drink.

Aus, dat., out of, from. It denotes: (1) An inner point of departure, with verbs of motion and sensation; e. g. aus der Reihe treten, step out of the ranks; einen aus dem Wasser (den Flammen, der Not) retten, rescue one from the water (the flames, trouble); aus dem Fenster sehen, look out of the window. (2) Simple aloofness, with verbs of rest, or without verb; e. g. laß mich aus der Sache, leave me out of the affair; aus den Augen, aus dem Sinn, out of sight, out of mind. (3) Origin, both local and logical; e. g. er stammt aus guter Familie (aus der Schweiz), he comes of good family (from Switzerland); das weiß ich aus Erfahrung, I know it from experience; es geschah aus Unkenntnis, from ignorance. (4) Motive; e. g. aus Liebe (Haß, Eifersucht) handeln, act from love (hate, jealousy). (5) Material; e. g. es ist aus Holz gemacht, made of wood.

Außer, dat., outside of, beside(s). Formerly with gen., which survives in außer Landes gehen, go abroad. It stands before nouns of condition, state, and before pronouns; e. g. außer Atem, out of breath; außer Dienst, out of service; außer acht lassen, leave out of account; er ist außer sich, he is beside himself. Before nouns of place it was once common, but außerhalb is now preferred; e. g. außer dem Lager (Lu.), outside of the camp; außer der Stadt (S.), outside the city. It is often used in the sense of except; e. g. außer mir ist kein Gott, there is no God but me.

Außerhalb, gen., outside of; e. g. außerhalb des Tores, outside the gate; außerhalb des Gesetzes, outside of the law. Sometimes with dat. in the classics and even now; e. g. außerhalb seinem Vaterlande (S.); außerhalb dem eingezäunten Hofe (Freitag), outside the enclosed court.

Bei, dat., by, at, near, with. It denotes: (1) Simple proximity; e. g. beim Fenster, by the window; die Schlacht bei Waterloo, the battle of, i. e. near, W. (2) Location at, with, among, at the house of, in the works of; e. g. bei einem Gelag, at a drinking-bout; bei der Arbeit, at work; bei uns zu Lande, in our country; beim Onkel wohnen, live at one's uncle's; bei einem Professor hören, hear lectures under a professor; die Stelle findet sich bei Schiller, is found in S. (3) Status, condition, concomitancy; e. g. er ist bei Jahren, well along in years; er ist noch bei vollen Kräften, still in full vigor; bei sich, in one's senses; ich bin bei Gelse, I am in funds; bei Nacht, at night; bei Zeiten, at times, betimes; bei gutem Wetter, the weather being good; bei dieser Sachlage, in view of this situation; bei offenem Fenster schlafen, sleep with open window; beim Gehen, in walking. (4) Ground of assertion, prohibition, etc.; e. g. beim Himmel! by heaven! das ist bei Strafe verboten, forbidden under penalty; bei Leibe nicht! not for your life! (5) Measure; e. g. bei einem Haare, by a hair's breadth; bei weitem, by a long way. (6) Point of seizure; e. g. jemand bei der Hand ergreifen, seize one by the hand.

Binnen, dat. and gen., within. Formerly of place or time, now only of time; e. g. binnen einiger Tage, within a few days; binnen drei Monaten, within three months. The dat. now prevails.

Bis, acc., to, till. It denotes a limit of motion, time, or space; e. g. ich gehe mit bis Leipzig, I will go along as far as L.; von Leipzig bis (nach) Dresden, from L. to D.; bis Freitag, till Friday. It is often followed by an adverb or another prep.; e. g. bis heute, until to-day; bis zum Ende, to the end; er steckt in Schulden bis über die Ohren, he is over his ears in debt. So in numerical approximations; acht bis zehn Jahre, eight or ten years.

Diesseits, gen., this side of; from Seite with adverbial s. Diesseits des Mondes, this side the moon. The dat. occurs in old writers.

Durch, acc., thru, by. It denotes: (1) Transition thru space or time; e. g. durch die Luft fliegen, fly thru the air; durch die Nacht wachen, watch thru the night. Figuratively: es fuhr mir durch den Kopf, it flashed thru my head. With verbs of perception: durch ein Fernrohr sehen, look thru a telescope. Often emphasized by an added hindurch; e. g. durch viele Jahre hindurch, thru many years. On the adverbial durch, in die ganze Nacht durch, the whole night thru, cf. § 266. (2) Means, including personal mediation, but not direct agency, for which see under von; e. g., etwas durch List erlangen, get something by cunning; er ließ mir durch einen Boten sagen, sent word by a messenger. (3) Ground, cause, occasion; e. g. ich bitte dich durch Gottes Gnaden, I pray you by God's grace; durch einen Zufall, by an accident; elend durch mich (G.), miserable thru me.

Entgegen, dat., against, toward. It is really an adverb (separable prefix), but when the verb of motion is omitted it may take on the character of a postpositive preposition; e. g. dem Schnee, dem Regen, dem Wind entgegen (G.), in face of snow and rain and wind; ihr steigt hinauf, dem Strom der Reuß entgegen (S.), facing the current.

Für, acc., for. It implies: (1) Interest, benefit; e. g. etwas für einen tun, do something for one; für Weib und Kinder beten, pray for one's wife and children. (2) Exchange, equivalence; e. g. für einen handeln, act for (i. e. in lieu of) one; es ist für Geld nicht zu haben, not to be had for money; ich halt' ihn für einen Schelm, take him for a scamp; fürliebnehmen, put up with things. (3) Sphere of application, limitation; e. g. Arznei für ein Fieber, medicine for a fever; für einen Narren spricht er gar nicht schlecht (G.), not badly for a fool; ich für mein Teil, I for my part; genug für heute, enough for to-day; ich ging im Walde so für mich hin (G.), all by myself. (4) Succession; e. g. Schritt für Schritt, step by step.

Für is of like origin with vor. The two are often confounded in early modern Ger. and even in the classics; e. g. für Furcht sterben (S.), die of fear; weinte für Freuden (G.), wept for joy. Für for vor may of course take the dat.; e. g. was hätte er dann noch für seinem Mädchen voraus (S.)?

Gegen (gen), acc., toward, against, facing. It denotes: (1) The direction of motion, effort or purpose; e. g. gegen den Strom schwimmen, swim against the current; was können wir gegen Albrechts Heere (S.)? what can we do against A.'s armies? sich gegen die Türe stemmen, brace one's self against the door. So with nouns; e. g. ein Mittel gegen die Cholera, a remedy against the cholera. With verbs of motion gegen is rare in the sense of toward, but may occur if the verb is such as to preclude the idea of hostility; thus gegen die Stadt marschieren, means to march against the city, but gegen die Stadt spazieren, gegen den Rhein wandern, are permissible, tho nach, or nach . . . zu, is preferred. (2) Direction of feeling, friendly or hostile; e. g. freundlich gegen das Volk, friendly toward the people; taub gegen die Bitte, deaf to the request; Ehrfurcht gegen das Alter, respect for age. (3) Offset, exchange, comparison; e. g. Waren gegen bar Geld verkaufen, sell wares for cash; Kriegsgefangene gegen einander austauschen, exchange prisoners; gegen ihn bin ich nichts, beside him I am nothing; ein Mehr von zwanzig gegen zwölf (S.), a majority of twenty to twelve. (4) Approximation; e. g. gegen Abend, toward evening; gegen drei Monate, about three months. (5) Position facing; e. g. ein Fenster gegen Süden, a window facing the south.

In early modern Ger. gegen usually took the dat. and this construction is met with now and then in the classics; e. g. ihr werdet gegen der Menge wenig sein (G.), few in comparison with the multitude. The short form gen is common in the Bible and still survives in set phrases; e. g. gen Himmel, toward the sky.

Gegenüber, dat., opposite, in face of, in relation to. It generally follows its noun and is more often adv. than prep. It is used: (1) Of literal position; e. g. der Kirche gegenüber, or gegenüber der Kirche, opposite the church. (Gegenüber von, after Fr. vis-à-vis de, also occurs.) (2) Of status; e. g. die Stellung des Staates der Kirche gegenüber, the attitude of the state in relation to the church; dieser Tatsache gegenüber bin ich sprachlos, in face of this fact. Tmesis is common in older writers; e. g. in der Wüsten gegen Moab über, in the desert over against Moab.

Gemäß, dat., according to, in harmony with. Strictly the adj. gemäß (§ 260) used adverbially. It usually follows its noun; e. g. der Natur gemäß (or naturgemäß) leben, live according to nature; demgemäß, accordingly. Nowadays often with gen.; e. g. gemäß Ihres Schreibens, according to your letter; befehlsgemäß, according to orders.

Halb, halben, halber, gen., because of, on account of. Stereotyped case-forms of the old noun Halb, side, direction; always postpositive. Examples: fürstlicher Hochbegrißung halb (G.), in the interest of a princely greeting; dieser Hoffnung halben, on account of this hope; der Studien halber (Ranke), in the interest of study. Now chiefly in compounds; meinet halben(en), alters halber, amts halber, krankheits halber, etc.

Hinter, dat. and acc., behind.

a. With dat. It denotes: (1) Position behind, with verbs of rest; e. g. er ist hinter dem Hause, behind the house; hinter dem Berge wohnen, live on the other side of the mountain. (2) Concealment; e. g. hinter des Lehrers Rücken, behind the teacher's back; es steht etwas dahinter, there's something behind it. (3) Support; e. g. er steht hinter mir als Bürge, he stands behind me as security.

b. With acc. It denotes the goal of motion; e. g. hinter's Haus gehen, go behind the house; schreib' es dir hinter's Ohr, make a note of it.

In, dat. and acc.; with dat. in, with acc. into.

a. The dat. marks position, in space or time; e. g. in der Stadt wohnen, live in the city; im Flusse waten, wade in the river; in einem Buche lesen, read in a book; er starb im Jahre 1800, died in the year 1800.

b. The acc. implies a goal of motion, perception, duration; e. g. in die Stadt gehen, go into the city; in den Fluß (hinein) waten, wade into the river; in ein Buch sehen, look into a book; er lebte bis ins Jahr 1800, he lived into the year 1800. Where a goal of motion is implied Ger. requires the acc. more strictly than Eng. requires into; e. g. man pflanzt einen Baum in die Erde, plants a tree in the ground; ich stecke die Hand in die Tasche, put my hand in my pocket. Notice, too, the acc. in phrases of extent; e. g. 20 Fuß in die Höhe, 20 feet high; wie kann's euch in die Länge freuen (G.)? how can you like it for a steady thing.

Infolge, gen., in consequence of; = in Folge.

Inmitten, gen., in the midst of; = in der Mitte.

Innerhalb, gen., within, inside of; of both time and place; e. g. innerhalb des Schlosses, within the castle; innerhalb des Jahres, within the year. Common also with dat.

Jenseits, gen., on that side of, beyond; jenseits dieser Berge, beyond these mountains. Cf. diesseits.

Kraft, gen., on the strength of, in virtue of; e. g. kraft des Berliner Vertrages, in virtue of the Berlin treaty. Shortened from in Kraft.

Längs, gen., along; e. g. längs des Flusses, along the river. Common also with dat. An adverbial gen. of lang, with spurious umlaut.

Laut, gen., according to; e. g. laut des geschlossenen Bundes, according to the treaty of alliance. Sometimes with dat. Shortened from nach Laut, according to the purport.

Mit, dat., with. It denotes: (1) Association, joint activity (friendly and hostile); e. g. komm, geh mit mir, come, go with me; mit einem Gegner streiten, contend with an adversary; mit Gott, with God's help. (2) Concern, often in a very loose sense; e. g. wie steht es mit Ihrem Herzen (G.)? how is it with your heart? was gibt's mit dem Bauer da (S.)? what's the matter with the peasant there? hinaus mit ihm! out with him! ich bin mit der Sache fertig, done with the affair. (3) Concomitancy, in phrases of manner; e. g. mit Recht, rightly; mit wenig Wit, with little wit. (4) Appurtenance; e. g. Götz mit der eisernen Hand, Götz with the iron hand. (5) Means; e. g. mit einem Messer schneiden, cut with a knife; mit Genuß betrügen, deceive with pleasure. (6) Contemporaneousness; e. g. die Welt wird schöner mit jedem Tag, every day; mit der Zeit, in course of time.

Mitsamt, dat.; the same as samt.

Mittels, mittelfst, gen., by means of; e. g. mittelfst ihres Ansehens, by means of their prestige. Mittels is an adverbial genitive of Mittel; mittelfst has an excrement t.

Nach, dat., after, to, according to. It denotes: (1) Approach, direction of motion, with names of places; e. g. nach Berlin gehen, go to Berlin; nach Hause eilen, hurry home. The object may be an adverb; e. g. nach oben, up; nach unten, down. Direction, without the idea of arrival, may be expressed by nach . . . zu; e. g. wir fuhren nach der Stadt zu, drove toward the city. (2) The direction of effort, desire, attention, etc.; e. g. nach einem schlagen, strike at one; nach einem Ziele schießen, shoot at a mark; nach Ruhm streben, strive for glory; sich nach Ruhe sehnen, long for rest. (3) Sequence; e. g. nach einem reden, speak after one; eins nach dem andern, one after the other; nach kurzer Zeit, after a short time; nach Tische, after dinner. (4) Accordance, often with object preceding; e. g. nach meiner Ansicht, according to my view; allem Anscheine nach, according to all appearances; ich kenne ihn dem Namen nach, know him by name; es riecht nach Schwefel, it smells of (like) sulfur.

Nächst, dat., close by, next to; e. g. nächst der Brücke, close by the bridge (S.). The superlative of nah, used adverbially.

Neben, dat. and acc., close by, beside.

a. With dat. it denotes: (1) Simple juxtaposition; e. g. neben einem sitzen, sit next to one; neben der Türe schlafen, sleep by the door. (2) Addition or comparison; e. g. du sollst keine andern Götter neben mir haben, no other gods beside me; du hast noch eine Klugheit neben deiner Liebe (S.), shrewdness along with your love; neben ihm bin ich ein Stümper, a bungler in comparison with him.

b. With acc. it follows verbs of motion in the sense of beside, close to; e. g. er stellte sich neben den Ofen hin (S.), placed himself by the stove; er setzte sich neben sie (G.), sat down beside her. But the dat. is not infrequent even after verbs of motion.

Nebst, dat., along with, together with; e. g. der Vater nebst seinen beiden Söhnen, together with his two sons. From nebens, an adverbial amplification of neben, with excrement t.

Ob, dat., above, over, on account of; e. g. ob Erden (archaic), above ground, on earth; der Priester sprach den Segen ob dem Paare (Lenau), pronounced the blessing over the pair; ob all dem edlen Wein (U.), over, i. e. on account of, all the noble wine. Ob is now rare and confined to stately diction. It occurs also with gen.; e. g. ob des seltsamen Gerätes (S.), on account of the strange implement.

Ohne, acc., without; e. g. ohne guten Grund, without good reason. The object may be an inf. with zu or a clause with daß; e. g. bezeugt nur, ohne viel zu wissen (G.), without knowing much; er sündigt, ohne daß er es weiß, sins without knowing it. Formerly common with dat. and gen., whence the survivals ohnedem, aside from that, and zweifels-ohne, doubtless.

Samt, dat., together with; e. g. der Vater samt den Kindern, the father together with the children.

Seit, dat., since, from the time of; e. g. seit dem letzten Kriege, since the last war. Formerly also with gen., whence seit alters, from of old. The object may be an adverb or adjective; e. g. seit gestern, since yesterday; seit kurzem, recently.

Sonder, acc., without; obsolete except in a few phrases such as sonder Gleichen, also written sondergleichen, without peer; sonder Zweifel, doubtless. Formerly used also with dat. and gen.

Trotz, gen. or dat., in spite of, in competition with, hence, as well as; e. g. trotz aller Bemühungen, in spite of all efforts; trotz dem schlechten Wetter, in spite of the bad weather; trotz alle dem, for all that; dar- auf verstehen wir uns trotz einer Nation in der Welt (L.), we understand that as well as any nation in the world. Shortened from zu(m) Trotz.

über, dat. and acc., over, beyond.

a. With dat. it denotes: (1) Position, with verbs of rest; e. g. über allen Gipfeln ist Ruh' (G.), over all the hill-tops is rest; er wohnt über dem Meere, lives across the sea. (2) Occupation; e. g. über einem Buche sitzen, sit over a book; über einem Gespräch den Zug veräumen, miss the train over (i. e. thru being absorbed in) a conversation.

b. With acc. it denotes: (1) The goal of motion; e. g. er gießt ihm ein Glas Wein über den Kopf (G.), pours a glass of wine over his head; Jammer über die Welt bringen, bring sorrow over the world; über eine Brücke gehen, go over a bridge. So with nouns that imply crossing; e. g. der Übergang über die Donau, the crossing of the Danube. (2) Superiority; e. g. über ein Volk herrschen, rule over a people; über den Feind siegen, prevail over the enemy. (3) Excess; e. g. das geht über alle Vernunft, beyond all reason; über alle Beschreibung schrecklich, terrible beyond all description; über zwei Jahre, over two years. But this last may also mean two years hence; cf. heute über acht Tage, a week from to-day; über Nacht, over night. Further: einmal über das andere, time after time; Briefe über Briefe, letters upon letters. (4) Occasion, theme; e. g. über einen Vorfall lachen (weinen, sich freuen), laugh (weep, rejoice) over an occurrence; über die Kunst schreiben, write upon art; über das Erhabene, On the Sublime. So in exclamations: pfui über dich! out upon you! According to Brandt, über ein Buch einschlafen, to fall asleep over a book, implies that the book is dull, while über einem Buche einschlafen, means simply to fall asleep while reading.

Um, acc., about, around. It denotes: (1) Simple position, often with following her or herum; e. g. ums Feuer stehen, stand about the fire; alle treten um ihn (G.), come around him; um den Teich (herum) spazieren, walk round the pond. (2) Approximation; e. g. um Weihnachten, about-Christmas; um drei Stunden, about three leagues. In giving the time of day, however, um denotes exact time; e. g. um 3 Uhr, at 3 o'clock. (3) Concern, solicitude; e. g. es handelt sich ums Leben, it is a question of life; um eine Sache streiten, contend about a matter; um etwas bitten, ask for something. (4) Exchange, offset, price; e. g. alles ist euch feil um Gold (S.), purchasable for gold; um alles in der Welt, of (for) all things in the world. (5) Degree of difference; e. g. um einen Zoll zu breit, too wide by an inch; um ein Haar, by a hair's breadth. (6) Loss, deprivation; e. g. einen ums Leben bringen, deprive one of life; um schöne Stunden getäuscht, cheated of fair hours.

Um . . . willen, gen., for the sake of; e. g. um Gottes willen, for God's sake; i. e. um Gottes Willen, for the will of God.

Unangeſehen, gen., not considering.

Unbeſchadet, gen., without detriment (or prejudice) to. Rarely with dat.

Ungeachtet, gen., notwithstanding. Formerly not uncommon with dat., whence demungeachtet (as well as beſſenungeachtet), nevertheless.

Unter, dat. and acc. under, among.

a. With dat., in constructions of rest, it denotes: (1) Simple position; e. g. unter einem Baume ſitzen, sit under a tree; Gretchen unter vielem Volke (G.), among many people. So, too, as the equivalent of a partitive gen.; e. g. viele unter den Soldaten, many among the soldiers. (2) Status, with reference to superior authority, governing conditions, etc.; e. g. unter einem Offizier dienen, serve under an officer; unter Druck ſeufzen, groan under oppression; unter ſolchen Umſtänden, under such circumstances; ein Buch unter der Preſſe, a book in press. (3) Simultaneousness, concomitancy; e. g. unter der Regierung Karls, under the reign of Karl; unter dem Donner der Kanonen vorrücken, advance amid the roar of cannon.

b. With acc. it denotes the goal of motion; e. g. etwas unter den Tiſch werfen, throw something under the table; ich komm' gar wenig unter Leute (G.), I go little among people.

Bermitteltſt, gen., by means of. The same as mitteltſt.

Bermöge, gen., in virtue of, by dint of; e. g. vermöge ſeines Fleißes, by dint of his industry.

Von, dat., from, of. As we have seen (§ 247), von and the dat. may take the place of the gen. in nearly all the latter's uses. Aside from this it denotes: (1) The starting-point; e. g. von Berlin nach Leipzig fahren, travel from Berlin to Leipzig; von nun an, from now on. (2) Residence, origin; e. g. der Kaufmann von Venedig, the merchant of Venice; Rudolf von Habsburg, Rudolf of Habsburg. Hence, in modern times, as a mere sign of nobility; e. g. Fürst von Bismarck, Prince von Bismarck. (3) Agency, with passive verbs; e. g. Amerika wurde von Columbus entdeckt, was discovered by Columbus. (4) Source; e. g. von allen Seiten, from all sides; von der Luft leben, live on air; von wem haben Sie das? from whom have you that? das iſt nicht gut von dir, not kind of you; von Geburt ein Deutſcher, a German by birth; naß vom Regen, wet with rain. (5) Separation, release; e. g. das Gute vom Schlechten unterſcheiden, distinguish the good from the bad; frei von Stolz, free from pride; von der Arbeit ruhen, rest from toil. (6) Concern; e. g. von der Politik reden, talk of politics; die Lehre vom Zufall, the doctrine of chance. (7) Specification; e. g. ein Mann von vierzig Jahren, a man of forty; ein Engel von einem Weibe, an angel of a woman.

Vor, dat. and acc., before.

a. With dat. it denotes: (1) Position in place or time; e. g. vor dem Spiegel stehen, stand before the mirror; vor 3 Uhr, before three o'clock; vor einem Monat, a month ago; vor Christus, B. C. (2) Cause, mostly with words of emotion; e. g. vor Freude weinen, weep for joy; Furcht vor dem Tode, fear of death. (3) Precedence; e. g., vor allen Dingen, before all things; vor einem den Vorrang haben, take precedence of one. (4) Exposure, security; e. g. einen vor der Kälte schützen, protect one from the cold; sicher vor dem Feinde, safe from the enemy; vor dir hab' ich keine Geheimnisse, I have no secrets from you.

b. With acc. it denotes the goal of motion; e. g. vor den Spiegel treten, step before the mirror; sich vor den Kopf schießen, shoot one's self in the head; vor einen Baum rennen (G.), run into a tree.

Während, gen., during; e. g. während des Abends, during the evening. The pple. of wahren, endure; währendes Tages, while the day endures (§ 261, 1), became während des Tages. Sometimes with dat.

Wegen, gen., on account of; e. g. wegen des Wetters, on account of the weather. Often postpositive, e. g. der Geschäfte wegen, because of business. Sometimes with dat.

Wider, acc., against (but not in a physical sense); e. g. wider das Recht, contrary to law.

Zu, dat., to, at, for. It denotes: (1) The direction of motion or effort, usually with the idea of arrival; e. g. komm du nur oft zu mir herüber (G.), come over to my house; sie sang zu ihm, sie sprach zu ihm (G.), she sang to him, she spoke to him; zu Bett gehen, go to bed; zur Kirche gehen, go to church; zu Grunde gehen, go to ruin; zu Boden fallen, fall to the ground; von Ort zu Ort, from place to place; von Zeit zu Zeit, from time to time. Observe that zu is not used after verbs of motion before names of towns; e. g. to go to Berlin is nach Berlin gehen. Sometimes postpositive (with or without preceding nach) in the sense of toward; e. g. (nach) der Straße zu, toward the street. (2) Position in space or time, with verbs of rest; e. g. zu Hause, at home; zu Weihnachten, at Christmas; im Rathaus zu Bremen, in the town-hall at Bremen. (But with names of towns in is more usual.) So, too, of the seat of feeling; e. g. es ist mir wohl zu Mute, comfortable in mind. Observe the idiomatic use of zu with particles of motion; e. g. zur Thür hinaus, out of (i. e. out at, by way of) the door. (3) Purpose, destination, resultant status; e. g. Wasser zum Trinken, water for drinking; zum Beispiel, for example; zu meiner großen Freude, to my great delight; das ist nicht zum Lachen, not for laughter, no laughing-matter; zum Entzücken! charming! zu nichts werden, come to naught; zu Tode ärgern, vex to death; eine zur Frau nehmen, take one to wife. (4) Manner, rate, degree; e. g. zu Fuß, on foot; zu Wasser, by water; zu Deutsch, in German; zu drei Mark das Stück, at three marks a piece; zu Hunderten, by hundreds; zum Teil, in part. (5) Excess, addition; e. g. dazu, zudem, besides.

Infolge, gen., in consequence of.

Zuwider, dat., against; e. g. das Glück war uns zuwider, against us.

Zwischen, dat. and acc., between. The dat. follows verbs of rest, the acc. verbs of motion.

SYNTAX OF THE CONJUNCTION

378. Classification of Conjunctions. Conjunctions connect the members of compound or complex sentences (cf. § 411). Those that connect sentences of equal syntactical rank are called 'co-ordinating' conjunctions, while those that introduce dependent clauses are called 'subordinating.' The former class may be subdivided, with reference to their influence on the word-order, into general connectives and adverbial conjunctions.

1. Conjunctions are mainly of adverbial origin, and are not always easily distinguishable from adverbs. The guiding principle is that an adverb modifies a single word, usually the verb, of its clause, while a conjunction limits the clause itself, showing its logical relation to what precedes or follows. But a considerable number of adverbs (see below, § 380, 1) may perform either function, or both at the same time.

379. The General Connectives aber, allein, sondern, denn, oder and und do not affect the word-order; e. g. aber die Sonne duldet kein Weißes (G.), but the sun endures nothing white; denn er war unser (G.), for he was ours; Weib, mach' Platz, oder mein Roß geht über dich hinweg (S.), woman, give way, or my horse will run over you.

1. Of the three words for but, allein and aber are used without appreciable difference of meaning, but allein always begins its clause, whereas aber may come after one or more words, being then equivalent to however; e. g. ich aber blieb mit kummervoller Seele (S.), I however remained with sorrowful soul. Sondern is used only after a negative, and introduces a contrast which excludes or contradicts what goes before; e. g. das ist kein Grund, sondern nur ein Vorwand, that is no reason, but only a pretext; er kam nicht, sondern er blieb ruhig zu Hause, he did not come, but remained quietly at home. But if the second proposition does not exclude the first, aber is used even after a negative; e. g. er kam nicht, aber er blieb nicht ohne Grund zu Hause, he did not come, but he had reason for remaining at home. Sondern is especially common in the correlative phrase nicht allein (or nicht nur) . . . sondern auch, not only . . . but also.

2. Denn, for, always begins its clause and is thus easily distinguishable from the inferential denn, then (§ 380), which never stands first.

3. Ob, or, is often preceded by a correlative entweder, either; e. g. entweder ihr kennt mich nicht, oder ihr seid sehr boshaft (G.), either you do not know me, or you are very malicious. Entweder sometimes causes inversion, oder very rarely. Ob is often followed by a pleonastic and untranslatable aber; e. g. ich will entweder siegen, oder aber sterben (Gr.), I will conquer or die.

4. The use of und corresponds closely to that of and. Note, however, the frequent employment of inversion after und, with resumption of the subject by means of a pronoun, usually derselbe; e. g. die Vorstellung beginnt um sechs Uhr, und wird dieselbe ungefähr drei Stunden dauern, the performance begins at 6 o'clock and will last about three hours. This usage is characteristic of the commercial and official styles.

a. By the ellipsis of the verb which it connects logically with what precedes, und sometimes acquires concessive force; e. g. du mußt, und kostet' es mein Leben (G.), thou must and should it cost (i. e. tho it should cost) my life.

380. The Adverbial Conjunctions are adverbs so far as they modify a particular word of the clause in which they stand, but conjunctions in that they show the logical relation of the clause itself to what precedes or follows. As conjunctions they are apt to begin the clause, in which case they cause inversion; but they may also follow the verb like any other adverb; e. g. zwar ist es leicht, doch ist das Leichte schwer (G.), to be sure it is easy, but the easy is hard; du magst zwar reden, du hast doch unrecht, you may talk, to be sure, but you are wrong.

1. It would be impossible to draw up a complete list of the adverbial conjunctions, because they can not be distinguished sharply from other adverbs. Nor is it easy to classify them according to their meaning. Roughly speaking they are either additive (akin in meaning to also, moreover), adversative (meaning but, yet, on the other hand, else, rather), temporal (such as soon, now, then, thereupon, firstly), partitive (like partly . . . partly, now . . . again), consecutive (like hence, therefore, accordingly, so), or they express assurance, doubt, probability, etc. Some of the more common are as follows:

allerdings, to be sure	gleichwohl, nevertheless
also, so, then	halb . . . halb, half . . . half andrerseits, on the other hand	ja, indeed, of course
auch, also, too	jedoch, nevertheless balb . . . bald, now . . . again	nachher, afterwards
dagegen, on the contrary	nämlich, namely, to explain
damals, at that time	natürlich, of course damit, therewith	noch, yet, still
dann, then	nun, now darauf, thereupon	so, so
darum, therefore	sogar, even
dazu, besides	so gleich, directly
demnach, accordingly	sonst, else, formerly
denn, then	teils . . . teils, partly . . . partly
dennoch, however	trotzdem, nevertheless deshalb, therefore	überdies, besides desgleichen, likewise	übrigens, moreover deswegen, therefore	vielleicht, perhaps
doch, but, yet, surely	vielmehr, rather ebenso, likewise	wohl, perhaps, I presume
endlich, finally	zudem, besides
erstens, firstly	zuerst, first freilich, to be sure	zuletzt, last gleichfalls, likewise	zunächst, next zwar, to be sure

a. Some of the above words, notably auch, doch, erstens, nämlich, often fail to cause inversion; e.g. auch das ist falsch, that too is false; du scheinst bedenklich, doch du scheinst vergnügt (G.), you seem pensive, yet you seem happy. Any word loses its power to cause inversion, when it is set off by a comma ; e. g. nun, wir sehen einander wieder (G.), well, we'll see each other again. This is often the case with the ordinal adverbs, erstens, zweitens, ferner, endlich, etc.

b. Auch generally stands just before (with weak stress), or just after (with strong stress), the word to be made prominent ; e. g. auch ich or ich auch, bin Dichter, I too (as well as others) am a poet; ich bin auch Dichter, or Dichter auch, I am a poet too (as well as an orator). The former idea can also be expressed : ich bin auch Dichter.

c. Doch is primarily adversative, = but, yet, but its adversative force is often directed against an imaginary doubt, denial, opposition, or hesitation, so that it becomes merely a particle of emphasis, = really, surely, I declare ; e. g. das ist doch unerhört, that is really unheard of; treten Sie doch herein, come in, won't you ? höre doch, do hear. So in combination with ja or wohl ; e. g. du bist ja doch der Herr, thou art surely the Lord ; Sie sind doch wohl nicht krank, you are not sick, I hope. It quite regularly follows a verb put first for emphasis ; e. g. glaub' ich doch, I do believe ; hab' ich den Markt und die Straßen doch nie so einsam gesehen (G.), I never did see, etc.

d. Ja as additive particle, = indeed, in fact, need not cause inversion ; e. g. setzte sich zu ihm, ja man dürfte beinah' sagen, auf ihn (G.), sat down by him, indeed one might almost say, upon him. More often ja follows the verb with the sense of course, you know ; e. g. ich table ihn nicht, er ist ja nur ein Kind, I do not blame him, he is only a child, you know ; Sie wissen ja, you know, of course.

e. Noch may have additive or temporal force ; e. g. ihr seid noch ziemlich wohlgebaut (G.), you are besides pretty well built ; das ist noch schlimmer ; that is still worse. As temporal particle it means yet, still, up to ; e. g. noch ist es Zeit, there is still time ; noch vor kurzem, until lately, quite lately ; das fehlte noch, that was yet lacking, that caps the climax ; er kann noch lange leben, he may yet live long.

f. Nun differs from jetzt in that the latter only denotes present time as such, while nun implies a relation to what precedes ; e. g. ich bin jetzt beschäftigt, I am busy now, but nun traf es sich, now it happened (as part of a narrative) ; nun danket alle Gott, now all thank God (in view of his favor).

g. Wohl is sometimes concessive ; e. g. wohl hat er Geld, aber er hat wenig Verstand, he has money, to be sure, but he has little sense. Most often, however, it expresses a lack of perfect assurance, being a sort of verbal interrogation-point to be translated by perhaps, probably, possibly, I presume, I should say, etc. ; e. g. du hast wohl recht, you are probably right ; es waren ihrer wohl zwanzig, there were twenty of them, I should think ; wie spät ist es wohl ? how late is it, I wonder ? The English well at the beginning of the sentence is usually given by nun, not by wohl; e. g. nun, wie geht's? well, how goes it? Cf. § 372, 1.

h. So is often used to resume the adverbial force of a preceding clause, especially a conditional clause; e. g. wenn ich das gewußt hätte, so wäre ich nicht gekommen, if I had known that, I should not have come; und kommt er auch, so ist's ein Gaudy (G.), and even if he comes, it is a fool. The use of this so is to make the inversion easier. It should not be translated.

381. The Subordinating Conjunctions introduce dependent clauses which sustain to some word in the main clause the relation of adverb, adjective or noun. They require that the inflected verb stand at the end.

1. Exceptions to the rule of order are not uncommon. Especially is a prepositional phrase often placed after the verb; e. g. und als ich kam ins heimatische Tal (S.), when I came into my native valley. Cf. also § 194. The most important of the subordinating conjunctions are as follows:

als, as, when, than	inwiefern, how far	sowie, as, just as
als ob, as if	je + adv. or adj.	wann, when
als wenn, as if	the —	weil, because
bevor, before	je nachdem, according as	wenn, if, when
bis, until	nachdem, after	wenn auch, tho
da, as, since	ob, whether	wenngleich, tho
damit, in order that	obgleich, tho	während, while
daß, that	obchon, tho	wie, how, as
biweil, because	obwohl, tho	wo, where
ehe, before	seit(dem), since	wo + prep., or particle
falls, in case	so, if	wofern, so far as, if
indem, while	so + adv. or adj.	jumal (da), especially as
indes (-dessen), while	as — as.
inwiefern, how far

a. Als translates Eng. when after a pret.; e. g. als ich noch ein Knabe war (G.), when I was still a boy. It may also be = as before a historical pres.; e. g. als ich das Borgemach durchgehe (S.), as I go thru the anteroom. After other tenses when is given by wenn, which see. Als is the proper conjunction to be used after a comparative; e. g. es ist schlimmer, als ich anfangs vermutete, it is worse than I at first supposed; ich bin älter als du, I am older than you. So, too, after the positive degree preceded by so; e. g. es ist nicht so schlimm, als du meinst, not so bad as you think; ich bin gerade so alt als du, exactly as old as you. In both these cases, however, and especially after the positive degree, it is very common to substitute wie for als. The usage is colloquial, but found abundantly in the best writers. Denn is now little used after a comparative, except to avoid an awkward repetition of als; e. g. Schiller war größer als Dichter denn als Philosoph, greater as poet than as philosopher. Als wie, for als, is colloquial, but common in the classics.

b. Da with pret. may denote simple time, like als; e. g. da ihr noch die schöne Welt regiertet (S.), when you still ruled. So, too, to define Zeit; e. g. die Zeiten, da ich noch selbst im Werden war (G.), the times when. More often, however, it is causal; e. g. da du, o Herr, dich einmal wieder nahest (G.), since thou dost again draw near. Somewhat rare is the sense of tho; e. g. da sich mein Vater nicht leicht eine Ausgabe erlaubte, so war er dagegen nicht farg (G.), tho my father did not like to spend money, still he was not niggardly; werd' ein Fürstentnecht, da du ein Selbstherr sein kannst (S.), become a vassal, where (tho) you may be a sovereign.

c. Damit denotes purpose, not result, and is usually followed by the subjunctive; e. g. das sag' ich euch, damit ihr's wisset (S.), I tell you this that you may know it. Auf daß, = in order that, is common in early modern Ger., but is now archaic; e. g. eure Vater und Mutter, auf daß es dir wohl gehe (Lu.), honor thy father and mother in order that, etc.

d. Daß may denote purpose or result; e. g. alle Blüten müssen vergehen, daß Früchte beglücken (G.), blossoms must fade that fruits may bless. But for this daß modern prose prefers damit. Denoting result daß is apt to be preceded by so, auf solche Weise, dergestalt; e. g. er spricht so leise, daß man nicht versteht, he speaks so low that one does not understand. After zu . . . als, in result-clauses, the subjunctive is usual; e. g. er spricht zu leise, als daß man ihn verstehen könnte, he speaks too low for one to understand him. — Most often daß introduces a substantive or adjective clause; e. g. ich glaube, daß er kommen wird, I believe that he will come; meine Behauptung, daß es falsch ist, my assertion that it is false. The subjunctive in an object-clause is due to the nature of the thought (§ 360), not to any governing power of daß; e. g. wer dachte, daß die Sache so stünde? who thought that the affair stood thus? er meinte, daß es zu spät sei, he thought that it was too late. — After verbs of saying, thinking, etc., daß may be omitted, the order becoming normal; e. g. ich glaube, er wird kommen, I believe he will come (instead of daß er kommen wird); er sagte, es wäre alles vorüber, he said that all was over. — A clause with daß may define a noun of time; e. g. es sind drei Jahre, daß ich hier wohne, it is three years that I have been living here; in der Zeit, daß ich bei ihm war, in the time that I was with him. — A daß-clause may depend on the preposition auf or ohne; e. g. er gleicht seinem Bruder, außer daß er blaue Augen hat, except that he has blue eyes; er kam niemals, ohne daß er ein Geschenk brachte, without bringing a present. — Notice finally the idiom: daß ich nicht wüßte, not that I know of.

e. Indem denotes contemporaneousness, often with the subaudition of cause. Usually it is best translated by a verbal in ing, or else by a participial construction; e. g. „fürchte dich nicht,“ sagte Wilhelm, indem er auf sie losging (G.), ‘do not be afraid,’ said Wilhelm, advancing toward her; indem er den Plan zu früh verriet, verbarb er die ganze Sache, by betraying the plan too soon, he ruined the whole cause.

j. Je + adv. or adj. introduces ‘proportional’ clauses, and is usually followed by um so or desto, less often by je, with inversion; e. g. je weniger eine Hand verrichtet, desto zarter ist ihr Gefühl, the less a hand does, the more delicate is its feeling (‘the hand of little employment hath the daintier sense,’ Hamlet); je mehr ihr lernt, je mehr vergeßt ihr (L.), the more you learn the more you forget.

g. Obgleich, obgleich, obwohl often undergo tmesis; e. g. ob sich gleich auf Deutsch nichts reimet (G.), tho nothing rimes with ‘deutsch.’

h. So + adv. appears in sobald, as soon as; sofern, as far as; so lang, as long as; soviel, so weit, as far as. These words are sometimes, but not now usually, followed by als; e. g. so lang’ er auf der Erde lebt (G.), as long as he lives on earth. A concessive so, = however, may precede almost any adj. or adv. with dependent order; e. g. erfüll’ dein Herz davon, so groß es ist, fill thy heart with it, great as it is. But usually there is a following auch; e. g. so schnell er auch lief, however fast he ran.

i. Wann is now always interrogative, direct or indirect; e. g. wann kommt er? when is he coming? ich weiß nicht, wann er kommt.

j. Weil is now usually causal, as in er ist dir neidisch, weil du glücklich wohnst (S.), he is envious of you because you live happily. But in the classics, and even now in poetry, it is often found in its earlier temporal sense of while; e. g. freut euch, weil der Frühling währet (Voss), rejoice while spring lasts.

k. Wenn may have conditional or purely temporal meaning. The pret. after the temporal wenn implies repeated or customary action; e. g. an euch nur dacht’ ich, wenn ich sann und schrieb (G.), I thought only of you when(ever) I mused and wrote. Als ich sann und schrieb would refer to one occasion. Wenn represents Eng. when before a pres. or a fut. tense; e. g. wir kommen wieder, wenn der Kuckuck ruft (S.), when the cuckoo calls. The conditional wenn may be followed by any tense.

l. Wie as temporal conjunction denotes immediate sequence; e. g. und wie er erwacht, in seliger Lust (S.), as he awakens, on awakening; wie er das hörte, ging er fort, on hearing that. It thus differs from als and indem, which imply contemporaneousness. More often wie denotes manner, = how or as; e. g. ich weiß nicht, wie er lebt, I know not how he lives; wir sprachen vom Seeman, und wie er lebt (Heine), of the sailor and his way of living; es ist, wie ich dir sagte, it is as I told you. A clause with wie may define a noun of manner; e. g. die Art, wie er lebt, his way of living. On the very common use of wie for als in comparisons (ich bin älter wie du, ich bin nicht so alt wie du) see above under als.

m. Observe that wann, wie, wo and its compounds may be used as direct interrogatives, with the order as in Eng.; it is only when used indirectly in dependent sentences that they require the dependent order; e. g. wo ist er? wann wird er kommen? where is he? when will he come? ich weiß nicht, wann er kommen wird, I do not know when he will come. The prepositional compounds of wo, worauf, woran, etc., usually have relative force, but some of them serve also as indirect interrogatives; e. g. die Frage, wovon die Rede ist, the question under discussion; ich weiß nicht, wovon die Rede ist, I do not know what the question under discussion is. The particle auch (less often nur or immer) placed after an indirect wann, wie or wo, gives the force of Eng. ever; e. g. ein heiliger Wille lebt, wie auch der menschliche wankt (S.), a holy will lives, however the human will may waver; wie das auch sein mag, however that may be.

THE INTERJECTION

332. Nature of the Interjection. The interjection does not form an integral part of the sentence, but is a sentence by itself, i. e. an independent expression of feeling or will.

1. Some interjections are used only as such, either alone or in connection with some other part of speech; e. g. ach! ah! ach, Gott! ah, God! dear me! pf! hush! These may be called the interjections proper.

2. Others are nouns, adjectives, adverbs, verbs, phrases; e. g. heil! hail! herrlich! splendid! nun! well! sieh! look! Gottlob! God be praised! Here belong all sorts of oaths, adjurations and by-words.

3. Others are calls to animals, imitations of sounds, refrains used in singing; e. g. hst! haw! mau! bow-wow! miau! mew! piff! bang! juchheia! heia! he! hurrah! heigho! hoho!

4. While the interjection has no proper case-governing power and is usually followed by the nom., or by a prepositional phrase, it may be associated with a gen., dat. or acc. See §§ 255, 261, 1, a, and 267, 3.

383. List of Interjections.

The interjections and interjectional phrases that fall under 2 and 3 in the above classification are too numerous to mention. The following list comprises only those of class 1, and of these only some of the more important. Such are:

ah! ah, O, alas	hallo! hello	hui! whiz
ah! ah	he! O	hurra! hurrah
aha! aha	heba! ho there	juchhe! heigho
au! O	heifa! heigho	na! indeed, well now
bah! bah	hem! hm! hm	o! oh! O, oh
eh! eh	ho! ho	oho! oho
ei! oho	ho! ho	pfui! pooh, fie
ha! ha	hollo! hello	pst! pst, hush
haha! haha	hu! whew	uff! ugh

1. It is usual to classify interjections according to the nature of the feeling they denote, but with some of the most common the meaning depends largely on the connection, the tone in which they are uttered, the accompanying gesture, etc. Thus ah most often expresses pain or regret, but it may denote surprise, or even delight. — O, oh, are often simply particles of address. — Bah, pfui, uff, express annoyance or disgust. — He, heba, ho, hallo, are used in attracting attention. — Na is deprecatory, a sort of verbal shrug of the shoulders.

WORD-FORMATION

384. Of Derivation in General. Words are derived from roots, usually with the aid of prefixes and suffixes. Thus, looking at the noun Geburt, birth, we find that the prefix ge and the suffix t form a part of numerous other nouns, as well as this one, and have a meaning of their own. They are therefore called formative elements. The root is what remains when all such elements have been removed.

1. From a modern point of view it would seem, then, that the root of Geburt is the syllable bur. But Geburt comes from gebären, earlier geberen, which, with its pret. gebar, and its pple. geboren, shows us the same root in the forms ber, bar, bör. This internal vowel-change, called, as we have seen, 'ablaut,' plays an important part in derivation.

2. The primary factors in derivation are, then, (1) the radical syllable with its possibilities of ablaut, (2) prefixes, and (3) suffixes. A root must always be present, tho its exact meaning is not always determinable. Of the formative elements, suffixes play a much more important part than prefixes. Some suffixes, e. g. heit in Freiheit, and tum in Erratum, were once independent words; in the case of others no such origin is traceable. A suffix may cause umlaut, which thus enters as a secondary factor into derivation; e. g. Frau, Fräulein.

3. Finally, two or more words, each formed in the manner above described, may combine into a compound; e. g. Geburtstag, birthday.

4. Remark. The etymology of German words can not be thoroly studied without a knowledge of the older Germanic dialects and of comparative Indo-European Philology (Appendix II). The following treatment of derivation, which does not presuppose such knowledge, must of necessity, therefore, be somewhat superficial.

THE DERIVATION OF NOUNS

385. Nouns of Obscure Derivation. There are many nouns the derivation of which is obscure, either because there is no related verb which shows the root, or because the suffix, if there is one, has no definable meaning which enables us to associate the word with others of a like ending. Such are, e. g. Tag, day; Feder, feather; Haus, house; Busen, bosom; Wasser, water.

1. Such nouns must count, for the student of modern German, as primitive words, tho many of them can be explained by the help of comparative philology. Thus Tag probably comes from a root meaning to burn: the 'day' was the warm part of the four-and-twenty hours. Again Feder comes from a root meaning to fly, plus an instrumental suffix: it meant means of flying. But the syllable fēd is meaningless in modern German, as is also the suffix er applied to it, tho there are other words in abundance in which er has a definable meaning; e. g. Halter, holder, from the root of halten, hold. Hence we may call Feber a primitive word, and Halter a derivative, tho both are in reality derivatives.

386. Derivation by Ablaut. Many nouns are derived from strong verbal roots without the aid of a suffix. The root may appear as in the infinitive of the verb, or in some other ablaut-variation; e. g. Fall, fall, from fallen; Biß, bite, from beißen; Schuß, shot, from schießen; Zoll, toll, from zählen. The great mass of such derivatives are masculine (cf. § 234, 1, a).

387. Derivation by Suffix. The great majority of nouns are formed by the aid of a suffix. Some of the suffixes are applied to a verbal root (usually, but not always, in the form shown by the infinitive), others to a verbal stem or to the stem of a noun or adjective. The following alphabetical list contains those which are most important, i. e. those which are now felt, more or less distinctly, as suffixes, and form derivatives that have a definite and easily discernible relation to the primitive base. Those suffixes that contain a front vowel (e, i) are apt to cause umlaut, but there are many exceptions.

1. Chen and lein, the former cognate with kin in lambkin, are applied to nouns to form diminutives; e. g. Bäumchen, little tree; Röslein, little rose. Often there is an implication of familiarity or endearment; e. g. Mütterchen, little mother, mama; Suschen, Susie. Both suffixes usually cause umlaut. Of the two the North German chen is the living suffix and prevails in the language of every-day life, while the South German lein is more literary; cf. Röschen and Röslein, Blümchen and Blümlein. In a few cases there is a stereotyped difference of meaning; e. g. Fräulein, young lady, Miss, but Frauchen, little wife.

2. De, attached to verbal roots, denotes the thing done, or a concrete manifestation of the action; e. g. Bürde, burden, from -bären, bear; Freude, joy, from freuen, rejoice; Gemälde, painting, from malen, paint; Gelübde, vow, from geloben, vow; Zierde, ornament, from zieren, adorn.

3. Œ is a very common suffix : (1) Attached to verbal roots it forms a multitude of feminines, which denote the action or its concrete effect, less often that which performs the action ; e. g. Lüge, falsehood, from lügen, lie ; Lage, situation, from liegen, lie ; Gabe, gift, from geben ; Œprache, language, from Œprechen ; Fliege, fly, from fliegen ; Œchlange, serpent, from Œchlingen, wind. A few masculines denote persons ; e. g. Bote, messenger, from bieŒen, bid. (2) Attached to adjectives (always with umlaut, if possible), it forms abstracts ; e. g. GröŒe, greatness, from groß ; Länge, length, from lang ; Kürze, brevity, from kurz.

4. Œi', erei'. Œi is of foreign origin, Lat. ia, Fr. ie, and is always accented. It is appended both to nominal and to verbal stems to form nouns of action and of place ; e. g. Heuchelei, hypocrisy, from heucheln, feign ; Abtei, abbey, from Abt, abbot. As it was often used after er, the suffix came to be felt as erei, and the latter is now much more common than the simple ei. Erei forms nouns of action, as Malerei, painting, from malen ; of place, as Bäckerei, bakery, from backen ; of condition, as Œlaverei, slavery, from Œlave ; rarely also collectives, as Reiterei, cavalry, from Reiter. It often implies contempt, as in Spielelei, Kinnerei, child's play ; Juristerei, pettifoggery, from Jurist.

5. Œl, applied to verbal roots, denotes the instrument ; e. g. Zügel, rein, from ziehen, draw ; Klingel, bell, from klingen, ring ; Hebel, lever, from heben, lift. In South-German dialect el forms diminutives and familiar nicknames ; e. g. Mädel, girl, instead of Mädchen ; Seppel, nickname of Joseph.

6. Œr, ler, ner. Œr applied to verbal roots denotes the agent ; e. g. Seher, seer, from Œhen ; Jäger, hunter, from jagen. It may also denote the instrument ; e. g. Œhläger, sword, from Œchlagen ; Bohrer, gimlet, from bohren. Attached to noun-stems it denotes a resident or a functionary ; e. g. Bürger, citizen, from Burg, castle ; Berliner, resident of Berlin ; Vogler, fowler, from Vogel ; Gärtner, gardener, from Garten. The use of the suffix er after nouns in el and en (as in the last two examples) gave rise to the two new suffixes ler and ner, which were then appended to nouns not ending in el or en ; as KünŒler, artist, from Kunst, art ; Kellner, waiter, from Keller, cellar.

7. Œeit, feit. Œeit, cognate with hood, in falsehood, and head in the archaic drowsihead, = drowsiness, was once an independent word, meaning manner, person. It forms abstracts from adjectives, and collectives from nouns ; e. g. Freiheit, freedom, from frei ; Œchönheit, beauty, from Œchön ; MenŒchheit, mankind, from MenŒch ; ChriŒtenheit, Christendom, from ChriŒt. As appended to adjectives in ig, it took, by phonetic dissimilation, the form feit ; e. g. Seligheit, blessedness, from Œelig, became Seligfeit. The new suffix feit was then appended regularly to adjectives in bar, ig and Œam ; e. g. Freudigkeit, joyfulness, from freudig; Fruchtbarkeit, fruitfulness, from fruchtbar; Langsamkeit, slowness, from langsam; Fröhlichkeit, joyousness, from fröhlich, joyous.

8. ſicht forms from verbal roots a few nouns that denote the collective result of the action; e. g. Rehrſicht, sweepings, from ſehren, sweep; Spülſicht, washings, from ſpülen.

9. ſin, cognate with en in vizen, earlier ſyzen, i. e. she-fox, forms feminines that correspond to masculines; e. g. Löwin, lioness; Königin, queen; Fürſtin, princess.

10. ſing, cognate with ling, in sapling, youngling, is attached to adjectives, to denote one who possesses or exemplifies the quality; e. g. Fremdling, stranger, from fremd; Jüngling, young man, from jung; Erſtling, firstling. Applied to nouns it denotes connection, origin; e. g. Hoſting, courtier, from hof; Eprößling, scion, from Eproß. Applied to verbal roots it denotes the agent or the object; e. g. Abkömmling, descendant, from abkommen; Findling, foundling, from finden. In several words its meaning is uncertain and not distinctly felt; e. g. Eperling, sparrow (cf. Eng. starling); Frühling, Spring, from früh; Schmetterling, butterfly.

11. niß, earlier spelling niß, nuß, cognate with ness in goodness, is applied to adjectives to denote a concrete manifestation of the quality; e. g. Wildniß, wilderness, from wild; Fäulniß, rottenness, from faul. Attached to verbal roots it denotes the action, its concrete effect, or the place where it is performed; e. g. Kenntniß, the act of knowing, or knowledge, from kennen; Betrübniß, affliction, from betrüben; Gefängniß, prison, from fangen.

12. ſal, attached to verbal roots, denotes the thing done or a concrete manifestation of the action; e. g. Schickſal, fate, from ſchicken, send; Trübſal, trouble, from trüben; Labſal, refreshment, from laben. ſel, with weaker accent, is another form of the same suffix; e. g. Rätſel, riddle, from raten, guess; Überbleibſel, remnant, from überbleiben.

13. ſchaft, cognate with ship in friendship, was once an independent word meaning character, being. It is attached to nouns to form abstracts and collectives; e. g. Feindſchaft, enmity, from Feind; Mannſchaft, crew, from Mann; Herrſchaft, dominion, from Herr; Botſchaft, message, from Bote.

14. tum, cognate with dom in kingdom, was once an independent word meaning status, condition. It is applied to nouns to denote estate, province, sphere, and to adjectives to denote a concrete manifestation of the quality; e. g. Bürgerium, citizenship, from Bürger; Fürſtentum, principality, from Fürſt; Altertum, antiquity, from Alter; Eigentum, property, from eigen, own; Heiligtum, sanctuary, halidom, from heilig. Observe that it does not form collectives as in Eng.; e. g. Christentum, Christianity, but Christenheit, Christendom. It is rarely attached to verbal roots, as in Wachstum, growth, from wachsen.

15. Ing, cognate with ing in ending, forms from verbal roots nouns that denote the action or its effect; e. g. Warnung, warning, from warnen; Fassung, form, version, from fassen; Meinung, opinion, from meinen. It is rarely attached to adjectives, as in Festung, fortress, from fest.

388. Derivation by Prefix. Not a few nouns are formed with the aid of a prefix. The word 'prefix,' as here employed, does not include prepositions, adverbs and other parts of speech, that have an independent existence. Such cases as, e. g. Anteil, share, and Fürwort, pronoun, come under the head of composition. It is also to be observed that many nouns which seem to come from a noun preceded by an inseparable prefix (be, ent, er, ge, ver, zer) are in reality from verbs; thus Bestand, constitution, is not from be + Stand, but from bestehen; Verfall, decay, not from ver + Fall, but from verfallen. The true prefixes, as thus limited, are few in number and, excepting ge, all accented. The more important of them are as follows:

1. After, identical with Eng. after forms a few nouns denoting something secondary, spurious, false; e. g. Afterbild, weak imitation, from Bild; Atergott, false god, from Gott; Asterrede, calumny, from Rebe; Afterwelt, posterity, from Welt.

2. Ant, the same as the unaccented ent, emp, in verbal compounds, appears in Antlitz, face, and Antwort, answer. Its original meaning is over against.

3. Erz, Eng. arch, from Gk. ἀρχ- means chief, foremost; e. g. Erzengel, archangel; Erzböjewicht, arch-villain; Erzdummkopf, fool of fools.

4. Ge, originally meaning with, is prefixed to noun-stems to form collectives, and nouns denoting joint action, association; e. g. Gewölle, mass of clouds, from Wolke, cloud; Gewässer, waters, from Wasser; Gefährte, comrade, fellow-traveler, from Fahrt, journey; Gesell(e), companion (originally room-mate, from Saal, room); Gespieler, playmate, from Spiel. Prefixed to verbal roots, it forms nouns which denote the action itself or its concrete effect; e. g. Gebrüll, roaring, from brüllen; Gerede, talk, from reden; Geschenk, present, from schenken; Gebäude, building, from bauen. Both classes of derivatives are apt to have the suffix e, and the great mass of them are neuter.

5. Miß, cognate with Eng. mis in mistake, means wrong, amiss; e. g. Mißbrauch, misuse, abuse, from Brauch, use; Mißgeburt, monstrosity, from Geburt; Mißmut, ill-humor, from Mut.

6. Un, cognate with un in untrue, is a negative prefix, which besides being prefixed to adjectives, as in Eng., is freely used before nouns to reverse their meaning, or to denote something prodigious; e. g. Unmenschen, monster, from Menschen; Un Ding, absurdity, chimera, from Ding; Unzahl, countless number, from Zahl; Unmasse, prodigious mass, from Masse.

7. Ur, cognate with or in ordeal, ultimately also with out, means primitive, original, very ancient; e. g. Urmenchen, primeval man; Ursprache, original language; Urquell, original source; Urahnherr, remote ancestor; Urgroßmutter, great-great-grandmother.

THE DERIVATION OF ADJECTIVES

389. Primitive Adjectives. A large number of adjectives, the most of them monosyllabic, must count as primitive words; e. g. alt, old; gut, good; reich, rich; böse, base; eitel, vain.

1. Speaking generally, the monosyllabic adjectives are really derived, like the nouns, from verbal roots, and had originally a formative suffix; thus alt goes back to an ideal form al-dā, in which dā is a participial suffix and al a root meaning to grow (cognate with Lat. al-o, nourish); so that alt meant originally grown up. But there is no root al in German, and t is not felt as a suffix; hence the word is to be regarded as primitive. There are, however, a few monosyllabic adjectives which are formed by ablaut from verbal roots that do exist in modern German; e. g. brach, fallow, from brechen, break; glatt, smooth, from gleiten, slip.

2. In many cases the old formative suffix has left traces of itself in the umlaut of the root-vowel, or in a final e, or both. Thus schön, beautiful, was once sconi, and the i caused umlaut before it disappeared. So böse is from an older bosi, the suffix i remaining as e.

390. Adjectival Suffixes. Most adjectives are formed by means of a suffix. The term 'suffix' does not embrace independent words which appear as the final element of a compound and preserve their own proper meaning; e. g. voll, full, in schmerzvoll, painful; reich in gedankenreich, rich in thought, thoughtful. On the other hand it may properly include endings such as -artig, -mäßig, -felig, which, as suffixes, are not identical with the adjectives artig, mäßig, felig. The most important of the adjective-forming suffixes are, then, as follows:

1. Artig, a derivative of Art, kind, manner, forms adjectives of manner from nouns and adjectives; e. g. blitzartig, lightning-like, from Blitz; hundartig, dog-like, from Hund; großartig, grand, from groß; fremdartig, strange, from fremd. Notice also derartig, of that kind, from the adverbial gen. der Art.

2. Bar, from the root of -bären, bear, is attached to verbal roots, sometimes also to nouns, and very rarely to adjectives. Its Eng. equivalent is generally, tho with some exceptions, an adjective in able, ible; e. g. dienßbar, serviceable, from Dienst; schiffbar, navigable, from Schiff; mannbar, marriageable, from Mann; furchtbar, fearful, terrible, from Furcht; denkbar, thinkable, from denken; haltbar, tenable, from halten; lesbar, readable, legible, from lesen; offenbar, evident, from offen.

3. En, ern. En, cognate with en in wooden, forms adjectives of material from nouns; e. g. golden, golden; lebern, leathern, from Leber. Its use after nouns in er, as in lebern, gave rise to the new suffix ern, which is of very common occurrence; e. g. bleiern, leaden, from Blei; hölzern, wooden, from Holz; stählern, of steel, from Stahl.

4. Er forms indeclinable adjectives from names of cities; e. g. der Kölner Dom, the Cologne Cathedral. These adjectives are stereotyped genitives plural, but are no longer felt as genitives. Some authorities insist that one should not say ein Verein Leipziger Lehrer for an association of Leipzig teachers, but ein Verein von Leipziger Lehrern (§ 247, 2). But the former locution is very common.

5. Erlei forms, from numerals, indeclinable adjectives denoting the number of kinds; e. g. einerlei, of one kind; mancherlei, of many kinds. In their origin these words are adverbial genitives of an old fem. noun Zeit, meaning manner, way.

6. Fach forms multiplicative adjectives from numerals. It corresponds to Eng. fold; e. g. dreifach, threefold; vielfach, manifold.

7. Fältig, fältig, a derivative of Falt, fold, forms multiplicative adjectives from numerals; e. g. breifältig, or dreifältig, threefold, triple; mannigfaltig (or -fältig), manifold.

8. Haft, in its origin a pple. of haben, meaning had, possessed, found, is attached to nouns, rarely to verbal roots, and still more rarely to adjectives. It means partaking of the nature of; e. g. knabenhaft, boyish, from Knabe; schalkhaft, roguish, from Schalk; fehlerhaft, erroneous, from Fehler; spasshaft, jocose, from Spaß; boshhaft, malicious, from böse (earlier bos-i); krankhaft, sickly, morbid, from krank; seßhaft, residential, from sitzen and wohnen.

9. icht forms from nouns a few adjectives of quality; e. g. töricht, foolish, from Tor; nebelicht, cloudy, from Nebel; ölicht, oily, from Öl.

10. ig, cognate with y in milky, is one of the commonest of suffixes, being attached to nouns, adjectives, adverbs, and sometimes to verbal roots. Its force is that of the Eng. suffixes y, ful, ous; e. g. blutig, bloody, from Blut; freudig, joyful, from Freude; einig, united, from ein; wahrhaftig, true, from wahrhaft; heutig, of to-day, from heute; damalig, of that time, from damals; gültig, valid, from gelten.

11. isch, is cognate with ish in boyish, and is used in much the same way; e. g. kindisch, childish (with depreciatory meaning as compared with kindlich, childlike); weibisch, womanish (but weiblich, womanly, feminine). It is the preferred suffix to form adjectives from proper names and foreign words; e. g. römisch, Roman (as well as Romisch); amerikanisch, American; bayerisch, Bavarian; logisch, logical; philosophisch, philosophical. A proper adjective in isch often takes the place of a limiting gen.; e. g. die Lessing'sche Theorie, the theory of Lessing.

12. lich, cognate with ly in friendly, is the most common of the adjectival suffixes. Attached to nouns it corresponds in the main to Eng. ly, ous, ful; e. g. göttlich, godly, divine, from Gott; täglich, daily, from Tag; gefährlich, dangerous, from Gefahr; schädlich, harmful, from Schade. After verbal roots its meaning is similar to that of bar; e. g. leiblich, tolerable, from leiden; tu(n)lich, feasible, from tun; möglich, possible, from mögen. Derivatives in lich and bar are sometimes formed from the same root with hardly perceptible difference of meaning; e. g. greifbar and greiflich, that can be grasped, from greifen. More often there is a difference of meaning, bar having a more distinctly passive force; e. g. ausführbar, practicable; ausführlich, complete; undenkbar, unthinkable, undenklich, immemorial. Attached to adjectives lich usually has weakening force; e. g. gütlich, kindly, from gut; reinlich, cleanly, from rein; süßlich, sweetish, from süß. Lich forms a few derivatives that are used only as adverbs (e. g. freilich, § 373, 1), but it has never become, like Eng. ly, a true adverbial suffix. Adjectives in iglic, e. g., wonniglic, rapturous, from Bonne, wonnig, being now to stately diction and are becoming quaint.

13. Los is cognate with less in endless and is used in much the same way; e. g. grunblos, groundless; freublos, joyless. As independent word it means free from, rid of.

14. Mässig, a derivative of Maß, manner, forms adjectives of manner from nouns; e. g. regelmässig, regular, from Regel, rule; völkemässig, popular, from Völk.

15. Sam, cognate with some in lonesome, is attached to nouns, adjectives and verbal roots. After nouns it has the force of Eng. -some; e. g. furchtsam, fearsome, timid (with active meaning in contrast with furchtbar, fearful), from Furcht; mühsam, toilsome, from Mühe; heilsam, wholesome, from Heil. To adjectives it gives a modified meaning which is not definable in general terms; e. g. langsam, slow, from lang, long; einsam, solitary, lonesome, from ein, one; wachsam, vigilant, from wach, awake. Attached to verbal roots it forms verbals with passive, less often with active, meaning; e. g. lenksam, tractable, from lenken; biegsam, flexible, from biegen; schweigsam, silent, from schweigen; aufmerksam, attentive, from aufmerken.

16. Selig, derived from the noun-suffix sal in such words as trübselig, sad, from Trübsal, forms adjectives of manner, quality, character; e. g. saumselig, dilatory, from Saumsal; mühselig, toilsome, from Mühsal. In other cases the ending selig is the adjective selig, happy, e. g. gottselig, godly, happy in God. In glückselig, happy, from obsolete Glücksal, the independent selig is now felt.

391. Adjectival Prefixes. These are in general the same as the noun-forming prefixes mentioned in § 388. Thus:

1. Erz, always accented, forms absolute superlatives, mostly with a humorous tinge; e. g. erzfaul = äußerst faul, extremely lazy.

2. Ge, besides forming several adjectives that must count as primitive words, is prefixed to adjectives and verbal roots with a force which is not now distinctly felt and can hardly be defined in general terms (cf. § 396, 4); e. g. genug, enough; genau, exact; gerecht, righteous, from recht; getreu, faithful, from treu; geschickt, clever, from scheiden; gemäß, conformable, from maßen; genehm, acceptable, from nehmen.

3. Un, as negative prefix, is cognate with Eng. un, and is used in much the same way, except that its accent is variable. If the basic adjective is not derived from a verbal root, un usually has the chief stress; e. g. u'nruhig, uneasy; u'nrichtig, incorrect; u'nfruchtbar, un- fruitful. Notice, however, such exceptions as un'e'nblid̃h, infinite; ungeheu'er, uncanny, prodigious. The same principle holds if the basic adjective is derived from a verbal root, but is not a verbal in bar, lid̃h, or ſam; e. g. u'nerhört, unheard of; u'nangenehm, unpleasant; u'nbequem, uncomfortable. Verbals in bar, lid̃h and ſam generally accent the root-syllable; e. g. unde'nbar, unthinkable; unglau'blid̃h, incredible; unbie'gſam, inflexible. But in some of this last class the accent is unsettled; e. g. u'nverzei'hlid̃h, or unverzei'hlid̃h, unpardonable. Observe finally that un may form negatives to which there is no corresponding positive; e. g. unſä'glid̃h, unspeakable; u'nverhofft, unhoped-for.

4. Ur, always accented, has the same force as in nouns; e. g. uralt, very ancient.

THE DERIVATION OF VERBS

392. Primitive Verbs. All verbs that are derived directly from a monosyllabic root, with no other suffix than the usual en of the infinitive, must count as primitive words. Such are all of the strong verbs and a large number of older weak verbs; e. g. haben, have; holen, fetch; reden, talk.

1. It is to be noted, however, that the modern en of the inf. represents several different suffixes of the older language. One of the most common of these was the syllable jan, which has caused umlaut in some stems that, under the above definition, would have to be regarded as primitive; e. g. hören, hear, goes back to an earlier hör-jan*.

393. Derivation by Umlaut. Many verbs are derived by umlaut of the root-vowel from verbal roots, nouns and adjectives. The umlaut is due to the old suffix ja, and is not always marked by the modern sign of umlaut. Thus we have:

1. A number of factitive verbs from strong roots, but with the root-vowel of the preterit, less often that of the infinitive; e. g. tränken, make drink, water, cognate with drench, from trinken; führen, make go, lead, from ſahren; wenden, make turn, from winden; legen, make lie, lay, from liegen; ſetzen, make sit, set, from ſiſen; fällen, make fall, fell, from ſällen.

a. In a few such factitives there is change of the final consonant ; e. g. äßen, make eat, etch, from essen ; schneiden, carve, from schneiden ; beizen, macerate, from beißen, bite ; schmücken, adorn, from schmiegen, lie smooth. The same mode of formation appears in the weak verb wedden awake (transitive), from wachen, be awake.

2. Numerous derivatives from nouns and adjectives, the umlaut being due to analogy, or to the fact that the basic word has it ; e. g. fürchten, fear, from Furcht ; küssen, kiss, from Kuß ; gründen, found, from Grund ; bäumen, rear, from Baum ; schwärzen, blacken, from schwarz ; öffnen, open, from offen ; grünen, be green, from grün.

394. Denominatives without Umlaut. A verb formed from a noun or adjective is called a 'denominative.' Many such of late origin are formed without umlaut by simply adding en. They are mostly intransitive. Examples : hausen, dwell, from Haus ; wurzeln, be rooted, from Wurzel ; landen, land, from Land ; altern, age, from Alter ; franken, be ill (cf. fränken, grieve) ; erstarken, grow strong (cf. stärken, strengthen).

395. Derivation by Suffix. The verbal suffixes are appended to the root, thus forming a new stem which then receives the n or en of the infinitive. The most important of them are as follows :

1. Ch forms a very few intensives ; e. g. hordchen, hearken, from hören ; schnardchen, snore, from schnarren, utter a harsh sound.

2. El forms iteratives, often with diminutive or derisive force, from verbs, nouns and adjectives ; e. g. tänzelu, caper, from tanzen, dance ; grübeln, grub, from graben, dig ; lächeln, smile, from lachen, laugh ; hüsteln, cough slightly, from husten, cough ; liebeln, make love, 'spoon,' from lieben ; handeln, act, trade, from Hand ; fränkeln, be sickly, from krank.

3. Er forms iteratives and intensives, often with causative force ; e. g. plätschern, splatter, from plätschen, splash ; glimmern, glimmer, from glimmen, shine ; zögern, linger, from ziehen, draw ; stäubern or stöbern, fly like dust, from stauben. In several verbs of this formation the root is onomatopoeic and does not appear in any simpler form ; e. g.

flüßtern, whisper; räuspfern, clear the throat. Different is the ern of verbs derived from adjectives (perhaps comparatives) in er; e. g. säubern, clean, from sauber; vergrößern, enlarge, from größer.

4. Ter, always accented, is of foreign origin, being derived from Fr. ir, ier, in such verbs as partir, étudier. In general the suffix is attached only to foreign roots, as studieren, study; regieren, rule; etablieren, establish; telegraphieren, telegraph. In a few cases, however, the base is German; e. g. buchstabieren, spell, from Buchstabe; stolzieren, strut, from stolz. Verbs in ieren are very numerous, an immense number of them having been coined unnecessarily. The present tendency, at least in dignified writing, is to discard those for which there are good native equivalents; e. g. to use gründen or einrichten for etablieren; ärgern for regieren; ankündigen for annoncieren, etc.

5. Ig, as verbal suffix, is simply the adjectival suffix ig applied at first in such cases as einigen, unite, from einig, or mäßigen, moderate, from mäßig, and then extended by analogy to stems that have no adjective in ig; e. g. reinigen, cleanse, from rein; benachrichtigen, inform, from Nachricht; endigen, end, from Ende.

6. Zen is attached to several pronouns and onomatopoetic roots. The verbs in zen mean to utter the word or sound denoted by the base; e. g. buzen, address with du; ihrzen, address with ihr; ächzen, groan, say ach; seufzen, sigh; schluchzen, sob.

396. Derivation by Prefix. The unaccented inseparable prefixes are briefly treated in Part I, § 208. The account there given is amplified in the following paragraphs:

1. Be, i. e. bei weakened by loss of stress, is thought to have meant originally by, around, on all sides, as in beßneiden, cut around, trim, circumcise. But this force is now rarely apparent. Usually when prefixed to a verbal root be has intensive or perfective force, denoting thoroughness of operation, or the completed effect of the action upon an object; e. g. befragen, ply with questions, question, from fragen, ask; befehen, look at carefully, inspect, from sehen; begraben, bury, from graben, dig; bestehen, withstand, insist, from stehen; bedenken, consider, from denken. Often the difference between the simple verb and the compound is one of construction rather than of meaning; e. g. befolgen, follow (acc.), from folgen (dat.); beachten, heed (acc.), from achten (gen., or acc. with auf).

a. Prefixed to nouns be forms verbs that mean to provide with, bestow, convert into, that which is denoted by the stem; e. g. bemäntehn, mantle, from Mantel; beeinflussen, influence, from Einfluß; befreunden, befriend, from Freund. Some of these derivatives have the suffix er, others ig; e. g. begeistern, inspire, from Geist; bevölkern, people, from Volk; beendigen, terminate, from Ende; beherzigen, encourage, from Herz. A few derivatives in be, from nouns, occur only in the perf. ppl.; e. g. benachbart, neighboring, from Nachbar; bejahrt, along in years, from Jahr.

b. Prefixed to adjectives be forms verbs that mean to invest with, or put in operation, the quality denoted by the stem; e. g. beseligern, make happy, from selig; befähigen, make capable, authorize, from fähig. The stem may be a comparative; e. g. bereichern, enrich, from reich; befördern, further, from vorder.

2. Ent, weak form of the accented ant, in Antwort, meant originally over against, in return; cf. entgelten, re-pay, re-quit. As prefixed to verbal roots it has now two clearly defined uses. First, it forms inchoatives or inchoatives (denoting the beginning of an action); e. g. entblühen, blossom, come to bloom, from blühen; entzünden, kindle, from zünden; einschlafen, fall asleep, from schlafen. Secondly, it denotes separation or removal, involving often a simple undoing or reversal of the action denoted by the root; e. g. entgehen, escape, from gehen; entnehmen, take away, borrow, from nehmen; entdecken, discover, from beden; entbinden, unfasten, deliver, from binden.

a. Prefixed to nouns it has privative force; e. g. enthaupten, behead, from Haupt; entblättern, deprive of leaves, from Blätter; entschädigen, indemnify, from Schade. Before adjectives that contain already the idea of aloofness, separation, it has simply factitive force; e. g. entfremden, alienate, from fremd, strange; entblößen, expose, from bloß, bare; entäußern, alienate, from äußer, outward.

b. Aside from its inchoative and privative use, ent forms a number of verbs in which the force of the prefix is dimly felt, the compound differing but slightly perhaps from the simple verb; e. g. entbieten, offer, from bieten, offer; entrichten, set right, discharge (a debt), from richten, set right; enthalten, contain, from halten, hold.

c. The three verbs empfangen (empfangen), empfehlen, and empfinden, contain the prefix in the form emp, ntf having become mpf.

3. Er, the same as the accented ur in Urquell, ultimately also cognate with aus, out, meant originally out, forth, to the end. According as it looks to the beginning or the end, it forms, from verbal roots: (1) Intransitive inchoatives; e. g. erstehen, stand forth, arise, from stehen; erblühen, blossom, from blühen; erwachen, awaken (come into the state of wakefulness denoted by the durative wachen). (2) Transitive perfectives, denoting attainment of a goal; e. g. erdenken, think out, ex cogitate, from denken; erjagen, hunt down, capture by hunting; erfahren, experience (reach by going, or living); erbetteln, get by begging.

a. Prefixed to adjectives er forms inchoatives and factitives; e. g. erkranken, fall ill; erblinden, become blind; ermuntern, make cheerful, cheer up; erneuern, renew; sich erdreisten, make one's self bold, presume. Cf. also, from a noun-stem, sich ermannen, make one's self a man, nerve one's self.

4. Ge, called by the Grimm Dictionary, which devotes some eighteen pages to it, 'the most wonderful word of our language,' meant originally with, together. Cf. § 388, 4. It is possibly cognate with Lat. cum-, con-, co-. The radical meaning is still dimly felt in gerinnen, run together, curdle, and gefrieren, cool together, freeze, con-geal. (Cf. the nouns Gebrüder, brothers, belonging together in family or firm; Gefährte, fellow-traveler, etc.).

a. From the meaning together came that of fitness, appurtenance; e. g. gehören, belong to; gebühren, best; geziemen, beseem.

b. Hence also the perfective force of ge (cf. Lat. conficio, with facio); e. g. gelangen, arrive at; gereichen, reach to, suffice; geraten, come into; gelingen, get well; gewinnen, gain. Out of this meaning grew its use as sign of the perf. pple. (§ 326, 1).

c. In a few verbs ge has durative force, denoting a permanent or persistent condition; e. g. sich gebären, behave one's self; gedenken, think of, intend; geruhen, please, be minded (not from ruhen, but from an obsolete root cognate with reck); gebären, bear, be in a state of bearing.

d. In many cases, however, the force of ge is quite indeterminate. Indeed some of the explanations given above may be classed as doubtful, and in no case is the force of ge very distinctly felt even by educated speakers. In glauben, Glüd, Gnade, it appears reduced to g.

5. Ger, cognate with for in forgive, at first meant forth, away. Like er it may look to the beginning or the end, and forms, accordingly: (1) Verbs that denote a final departure or removal from a previous status; e. g. vergehen, pass away; vertreiben, drive out; versenden, send away, despatch; vergiesen, pour out, spill. (2) Perfectives that denote a final issue, closing up, using up, or wasting, as the result of the action; e. g. verblühen, go out of bloom, fade; verbluten, bleed to death; fressen, i. e. veressen, eat up, devour; verschwinden, vanish; vergraben, bury; versiegeln, seal up; verbrauchen, use up; verspielen, waste in play.

a. Out of the first meaning grows that which simply negatives the meaning of the basic verb (cf. dis-pense and dis-unite); e. g. verbieten, forbid, from bieten, offer; vergessen, forget, from obsolete geffen, get; verägen, refuse.

b. The final issue being often conceived as wrong, ver comes to mean amiss, wrongly, in excess, too long; e. g. verfehren, pervert (give a wrong turn), from fehren, turn; verkennen, misjudge; verführen, lead astray, seduce; verſitzen, sit too long; verſchlafen, oversleep.

c. Prefixed to a noun or adjective ver has factitive force; e. g. vergolden, gild, from Gold; vergöttern, idolize, from Gott; verewigen, eternalize; verlängern, make longer, from länger.

d. In some cases the perfective force of ver is so weakly felt that the compound hardly differs appreciably from the simple verb; e. g. vermeiden, avoid, and meiden; verleugnen, deny, and leugnen.

6. Ger, without cognate in modern English, means asunder, apart, in pieces; e. g. zerreißen, tear in pieces; zertreten, crush by treading; zerfallen, fall to pieces.

DERIVATION OF PRONOUNS AND PARTICLES

397. The Pronouns. Of the derivation of pronouns there is little to be said. The personal pronouns, as also the simple possessives and demonstratives, are primitive words formed from pronominal roots. The amplified possessive-stems meinig, deinig, etc., have the adjectival suffix ig. Derſelbe is a compound of der and ſelb, cognate with ſelf, which was sometimes uninflected in older German, but is now always inflected with the sense of English same.

1. Of the intensives ſelber, ſelbſt, the former is a stereotyped nom. sing. mas. of ſelb, while the latter comes from the gen. ſelbeſ with exrescent t, due perhaps to superlatives in ſt.

2. The relative pronouns are of secondary origin, der being the demonstrative der, and welch the interrogative welch, which is from the old interrogative stem hva, hve, with suffix lich = like. Welch is thus = what-like. The same suffix appears in ſolch = so-like. Wer and waſ are interrogatives, the r being the ending of the nom. sing. mas., and ſ, representing an older t (cf. Eng. what), that of the neu.

3. The indefinite pronouns are either primitive words (aſſ, ander, beide, jed-, man, viel), compounds of such (jemand = je + man, niemand = nie + man, jedermann = jeder Mann), or they have adjectival suffixes already mentioned (einig, etlich, jeglich, wenig, manch, which is identical with mannig in mannigfalt).

398. The Particles have been pretty fully treated, with respect to their derivation, in preceding sections. Those adverbs which are simply uninflected adjectives have, of course, the derivation of adjectives. On the adverbial suffixes (e)s, enß, linge, wärte, weife, see §§ 373-4.

1. The prepositions and conjunctions are mainly of adverbial origin (§§ 376, 378, 1). For the derivation of those prepositions that are not primitive words consult the list in § 377. The conjunctions are either primitive words and compounds of such, or they have the derivation of adverbs. There are no principles of derivation applicable to them as a class. The same is true of the interjections.

WORD-COMBINATION

COMPOUND NOUNS

399. Of Noun-Composition in General. Two or more words combined into one and used substantively constitute a compound noun. The last element is nearly always a noun, has weak stress and determines the gender and declension of the whole. The first element may be any part of speech; it has strong stress and contains the dominant idea; e. g. Frechtzu'g, freight-train; Schne'Uzu'g, fast train; Ei'jenbahn-Angelegenheiten, railway-affairs.

1. A few compound nouns have an adjective, adverb or phrase as final element; e. g. Ja'hrhu'ndert, century; Le'bewo'hl, farewell; Nimmerlatt, never-full (of a glutton or toper); Stellbichlein, rendez-vous; Springinsfeld, jump-afeld, romp; Garaus (from gar aus), finishing-stroke. But such compounds are comparatively rare and stand apart from the ordinary principles of composition.

400. Compounds of Noun and Noun are the most numerous class. They are formed in German much more freely than in English and hence can not always be translated by an equivalent compound. The important facts relating to them are as follows:

1. The first element may be the simple stem—the earliest mode of composition; e. g. Haus'herr, head of the house; Buchhandlung, bookstore; Waterland, native country.

a. Observe, however, that many nouns now monosyllabic once had a stem-suffix. The final vowel of this suffix, becoming e, rendered the 'stem,' for the purposes of composition, in some cases like the plu., with which it later became confused; e. g. Tagebuch, day-book, diary (not days-book, tho it looks so); Hundsteuer, dog-tax; Pferdefleisch, horse-flesh. In Bräutigam, bridegroom, i. e. bride-man, and Nachtigall, nightingale, i. e. night-singer, the old stem-suffix persists as i.

2. More often the first element is the genitive singular in (e)s, (e)n, or the genitive plural in er, en, e; e. g. Geisteskraft, intellectual power; Knabenalter, boyhood; Frauenkloster, nunnery; Geistesreich, spirit-realm; Gänsestall, goose-pen; Mäusefraß, damage done by the gnawing of mice. Possibly the last two cases should come under 1, a, above.

a. The ending (e)s of mas. and neu. nouns, having come to be felt simply as a connecting link in compounds, was then applied also to feminines, which would not take it as separate words; e. g. Liebesbrief, love-letter; Geburtstag, birthday; Wahrheitsliebe, love of truth; Festungsmauer, fortress-wall. It is thus now quite commonly applied to feminines in t, heit, feit, schaft, ung.

b. So, too, the ending en may be added to fem. nouns in the sing.; e. g. Ehrenwort, word of honor; Sonnenaufgang, sunrise. But these nouns once had en in the gen. regularly. In other cases the final e of a fem. in e is dropped; e. g. Schullehrer, school-teacher.

3. With respect to its meaning the first element may limit the second in almost any syntactic relation. Thus it may be equivalent to

a. An appositive; e. g. Gottmensch, God-man; Sternblume, star-flower.

b. A genitive, which may be: (1) Partitive, as in Landesteil, part of the land, district. (2) Objective, as in Thronbesteigung, mounting of the throne; Kaiserwahl, imperial election. (3) Subjective, as in Blitzschlag, lightning-stroke. (4) Of specification, as in Gefühlsmann, man of feeling. (5) Of connection, as in Fürstenson, son of a prince; Meereswelle, wave of the sea.

c. An accusative, as in Schuhmacher, shoemaker.

d. A prepositional phrase denoting purpose, destination, material, source, instrument, place, manner, etc.; e. g. Wasserglas, glass for water; Strohhut, straw hat; Freudetränen, tears of joy; Dampfschiff, steamboat; Wasserfahrt, journey by water; Fußsoldat, foot-soldier.

4. While in general no hyphen is needed between the parts of a compound, very long or unusual compounds should be bisected or trisected for the convenience of the eye; e. g. Feuerversicherungsgesellschaft, fire-insurance company; Personal-Veränderungs-Nachweisung, report on changes of personnel. But there is no fixed rule on this subject.

401. Compounds of Adjective and Noun. The adjective is uninflected and the compound has a specific meaning, different from that which would be given by the inflected adjective in agreement with the noun; e. g. Jungfrau, young (unmarried) woman; Schwarzwald, Black Forest; Altstadt, old-town, old part of town; Sauertraut, sauerkraut; Heilseher, clairvoyant.

a. A few spurious compounds contain an inflected adjective in agreement; e. g. die La'ngeweile, tedium, gen.-dat. der Lange(n)weile; das Hohelied, Song of Solomon, des Hoheliedes, dem Hoheliede; der Hohepriester, high-priest, ein Hoherpriester, des Hohenpriesters, zwei Hohepriester; der Geheim(e)rat, privy counsellor, ein Geheim(er)rat, des Geheim(en)rats, zwei Geheim(e)räte, die Geheim(en)räte.

1. Substantive adjectives take the form of a weak gen. plu.; e. g. Armensteuer, poor-tax; Krankenhaus, house for the sick, hospital; Heiligenchein, saintly halo.

2. Here belong also compounds of numeral and noun; e. g. Dreieck, triangle; Biergespann, coach and four.

402. Compounds of Verb and Noun. The first element is the simple root, sometimes with a connecting e, which represents an earlier stem-suffix; e. g. Schießpulver, gunpowder, from schießen, shoot; Nennwort, noun, from nennen; Hörsaal, lecture-room, from hören; Lesebuch, reading-book, from lesen; Heischesaß, postulate, from heischen.

403. Compounds of Particle and Noun are quite numerous; e. g. Sawort, assent, from ja; Jetztzeit, present time, from jetzt; Fürwort, pronoun; Anhöhe, acclivity; Worrecht, prerogative; Wißmut, ill-humor; Oberhaupt, chieftain; Unterabteilung, subdivision.

1. Numerous words which might seem at first sight to come under this head are not compounds of particle and noun, but derivatives of a compound verb; e. g. Ausgang, exit, from ausgehen; Wohltat, benefit, from wohlthun; Überzieher, overcoat, from überziehen.

COMPOUND ADJECTIVES

404. Noun and Adjective. This is the most common type of compound adjective. The first element may be the stem or the genitive. It denotes various syntactic relations, which are easily understood. Examples: geistreich, clever, spiritual; geistesarm, intellectually poor; hoffnungsvoll, hopeful; menschenleer, devoid of men, uninhabited; herzenskrank, sick at heart; arbeitsfähig, capable of work.

1. Many compounds of this type imply comparison, the first element being intensive; e. g. riesengroß, tall as a giant, gigantic; blitzschnell, quick as lightning; morgenschön, beautiful as the morning; blutarm, poor to the very blood, very poor (but it may also mean poor in blood); pubelnaß, soaking wet (wet as a poodle emerging from the water).

2. The second element may be a participle (sometimes without ge), the first denoting the object, agent, instrument, or some adverbial relation; e. g. herzerreißend, heart-rending; gottverlassen, God-forsaken; meerumgeben, sea-girt; herzgeliebt, dearly beloved; grundverkehrt, radically perverted; hausbacken, home-baked, homely.

a. Vergeffen, forgotten, occurs with active force as if for vergeßend; e. g. pflichtvergeßen, ehrvergeßen, duty-forgetting, honor-forgetting.

405. Adjective (or Adverb) and Adjective. Compounds of two adjectives, denoting a combination of the two qualities, are quite common. The first has the stem-form and is thus not formally distinguishable from an adverb; e. g. altdeutsch, old German; tollkühn, foolhardy; hellgrün, bright green.

a. Compounds of three adjectives also occur; e. g. althochdeutsch, Old High German; rotweißblau, red white and blue.

1. In such a compound as edel-stumm (G.), tho we can hardly translate it except by nobly mute, edel is not a true adverb. Where the first element is an adverb the second is a participle; e. g. neubaden, new-baked; halbwachsen, half-grown; heißgeliebt, fervently loved; hoch-gepriesen, highly-praised.

2. A noun with preceding adjectival modifier is converted into a compound adjective by means of the suffixes ig, ig, ig, both elements taking the stem-form; e. g. einäugig, one-eyed; altmodig, old-fashioned; fremdsprachig, pertaining to foreign languages. The usual suffix is ig.

406. Other Types of Compound Adjective occur, but are less common. Thus the first element may be:

1. The pronoun selbst; e. g. selbstverständlich, obvious.
2. A verbal root; e. g. lerneifrig, eager to learn; denkwürdig, memorable.
3. A participle; e. g. anstellig, handy; abholb, ungracious.

OTHER COMPOUNDS

407. The Composition of Verbs, the subject being bound up with that of conjugation, has been fully treated in preceding sections. For inseparable composition see §§ 206-8 and 396; for compounds of separable particle and verb, §§ 210-12 and 341; for compounds of adjective and verb, or noun and verb, §§ 213 and 342; for compounds of compounds, §§ 214 and 343.

408. Compound Particles generally accent the second element. A compound adverb may consist of (1) noun + adverb, as stromauf, upstream; (2) adverb (preposition) + adverb, as sofort, at once; dahin, thither; umher, round about; überaus, altogether; zugleich, at the same time; (3) preposition + case, as überhaupt, in general; vorhanden, at hand, extant; inzwischen, meanwhile.

a. But the first element receives the accent if it is a pronoun or adjective, or if it is formed by means of one of the adverbial suffixes; e. g. be'mgemäß, accordingly; be'rgehalt, in such way; mei'netwegen, on my account; a'llerdings, to be sure; neu'erbings, recently; a'ndernfalls, in the other event; vo'rmitags, forenoons; zu'sehen, visibly; tei'lweise, partly. Some other exceptions occur; e. g. au'ßerhalb, and other compounds of halb, i'rgendwo, be'nnoch. Ei'nmal, means once (and no more); einma'l, once (upon a time), just.

1. Compound prepositions consist of preposition + case; e. g. an'sta'tt, instead; in'fo'ge, in consequence of. Binnen is a compound of bei and the adverb innen. For others consult the list in § 377.

2. Compound conjunctions consist of two adverbs or of conjunction + adverb; e. g. wiewohl, altho; sobald, as soon as; obgleich, obwohl, altho. Dieweil, archaic for because, is the adverbial acc. die Weil(e), the while.

THE SENTENCE

409. Since the analysis of the sentence and the nomenclature applicable thereto are the same for German as for English, a brief treatment of the subject in its general aspects will be sufficient.

410. The Simple Sentence consists of a single subject and a single verb, each perhaps with modifiers. The subject is always a noun or pronoun. The modifiers of the subject may be: article, attributive adjective, limiting genitive, adnominal phrase, appositive (appositional predicate) and sometimes an adverb. The modifiers of the verb may be: object, predicate adverb, dependent infinitive.

1. With respect to its form the simple sentence is either (1) assertive, as er hat das Ziel erreicht, he has reached the goal; (2) interrogative, as hat er das Ziel erreicht? (3) optative-imperative, as möge er das Ziel erreichen, may he reach the goal, or er behalte das Ziel im Auge, let him keep the goal in view. To these may be added (4) the exclamatory type, which, however, may have the dependent form; e. g. wie schnell er das Ziel erreicht hat! how quickly he has reached the goal! Cf. § 413, 1, b.

a. An initial verb with following doch renders an assertive sentence emphatic; e. g. ist doch die Stadt wie gefehrt (G.), really the city is as if swept. Cf. § 419, 5.

b. Any of the above forms may be negated by the adverb nicht. As in English, double negation is now regarded as vulgar and ungrammatical, but it is common in the spoken language and is found abundantly in the best literature of all periods; e. g. es ist als hätte niemand nichts zu treiben (G.), it is as if no one had anything to do; nur kein Geld hat sie nicht (L.), only she hasn't any money. See the multitude of examples in the Grimm Dictionary, under sein.

c. A pleonastic nicht may occur (1) in exclamatory sentences, (2) in dependent clauses after a verb of denying, doubting, forbidding, hindering, or the like, and (3) after a comparative; e. g. from Gleim, wie munter war sie nicht! how lively she was! i. e. what degree of liveliness did she not exhibit? wie schwer sind nicht die Mittel zu erwerben (G.)! how hard the means are to obtain! ich will zwar nicht leugnen, daß an diesen Büchern nicht manches zu verbessern sein sollte (L.), I will not deny that many things in these books might be capable of improvement; wer zweifelt, daß ihr nicht . . . die Großmuth selber seid (L.)? who doubts that you are magnanimity itself? das ist sogar unendlich wahrer als ihr es selbst nicht empfindet (G.), that is indeed infinitely more true than you yourself feel. This last usage is due to French influence and has now gone out of vogue.

411. The Compound Sentence consists of two or more simple sentences co-ordinately connected; e. g. die Kunst ist lang, und kurz ist unser Leben (G.), art is long and our life is short.

a. A sentence consisting of two connected subjects with one verb, or of two verbs with one subject, may be classed as 'partly compound.'

1. The conjunctions that unite the members of a compound sentence are the general connectives (§ 379) and the adverbial conjunctions (§ 380).

412. The Complex Sentence consists of two sentences, one of which is subordinate to some word in the other; e. g. ich sehe nicht, warum du fragst, I do not see why you ask. The important characteristic of the dependent clause is the final position of the verb.

1. A clause may be dependent in fact without being so in form; e. g. geschrieben steht: im Anfang war das Wort, it is written: in the beginning was the word.

2. Every dependent clause performs the function of a substantive, an adjective, or an adverb. We have to do, therefore, with three kinds of

DEPENDENT CLAUSES

413. Substantive Clauses are introduced by daß, a relative pronoun, or an indirect interrogative. The latter may be either an interrogative pronoun, a compound of wo, or one of the conjunctions ob, wann, wie, wo, rarely als.

1. The clause may be subject, object (of verb or preposition), predicate, or appositive; e. g. was wirklich ist, ist vernünftig, what is real is rational; wie sie die Augen niederschlägt, hat tief sich in mein Herz geprägt (G.), her way of casting down her eyes has impressed itself deeply on my heart; ich fühle wohl, daß mich der Herr nur schon (G.), I feel sure that you are only sparing me; du bist am Ende—was du bist (G.), you are after all—what you are; er sündigt, ohne daß er es weiß, he sins without knowing it; der Satz, daß alle Menschen gleich sind, the proposition that all men are equal.

a. As to the mode and tense of object-clauses, see §§ 360-61.

b. The omission of the verb before object-clauses with was, wie, was für, has given rise to exclamatory sentences of dependent form; e. g. was du nicht alles zu erzählen hast (G.)! what all haven't you to tell! wie alles sich zum Ganzen webt (G.)! how everything weaves itself into a whole! But exclamatory sentences do not by any means always have this form. Cf. Goethe's wie lieb' ich dich! wie blüht dein Auge! wie liebst du mich!

c. A substantive clause is often anticipated by a compound of da; e. g. der Wert der Erfindung besteht darin, daß sie überall anwendbar ist, the value of the invention consists therein that it is universally applicable. So a daß-clause may follow an interjection; e. g. ach! daß die Menschen so unglücklich sind (G.)! alas, that people are so unfortunate!

d. Clauses with als ob, or als with inversion (§ 359, 3, a), while formally adverbial, sometimes have substantive character; e. g. damit Sie nicht glauben, als handelte ich übereilt (G.), that you may not believe that I acted overhastily.

414. Adjective Clauses modify a noun or pronoun and are introduced by a relative pronoun, a compound of wo (rarely da), or one of the conjunctions als, da, wann (rare), wenn, wie, wo; e. g. der Gott, der Eisen wachsen ließ (Arndt), the God who caused iron to grow ; den lieb' ich, der Unmögliche begehrt (G.), I love him who desires the impossible ; man durchsuchte alle Örter, wo Fremde wohnen konnten (S.), all places where strangers might dwell ; die Zeiten, da ich noch selbst im Werden war (G.), the time when I myself was still growing.

415. Adverbial Clauses either define an adverb or limit the verb of the main sentence. They are introduced by the subordinating conjunctions and may be classified as follows (see § 381 for further examples and comments).

1. Local, introduced by wo and its compounds, rarely by da; e. g. bleibt, wo ihr seid, remain where you are ; überall, wohin mein Fuß mich trug (S.), everywhere where my feet carried me.

2. Temporal, introduced by als, bevor, bis, da, ehe, indem, indes, nachdem, seit(bem), sobald, solange, so oft, wann (archaic), wenn, während, wie, wo and its compounds ; e. g. damals schien er mir gewandt, als ich ihn noch nicht verstand (G.), at that time he seemed to me clever when I did not yet understand him ; bleibt doch, bis meine Wirtin kommt (S.), remain, won't you, until my wife comes.

3. Conditional, introduced by als with inversion (§ 359, 3, a), als ob, als wenn, es sei denn daß (§ 359, 1, a), falls, im Falle daß, so (archaic), wenn ; e. g. wir könnten viel, wenn wir zusammenstünden (S.), we could do much if we stood together. For the mode of conditional clauses see § 359.

a. As a variety of conditional clause we may regard the restrictive clause introduced by inwiefern, inwieweit, sofern, soweit, wofern ; e. g. er ehrt die Wissenschaft, sofern sie nützt (G.), he honors science so far as it is useful.

b. A conditional clause is often thrown into the form of an interrogative sentence ; e. g. o, gibt es Geister in der Luft (G.), O, if there are spirits in the air.

4. Concessive, introduced by obgleich, ob schon, obwohl, ob zwar, so + adverb or adjective, wenn auch, wenn gleich, wenn schon, wiewohl, wie auch, trotzdem daß, ungeachtet daß ; e. g. gehörchen will ich, ob ich gleich hier noch manches sagen könnte (G.), I will obey, tho I might say much on this point ; so gut man wählt, kann man sich doch betrügen, however well one chooses (tho one choose ever so well), one may be mistaken.

a. Concession can be expressed by simple inversion with following gleich, auch, schon, und (§ 379, 4, a); e. g. ist gleich die Zahl nicht voll (S.), altho the number is not complete; und sollt' er auch straucheln überall (S.), and tho he should stumble everywhere.

5. Causal, introduced by da, indem, weil, zumal (ba); e. g. ich kann fröhlich scheiden, da meine Augen diesen Tag gesehen (S.), I can depart happy, since my eyes have seen this day.

6. Proportional, introduced by je, je nachdem, wie; e. g. je eher du zu uns zurückekehrst, je schöner wirst du uns willkommen sein (G.), the sooner you return to us, etc.

7. Comparative, introduced by als, wie, gleichwie, sowie; e. g. der träge Gang des Krieges tat dem König ebensoviel Schaden, als er den Rebellen Vorteil brachte (S.), the slow progress of the war injured the king just as much as it profited the rebels; ihr seht die Sachen, wie man die Sachen eben sieht (G.), you see things as people do just see them.

a. The clauses with als ob, als wenn, classed above as conditional, are strictly a combination of comparative and conditional.

b. Where the verb is the same in both clauses, it is often omitted in the second, just as in English; e. g. du nimmst es höher, als ich selbst (es nehme) (G.), you take it more seriously than I myself.

8. Final, denoting purpose, and introduced by daß, damit, auf daß (archaic); e. g. eilt heim mit sorgender Seele, damit er die Frist nicht verfehle (S.), hurries home with anxious heart, in order that he may not fail to be on time.

9. Consecutive, denoting result, and introduced by daß, usually with preceding so, der Art, dergestalt, etc.; e. g. der Wind wehte so stark, daß wir kaum rudern konnten, the wind blew so hard that we could scarcely row.

a. The peculiar use of the daß-clause after a comparative or zu (§ 367, 5, a) grew out of an ellipsis of so; i. e. er ist größer (zu groß), als daß der Neid ihm Schaden könnte, he is too great for envy to injure him, stands for er ist größer als so groß, daß, etc.

WORD-ORDER

416. Types of Word-Order. We have to distinguish three types of word-order according as the finite verb occupies second place, first place, or last place, in relation to other elements of the sentence.

a. Essentially, then, the subject of word-order is all bound up in the position of the finite verb. This is the basis of classification and the point which should receive the learner's attention before everything else.

1. That arrangement in which the finite verb occupies second place may be called the assertive order. It presents two cases. If the subject precedes, as in er ist da, we have the normal order. If an adjunct of the verb precedes, thus requiring the subject to follow the verb, as in da ist er, we have the inverted order.

a. The terms 'normal' and 'inverted' are used in a somewhat conventional sense. It is not to be understood that the order er ist da is either more ancient or more common than the order da ist er. From the German point of view there would be no serious impropriety in taking the latter as the starting-point, and regarding the former as an 'inversion.' Indeed, some recent grammarians ignore this distinction entirely and call every sentence 'normal' in which the finite verb occupies second place. It is, however, convenient for some purposes to keep the term 'inversion' in its traditional sense.

2. That arrangement in which the finite verb occupies first place, as in ist er da, may be called the interrogative order, tho its use is not confined to interrogative sentences.

3. That arrangement in which the finite verb occupies last place, as in (ich weiß nicht) ob er da ist, being characteristic of dependent clauses, may be called the dependent order.

417. The Normal Order is used for independent assertive sentences in which no other element precedes the subject in order of thought. The arrangement is: first, the subject and its modifiers; second, the finite verb; third, the adjuncts of the verb; last, the non-finite part of the verb. Examples: der Schäfer putzte sich zum Tanz (G.), the shepherd dressed himself for the dance; das enge Leben steht mir gar nicht an (G.), the narrow life does not suit me at all; ihr habt ihn treulich eingesungen (G.), you have faithfully sung him to sleep.

1. Observe that in the normal order the finite verb must have second place; no adjunct of the verb may intervene between it and the subject. Thus, where English says I really believe, he soon returned, etc., German says ich glaube wirklich, er kehrte bald zurück.

a. A few words are excepted from this rule, namely: aber, quite frequently; auch, when its force falls on the preceding subject; sometimes also doch, indessen, jedoch, dagegen, trotzdem, nämlich, also, and a few others; e. g. das also war des Pudels Kern (G.), so that was the kernel of the poodle. Other exceptions may occur in case of phrases possessing a quasi-adnominal character; e. g. Morley, in seiner englischen Literaturgeschichte, fügt Angaben . . . bei (Scherer), Morley, in his History of English Literature, adds statements, etc. So very often in poetry, which cares little for rules of order; e. g. der alte Winter, in seiner Schwäche, zog sich in rauhe Berge zurück (G.), Old Winter, in his weakness, has retired, etc.

b. There is, however, no limit to the number of words, phrases and even clauses, which may precede the finite verb, provided that they all belong to the subject and so form one element of the sentence; e. g. König Jakob von England, der gleichgültig zugeesehen hatte, wie sein Eidam die böhmische Krone verlor, erwachte aus seiner Fühllosigkeit (S.), King James of England, who had looked on indifferently while his son-in-law lost the Bohemian crown, awoke from his apathy.

2. The non-finite part of the verb (i. e. the infinitive or participle of a compound tense, or an adverb that has become so closely associated with the verb as to form a part of it, under the name of a 'separable prefix') comes last, a participle preceding an infinitive; e. g. er reist morgen ab, he departs to-morrow; er wird morgen abreisen, he will depart to-morrow; er ist schon abgereist, he has already departed; er wird wohl schon abgereist sein, he has probably departed already.

3. As to the adjuncts of the verb (object, predicate-word, adverb), these are arranged after the finite verb in accordance with principles to be explained below (§ 421-4). The arrangement of these elements is the same in all three (or four) types of word-order.

4. While the normal order is most common in assertive sentences, it is also frequently used for imperative sentences; e. g. er stehe fest und sehe hier sich um (G.), let him stand fast and look about him here.

418. The Inverted Order is used for independent assertive sentences, in which some adjunct of the verb comes first in order of thought. The arrangement is the same as in the normal order, except that the subject follows the verb instead of preceding it; e. g. den Göttern gleich' ich nicht (G.), I am not like the gods; ungern heb' ich das Gastrecht auf (G.), I do not like to refuse hospitality; doch ist es jedem eingeboren (G.), yet it is natural to every one.

a. The element put first may be an adverb, object, predicate-word, or a part of the verb itself. The initial position does not necessarily imply emphasis any more than in the case of the subject. In talk it simply reflects the order in which the thought presents itself to the speaker's mind. In studied writing it may be a matter of style.

1. Observe then that when an adjunct of the verb begins the sentence, the finite verb itself must have second place: neither the subject nor any second adjunct may intervene before the verb. Where, then, English says true it is; money I have not; evidently you are wrong; beautiful to be sure she is not, German must say: wahr ist es; Geld habe ich nicht; offenbar haben Sie unrecht; schön ist sie freilich nicht.

a. An exception to this rule is permitted in the case of doch, ja, nämlich, and, in general, of any adverb which is separated by a pause from what follows and hence is not felt as beginning the sentence; e. g. doch viel ist mir bewußt (G.), yet much is known to me; gewiß, Albert ist der beste Mensch unter dem Himmel (G.), certainly, Albert is the best man under the sun. The same principle applies also, of course, to interjections; e. g. fürwahr! es ist sehr wohl getan (G.), forsooth, it is very well done. To bring a word under this exception it is not necessary that the separating pause be written. Thus in the last two examples Goethe actually wrote: gewiß Albert ist, and fürwahr es ist.

b. For a similar reason the general connectives, und, aber, allein, sondern, denn, and entweder . . . oder, precede the subject without causing inversion; they are not felt as adjuncts of the verb, but simply as connecting links.

c. Excepted from the rule, again, are initial adverbs the force of which is felt with the subject rather than with the verb; e. g. auch ich, I too; selbst der König, even the king; nur der, only he.

d. From the general principle stated above it follows that a sentence should not begin with two adverbs, unless they are so connected as to form in reality but one element of the sentence; e. g. den andern Morgen war leider das magische Gerüst wieder verschwunden (G.), the next morning, alas, the magic stage had again disappeared. Here one could not say den andern Morgen leider war, nor leider den andern Morgen war, tho it would be permissible to say den andern Morgen, leider, war, since the pause makes leider parenthetical and thus deprives it of the character of a direct adjunct of war verschwunden. On the other hand, connected adverbs count as one element; e. g. gegen Abend um die bestimmte Zeit ward Wilhelm abgeholt (G.), toward evening at the appointed time they called for Wilhelm.

2. A preceding subordinate clause having the value of an object or an adverb has the same effect upon the order as any other object or adverb; e. g. ob er gefährlich verwundet ist, wissen wir nicht (L.), whether he is dangerously wounded we do not know; als ich noch ein Knabe war (G.), sperrte man mich ein, when I was yet a boy they shut me up.

a. Such a clause is very often resumed by a pronoun or an adverb, which makes the inversion easier; thus in the last two examples one might say ob er gefährlich verwundet ist, das wissen wir nicht; als ich noch ein Knabe war, da sperrte man mich ein. When there is no resuming particle, the subject is sometimes allowed to precede the verb; e. g. wie es in solchen Fällen zu gehen pflegte, niemand war vorbereitet (G.), as is wont to happen in such cases, no one was prepared.

b. Parenthetical sentences meaning said he, thought he, and the like, put the verb first because what precedes is the object; e. g. „verzeih' mir," sagte Wilhelm lächelnd (G.), 'pardon me,' said Wilhelm with a smile.

3. An appositive preceding the subject is treated like an adjunct of the verb and causes inversion; e. g. nachdenkend über dieses Abenteuer, ging er nach seinem Zimmer (G.), meditating upon this adventure, he went to his room.

4. The usual position of the subject in the inverted order is immediately after the verb, but an unemphatic pronoun or adverb may come between; e. g. auf dem Schauplatze hatten sich viele Zuschauer eingefunden (G.), in the theater a number of spectators had found places; endlich kamen wirklich Menschen an (G.), at last persons actually arrived.

5. If an inverted clause is followed by another co-ordinate clause having the same subject, an adverb may not precede the second verb unless the subject is repeated; e. g. da kam sie zu einem königlichen Garten und beim Mondenschein sah sie, daß — (G.), thereupon she came to a royal garden and saw by the moonlight that —. Here it would have been equally correct to say und sah beim Mondenschein, daß, but not und beim Mondenschein sah, daß.

a. For the unnecessary resumption of the subject after und by means of derselbe, see § 379, 4.

b. If the second clause of the compound sentence has a new subject, it usually stands in the normal order; e. g. endlich kam er zurück, und sie begrüßte ihn mit Freude, at last he came back and she greeted him with joy.

6. The effect of inversion without the form of it can be produced by using the expletive es to anticipate a subject which, for stylistic, metrical or other reasons, it is desired to have follow the verb; e. g. es reden und träumen die Menschen viel (S.), men talk and dream much; es irrt der Mensch, so lang er strebt (G.), man errs as long as he strives.

419. The Interrogative Order puts the finite verb first. It is used:

1. In all interrogative sentences except such as begin with an interrogative pronoun; e. g. kennst du den Faust (G.)? knowest thou Faust? was wettet ihr (G.)? what will you wager? wer weiß? who knows?

2. In optative sentences; e. g. wären wir nur den Berg vorbei (G.), would that we were past the hill.

a. But the subject may precede in an optative sentence; e. g. des Himmels Heere mögen dich bedecken (U.), may heaven's hosts protect thee. So, too, with the real subject anticipated by es; e. g. es lebe die Freiheit, long live freedom.

3. In imperative sentences, more especially when the verb is in the second person; e. g. beträc̃ht' iħn reĉt (G.), look at him carefully; fñħre du mein Ĥeer (S.), lead thou my army; bezähme jeder die gereĉte Wut (S.), let every one control his righteous wrath; geſteħ' iĉ's nur (G.), just let me confess.

a. But imperative sentences may also take the normal or the inverted order, especially in the third person; e. g. er ſteħe feſt und ſeħe ĥier ſiĉ um (G.), let him stand firm and look about him here; jeħt geħe jeder ſeines Weges ſill (S.), now let each quietly go his way; doĉ geħen wir (G.), but let us go.

4. In conditional sentences; e. g. irre iĉ niĉt, if I am not mistaken; ĥat etwās Wert, eſ muĉ zu Tage kommen (G.), if a thing has value, it must come to the light.

5. In emphatic assertive sentences, the verb being usually followed by doĉ; e. g. ſind doĉ ein wunderliĉ Volf die Weiber (G.), indeed, women are a strange race. Such a sentence is often best translated by a question.

a. In older German the finite verb might come first without special emphasis, and traces of this freedom are preserved in poetry; e. g. ſaħ ein Knab' ein Röslein ſteħn, a boy saw a little rose growing. But in prose one would now need to say: Eſ ſaħ ein Knab' u. ſ. w.

420. The Dependent Order is used in dependent clauses introduced by a relative pronoun or particle, an indirect interrogative, or a subordinating conjunction; e. g. iĉ bin der Geiſt, der ſtets verneint (G.), I am the spirit that always denies; weħ mir, wenn du niĉts Beſſereſ weiĉt (G.), woe is me if you know of nothing better; wer weiĉ, wo nun eſ die vier Winde ĥaben (G.), who knows where the four winds have it now?

a. A sentence may be logically but not formally dependent, i. e. it may be without a subordinating conjunction. Such a clause takes the normal order; e. g. du ſieħſt, ein Ĥund und kein Geſpenſt iſt da (G.), you see, a dog and no spirit is there; ſie meint, du ſieeſt entfloħen (G.), she thinks you have run away.

b. In the universality of its application the dependent order is a comparatively recent development of literary usage. Early modern German allows the finite verb considerable freedom of position, and this freedom it still preserves in colloquial language and in poetry; e. g. wenn es nicht wär' durch falsche Leut' verraten worden (G.), if it had not been betrayed by treacherous persons; ich weiß nicht, was soll es bedeuten (Heine), I know not what to make of it; wenn ich so saß bei einem Gelag (G.), when I would be sitting thus at a revel; wenn mit Blumen die Erde sich kleidet neu, wenn die Brunnlein fließen im lieblichen Mai (S.), when the earth clothes itself anew with flowers, when the springs flow in lovely May.

1. A special case is presented by the compound tenses of the modal auxiliaries and those verbs (§ 326, 1, b), which follow their analogy in substituting what looks like the infinitive for the participle. In such case the tense-auxiliary precedes the two 'infinitives' and may be separated from them by intervening words; e. g. ich sehe nicht, wie mein Bruder hätte schöner ausgebildet werden können (G.), I do not see how my brother could have been better educated.

a. Lessing is fond of omitting the tense-auxiliary in such cases; e. g. so merken die Ausleger sehr wohl an, daß der Dichter hierdurch jene als Barbaren, diese als gesittete Völker schildern wollen, the commentators remark very properly that the poet intended by this to represent the former as barbarians, the latter as civilized people.

b. Aside from the case just mentioned, some writers occasionally prefer to place the tense-auxiliary before instead of after the perfect infinitive of a compound tense; e. g. es scheint dem Leser weit kürzer auf dem Papiere, als es den Zuschauern wird vorgekommen sein (L.), it seems to the reader much shorter on paper than it probably appeared to the spectators.

2. The dependent order may occur in exclamatory sentences thru the omission of a governing verb; e. g. wie sich die platten Burſche freuen (G.)! how the low fellows enjoy themselves!

3. The subject of a dependent clause usually stands just after the introductory connective, but a short unemphatic pronoun or adverb often intervenes before it; e. g. du stehst nur hier, weil dich mein Vater brauchte (G.), you only stand here because my father used you.

4. In old German the finite verb might stand at the end in sentences not dependent, and traces of this freedom are preserved in poetry; e. g. denk', Kind, um alles in der Welt, der Herr dich für ein Fräulein hält (G.), the gentleman takes you for a fine young lady.

POSITION OF ADJUNCTS

421. Adjuncts of the Noun. An attributive adjective or participle precedes its noun and is preceded by its own modifiers; e. g. von echtem, aus der Quelle geschöpftem Golde (G.), of genuine gold obtained from the source; ein berühmter, und damals wegen seiner Talente sehr geschätzter Weltmann (G.), a gentleman of reputation, who was at that time very much esteemed for his talents.

1. An appositive generally follows its noun, but may precede; if an adjective or participle, it usually follows its own modifiers, but may precede them for stylistic reasons. Thus it would be natural to say: durch diese Worte tief gerührt, brach sie in Tränen aus, deeply touched by these words, she burst into tears. But if a relative clause were to follow Worte, one might prefer to change the order and say: tief gerührt durch diese Worte, die offenbar vom Herzen kamen, brach sie in Tränen aus.

2. A limiting genitive, except a proper name, generally follows its noun, but exceptions are very frequent, especially in poetry.

422. Adjuncts of the Verb: A General Principle. The adjuncts of the verb come in the reverse order of their importance, the more weighty elements tending toward the end.

1. Observe that this is only a general tendency, the operation of which is more or less crossed and interfered with by other considerations. As a tendency, however, it is important. It explains, in the first place, the final position of the infinitive or participle of a compound tense: these, being felt as parts of the verb, are of course highly essential elements of the predication.

2. The same principle explains the final position of an adverb, adjective, noun or phrase, that has become so intimately associated with the verb as to form a part of it; e.g. auf in aussprechen; bloß in bloßstellen; Teil in teilnehmen; in Stand in instandsetzen.

3. So, too, we can account for the final position of a predicate adjective in relation to a limiting genitive; e.g. du bist dir nur des einen Triebes bewußt (G.), thou art conscious only of the one impulse. Here bewußt is felt as the important element of the predication. On the other hand a weighty prepositional phrase may easily follow a predicate adjective; e.g. sie ist sehr stolz auf ihre Schönheit, she is very proud of her beauty.

423. Position of Objects. From the general principle just stated it follows that short, unemphatic, pronominal objects tend toward the beginning; e.g. ich kenne ihn schon seit Jahren, I have known him these many years; ich habe ihm längst vergeben, I have long since forgiven him.

1. The least emphatic pronouns are es and the reflexive, which accordingly precede; e.g. ich gab es dir, I gave it to you; sie nähert sich ihm, she approaches him. As between these two sich comes first, but with exceptions.

2. In general a direct object (especially if it denote a person) is of more importance than an indirect object (especially if it denote a thing), and hence comes nearer the end; e.g. der Anblick gibt den Engeln Stärke, the sight gives strength to the angels. But where both objects are persons, or both things, this relation may easily be reversed; e.g. sie stellte den Herrn ihrem Bruder vor, she introduced the gentleman to her brother; er widmete seine Kräfte dem Dienste des Vaterlands, he devoted his powers to the service of his country.

a. On the other hand an accusative object very regularly precedes a genitive or a prepositional phrase; e.g. der lange Krieg beraubte das Vaterland seiner kräftigsten Söhne (Gr.), the long war robbed the country of its strongest sons; er befreite die Philosophie von ihren Fesseln, freed philosophy from its fetters.

424. Position of Adverbs. The general rule is that the adverbs of direction (auf, ab, her, hin, etc.) are of most importance: they accordingly come last under the name of separable prefixes; e. g. die Sonne geht jetzt um 6 Uhr auf, the sun rises now at 6 o'clock.

1. Next in importance are the negative adverbs nicht, nie, niemals, keineswegs; these accordingly tend toward the end, especially in emphatic negations; e. g. das Leben ist der Güter höchstes nicht (S.), life is not the highest of blessings; daß die Beschränkung die Unendlichkeit keineswegs ausschliesse (S.), that limitation by no means excludes infinity; ich kann die Stelle nicht übersetzen, I can not translate the passage.

a. But a negative adverb that is not felt as an adjunct of the verb usually stands before the particular word or phrase that it modifies; thus one would ordinarily say in prose: das Leben ist nicht das höchste der Güter.

2. An adverb of time generally precedes one of place or manner; that is, among the relations denoted by adverbs that of manner or degree is more important than that of place, place more important than time. But this order of precedence varies easily under the influence of special emphasis.

425. Dependent Infinitives are preceded by their own modifiers; e. g. du brauchst dich nicht darüber zu ängstigen, you do not need to trouble yourself about that; Wilhelm konnte sich nicht entschließen, die Rolle des lebenden Königs dem Pedanten zu überlassen, could not make up his mind to leave the role of the living king to the pedant.

1. The prepositional infinitive is often incorporated in the sentence as one of the verbal adjuncts, especially if it stands alone or has no modifier of great importance; e. g. das Mädchen fing zu weinen an, began to cry; da sie zu weinen anfang, as she began to cry. But one would say: sie fing an, heftig zu weinen; da sie anfang, heftig zu weinen.

426. Dependent Clauses. Since dependent clauses have the value of substantives, adverbs or adjectives, their position falls under the rules already given. Thus:

1. An adverbial clause should not intervene between subject and verb in the normal order. Such a type of sentence as the party, tho it had suffered defeat, was not discouraged, must become: die Partei war, obwohl sie eine Niederlage erlitten hatte, keineswegs entmutigt; or else: die Partei war keineswegs entmutigt, obwohl sie, etc.; or else: obwohl die Partei eine Niederlage erlitten hatte, war sie, etc.

2. So, too, a sentence should not begin with two adverbial clauses. In English we may say: As soon as the horses were ready, altho it was still very early, we got under way. This becomes in German: Sobald die Pferde bereit waren, machten wir uns, obwohl es noch sehr früh war, auf den Weg; or else: machten wir uns auf den Weg, obwohl es noch sehr früh war.

3. Whether a dependent clause should be incorporated in the structure of the main sentence or attached to it as an appendix, is a question of style. An important principle is that a sentence should not end weakly after a subordinate clause. Thus one would not say: er fuhr, sobald er gefrühstückt hatte, ab, but er fuhr ab, sobald er gefrühstückt hatte, he left as soon as he had breakfasted. On the other hand one might very well say: er fuhr, sobald er gefrühstückt hatte, in der größten Eile ab.

4. To explain further the principles according to which clauses are concatenated into more or less elaborate periods, is the province of a treatise on style, rather than of a grammar.

That is easy to say but hard to practice. 8. It was to be expected (§ 366, 1, a) that you would lose your way. 9. I like it better at home; I have never been drawn (§ 303, 1) to foreign parts. 10. It may be hoped that the great riddle is at last solved. 11. God be praised, the child is found. 12. My greetings to thee (§ 344, 1), thou lofty house!

EXERCISE XXI

TENSES OF THE INDICATIVE

§§ 348-53

1. To-morrow I celebrate my twentieth birthday. 2. I am going into the garden — shall be back in ten minutes. 3. You just run and get me my purse. 4. He will do no more harm; I have killed him. 5. I know secret ways that no man ever trod. 6. Where, I wonder, did he pass (§ 353, 1) the night? 7. Show the lawyer this letter and you (will) have won your case. 8. A good man will always choose the better part. 9. His life is over (= he has lived), the stroke of death has fallen. 10. The inn where we spent the summer three years ago is closed. 11. I shall certainly visit you as often as I have time. 12. I think that I saw him last evening in the theater. 13. I learned German years ago as a child. 14. There will be singing and dancing until the sun rises.

EXERCISE XXII

IMPERATIVE AND OPTATIVE SUBJUNCTIVE

§ § 355-7

1. Let there be truth between us. 2. Let him go his way. 3. Let him be bound (§ 199, 1) to the linden tree yonder. 4. Let us go home; it is getting dark already. 5. Let some one mount the tower and see how things (§ 303, 4) are going. 6. Let him rest in peace! 7. May he rest in peace! 8. Be the story true or false, it is at any rate interesting. 9. Were I only well, how happy I should be! 10. May the day never appear! 11. Oh, that I had never lived to look on that! 12. God help the poor people! 13. Let no one enter the room, whoever he may be. 14. I shall not see him, unless it be (§ 356, 1, a) that he comes here.

EXERCISE XXIII

POTENTIAL AND UNREAL SUBJUNCTIVE

§ § 358-9

1. How would it be with you if I should withdraw my army? 2. We could do much if we stood together. 3. If I had arrived a moment earlier I might have saved her life. 4. I couldn't state the true reason. 5. I should not like to assert such a thing. 6. I should think it would be better not to answer the letter at all. 7. So that's (§ 358, 2) finished! Well, what next? 8. There, now you have my reasons! I say no more. 9. Can it be that he is back already? it seems impossible. 10. So (you think) there is nothing more to be feared? 11. What? (you say) it was robbers who attacked us? 12. Had I only known the truth, I could have helped you. 13. It was as if something strange were coming between them. 14. It was almost as if he had now reached the goal of his journey. 15. The end of the letter was exactly as if he had written it himself. 16. Some books appear to be written not that one may learn from them, but that one may know that the author knew something.

EXERCISE XXIV

DEPENDENT SUBJUNCTIVE

§ § 360-1

1. Do you think I am a child? 2. Socrates believed that the soul of man is immortal. 3. The belief that life is good is natural to man. 4. They felt that without freedom everything was lost. 5. He said that he should return on the morrow. 6. She demanded that I give back all the letters that she might have written to me. 7. They said that I had not changed, only my face was pale. 8. I have no other wish than that you should be friends. 9. No one knew who he was or how he lived. 10. My guide asserted that he did not know whence the robbers came. 11. She wrote me a week ago that she was lying ill in bed and could not even read. 12. The boys reported that the bear was right at hand; that they had themselves seen him and had then run away in fear.

EXERCISE XXV

THE INFINITIVE

1. Acting is easy, thinking is difficult, says Goethe. 2. The life of a woman is an eternal going and coming, or lifting and carrying. 3. Doing right causes (one) to rest quietly. 4. To die is nothing, but to live and not to be able to see, that is a misfortune. 5. I feel myself becoming gradually young again. 6. It is hard to swim against the stream.

7. In this room there must be no smoking. 8. He has never learned to swim; who will help me save him? 9. It befits a noble man to heed the word of women. 10. I am ready to accompany you. 11. The question is hard to answer. 12. Suddenly I heard my name called from the distance. 13. To satisfy the mother, I had a doctor summoned. 14. I am too old merely to play, too young to be without a wish.

EXERCISE XXVI

THE PARTICIPLE

§§ 368-71

1. She has been ailing these two weeks. 2. We went against the danger (that was) threatening us. 3. A drunken man is always repulsive. 4. The task in question was satisfactorily (satisfyingly) performed. 5. The ancients imagined their gods as living in Olympus. 6. The letters that have reached (§ 369, 1) me say not a word of this intended journey. 7. Boldly ventured is half won. 8. The concert did not please me at all, one single piece excepted. 9. Her eye remained fixed upon the child (who had) now fallen asleep. 10. There comes a man running at full speed. 11. The whole question is a hard one to answer. 12. Looked at from the workman's point of view, the question appears quite different.

EXERCISE XXVII

CONDITIONAL AND IMPERATIVE

§§ 362-3

1. If you should get into trouble I would gladly help you. 2. I promised to write as soon as the ship should arrive in Hamburg. 3. I feared that she would take cold. 4. Without him the affair would have gone quite differently. 5. They invited me to a family festival to which a number of guests would be coming. 6. Any one who saw it for the first time would step back with horror. 7. O, let us hear everything; us? 12. Had I only known the truth, I could have told you. 13. It was as if something strange were in them. 14. It was almost as if he had now returned from his journey. 15. The end of the letter was written by him. 16. Some books are written not that one may learn from them, but that one may know that the author knew something.

APPENDIX I

ORTHOGRAPHY

1. Spelling Reform in Germany. German spelling is based in a general way upon the usage handed down by the writers, grammarians and lexicographers of the eighteenth century. But this traditional spelling, while much better than our own, is not free from defects. It represents simple sounds by compound signs, as in Saal, hier, ich; different sounds by the same sign, as in Vad - da, gehen - Tag; the same sound by different signs, as in Glas - Saß, Bäume - Freude, and it has a much-used silent h. Differences of usage with regard to these and other points led, in 1876, to a movement for governmental regulation of orthography. Prussia, Bavaria, Saxony, Württemberg and other German governments published official spelling-books, and the spelling thus prescribed soon began to make its way into books and journals. The first edition of this grammar, published in 1895, followed the Prussian rules.

2. The New Official Spelling. As the spelling-books issued by the various governments differed more or less in matters of detail, the uniform regulation of spelling became a desideratum. An orthographic conference was accordingly held at Berlin, in June, 1901, for the purpose of agreeing upon a common system. The recommendations of this conference have since been adopted thruout the empire, and also in Austria and Switzerland. The general principles of the new regulations are set forth in Regeln für die deutsche Rechtschreibung, nebst Wörterverzeichnis, Berlin, 1902. But since the 'rules' admit of not a few exceptions in favor of conventional usage, one can not easily spell by them without frequently referring to the accompanying 'word-list'; and as this, in turn, contains only a limited number of representative words, the student, or at any rate the teacher, should have at hand one of the more compendious orthographic dictionaries, such as Gemss' Wörterbuch für die deutsche Rechtschreibung, Berlin, 1902, or Duden's Orthographisches Wörterbuch. These excellent manuals, which cost but a small sum, seldom leave one in doubt about even the smallest detail of the official spelling. Practically we have followed Duden in this grammar.

3. The Old Spelling and the New. Since many writers and editors still continue to use the older spelling, tho with more or less diversity in details, we append a list of the more important points regulated by the official rules.

1. Å, Ö, ù, Åu, are to be preferred to Ae, De, Ue, Åeu. The same in Roman type.

2. Ä and äu are to be preferred to e and eu in words which have kindred with a, au; hence rächen (on account of Rache); Ärmel (Arm); räumen (Raum); but echt, not ächt, Spering, not Söring, leugnen, not läugnen, etc. There are, however, a few exceptions; thus edel (in spite of Adel), Etern in spite of ält.

a. In a few cases ä and e distinguish words of different meaning ;
e. g., Ähre, ear of grain, and Ehre, honor ; Lärche, larch, and Lerche, lark.

3. Ai is written only in a few words, of which the more common are Bai, Pain, Kaiser, Laie, Mai, Maib, Mais. Elsewhere ei is used. Observe, however, the distinctive spellings: Laib, loaf, and Leib, body; Saite, string, and Seite, side; Waife, orphan, and Weise, tune.

4. The use of doubled vowels is somewhat restricted, tho by no means done away with. Thus the following words are to be spelled with a single vowel : bar, Barſchaft, Herd, Herde, Loſ, loſen, Loſung, loſ, Maß, quer, ſchaf, ſcham, ſchale, ſchar, ſchoß, ſelig, ſtar, Wage, Wagen, Ware.

5. The simple i is preferred to ie in gift, gibt, gib, and also in hing, hing; but ie to i in verbs in ieren. The spelling distinguishes Fiber, fiber, from Fieber, fever; Mine, mine, from Miene, expression; Id, eyelid, from Lied, song; Stil, style, from Stiel, stem; wider, against, from wieder, again.

6. Except in Stadt, city, which is thus distinguished from Statt, place, the combination dt is to be written only where t is inflectional, as in lädt, wandte, gefandt. Write therefore tot, not todt; Brot not Brodt nor Broð; so also Schwert, geschiet, Ernte.

7. The endings id and ig are to be distinguished in writing, tho pronounced alike; hence zittid, pfirid, teppid, but hanig, essig, safig. For others consult the 'word-list,' or Duden.

8. Ph is to be used only in foreign words, as Philosophie, Philister. Write therefore, Efeu, Adolf, Rudolf, Westfalen.

a. As to the use of initial v and f (vor but für, fließen but Bließ), consult the dictionary.

9. ḡ, not ḡ, is to be written in the pronominal forms, deḡ, weḡ, dieḡ and their compounds, and also in the suffix niḡ.

a. Medial j becomes sch before a suffix of derivation, but not before an inflectional t; hence, Spätschen, from Späße; Röschchen, from Röse; weisslich, from weisse; but reist, from reisen.

b. In Roman type the rules prescribe that ß be represented by fs, or else by a special digraph, ß. But non-German printers usually employ sz or ss. The objection that ss does not distinguish ff from ß is not important, as the sounds are identical.

10. Th is to be written only in foreign words, as Theater, Thema, Theorie. This is upon the whole the most important and characteristic rule of the official spelling. Prior to the convention of 1901, th, while discarded in favor of the simple t in a large number of words, was retained in Thal, That, thun, Thor, Thür, in which it took the place of h after the vowel as sign of length (Thal instead of Tahf etc.). This absurd and confusing anomaly has now been got rid of. Write therefore not only Tier, Teil, rat, raten, wert, Reichtum, as in the first edition of this grammar, but also Tal, Taler, Tat, tun, Träne, Tor, Tür. In the case of the word for tea, the new rules allow either Thée or Tee. Let the student prefer Tee. The next step, it may be hoped, will be to discard the useless th in all common nouns of whatever origin.

11. Three concurrent consonants are avoided in some cases (by dropping one), permitted in others, e. g., dennoch (i. e. denn noch), Witttag, Schiffahrt; but allsehbend, Bettuch or Bettuch, Stilleben or Stilleben (when divided at the end of a line, always Bettuch, Still-leben).

a. Final h before the suffix heit is dropped; e. g.; Roheit. So, too, Spöheit, from Spöch; but Weichheit, from weich.

b. The plural of See, Armee, is either Seen, Armeen, or Seen, Armeen.

12. In foreign words f is written for a guttural c, j for the affricate; as Katalog, Klasse, Klerikal, Zirkel, Offizier. But a good many exceptions are allowed, especially in case of French words; e. g., Coupé, Ceder or Zeber, Concept or Konzept. When in doubt whether to write c, f or j, consult Duden's dictionary.

13. The use of initial capitals is greatly restricted. Nouns used adjectively, as ein bißchen, ein paar, das ist schade; adverbially, as abends, nachts, vormittags; prepositionally, as kraft, mittels, trotz, mangels, or as parts of a verbal phrase, as stattfinden, instand setzen, are to be written with a small initial.

a. This is the most difficult subject that the rules deal with, and they leave it in a rather unsatisfactory condition; thus one may write zu Gunsten, zu gunsten or zugunsten; zu staten or zustatten. When in doubt consult Duden.

b. Adjectives from names of persons have a small initial when their meaning is general; e. g., die luth'e'rische Kirche, the Lutheran church; but die Lu'therische Bibelüber'setzung, Luther's translation of the Bible.

c. Adjectival phrases, such as im ganzen, fürs erste, bei weitem, des weiteren, etc. have a small initial.

14. The apostrophe is to be used sparingly, for the purpose of marking the suppression of a letter usually written. But on this point the rules are not very precise, and there is much diversity of usage. Omit the apostrophe at any rate in auf's, unterm, etc., and in the genitive of proper names that do not end in a sibilant.

4. The Roman Letters are extensively used in scientific writings of every kind. In using the Roman letters many writers, particularly philologists, discard altogether the initial capital of nouns and thus avoid the most serious practical difficulty of German orthography.

APPENDIX II

ENGLISH-GERMAN COGNATES

1. The Relation of English to German is a subject which belongs rather to comparative linguistics than to German grammar, and can not be studied to the best advantage without some knowledge of Old English, Old German, Gothic, Latin, Greek, Sanskrit and general phonetics. Such knowledge is not presupposed for the users of this book. At the same time it is important that every student who approaches German by way of English, learn to recognize the familiar words of his mother tongue in their unfamiliar German forms, and acquire the habit of thinking clearly and correctly, if not profoundly, concerning the relationship of cognates. To this end, it is hoped, the following paragraphs will be found helpful. What is here given, however, is only a very elementary introduction to a large and difficult subject.

a. The most valuable of all helps for the study of German words in their relation to cognate forms in other languages is Kluge's Etymologisches Wörterbuch der deutschen Sprache.

2. The Indo-European Family of Languages. German and English belong to the Germanic (sometimes called Teutonic) branch of the Indo-European (also called Aryan and Indo-Germanic) family of languages. The Indo-European family has ten branches, three of them Asiatic and seven European. The Asiatic branches are the Indic, Iranic and Armenian. The European branches are the Hellenic, Italic, Germanic, Slavic, Baltic, Keltic and Albanian.

a. Observe that these names are the names of 'branches' put forth in ancient times by the Indo-European parent-stem. Each one of them has branched again and again, thus giving rise in our day to a large number of separate languages and dialects variously related to one another.

1. When we say that the languages of the ancient Hindus, Persians, Greeks, Italians, Germans, Slavs, etc., belong to the same 'family,' this means that the remote ancestors of these various peoples once dwelt together, forming a single community and speaking a common language. Where this pro-ethnic Indo-European home was located — whether in Asia or in Europe — when the dispersion began, and how it proceeded, are still moot questions.

2. The Indo-European parent-speech is known to us in a measure through the process of restoration. By a comparison of cognate forms, as they actually appear in the derived languages, scholars have been able to reconstruct the alphabet, the grammar, and in part the vocabulary, of the parent-speech. Thus Eng. brother, Lat. frāter, Gk. φράτηρ, Sansk. bhrātar, point back to an I.-E. parent-form bhrāter* (a prefixed * is used to distinguish ideal reconstructions from words historically known).

3. The Germanic Branch of the Indo-European Family. There was a time during which the ancestors of the various peoples now known to us as Germanic, having parted from the Indo-European parent-stock, still dwelt together in one community and spoke a common language. Later this Germanic stock parted into three branches, the eastern, the northern and the western. The eastern branch is known chiefly from the extinct Gothic. The northern branch gave rise to the Scandinavian languages, Danish, Swedish, Icelandic and Norwegian. The western branch gave rise to German, English, Dutch, Flemish and Frisian.

1. Where the pro-ethnic home of the Germanic race was situated is not precisely known, nor have we any historical remains of their language in this stage of its history. It is possible, however, by comparison of derived forms, to reconstruct the alphabet, the grammar, and in large part the vocabulary, of the Germanic parent-speech. Thus Gothic brōthar, Old English brōthor, Old High German bruodar, Old Low German brōthar, and Old Icelandic bróthir, point back to a Germanic brōthar*.

4. Phonetic Change. In every language the pronunciation of words is more or less subject to change. Through a modified mode of utterance a sound is converted into another sound or ceases to be heard. In this way, given time enough, the pronunciation of a word may change to almost any imaginable extent. Thus English ten is the same word as Latin decem, only it is pronounced differently.

1. But changes of pronunciation do not take place at hap-hazard. When a particular tendency to change sets in, at a given time and in a given language, it does its work thoroly and uniformly. For example, if the tendency is to convert d into t, it will convert d into t everywhere, unless there is some interfering cause. Such a uniformly operating tendency to change of pronunciation is called a phonetic law. The principal causes that interfere with the uniform operation of phonetic laws are the position of the sound with respect to other sounds or to the accent, and the attracting influence — analogy — of other words.

2. Spelling is often an imperfect and deceptive representation of sounds, and is much more conservative than pronunciation. One of the most important maxims that the student of linguistics has to learn, is to think in terms of sounds, not in terms of letters.

5. The Germanic Shifting of Consonants. If, now, we compare a large number of Indo-European words, ideally restored, with their Germanic descendants, ideally restored, we shall find that the latter have undergone changes both in their vowels and in their consonants. One set of these changes, affecting the explosive consonants, or stops, is of fundamental importance in the study of English and German etymology, viz.: the Indo-European voiced aspirates bh, dh, gh, become, in Germanic, the voiced stops b, d, g; the voiced stops b, d, g, become voiceless, giving p, t, k, and the voiceless stops p, t, k, become spirant, giving f, th, h.

1. The following examples will illustrate :

Indo-European	Greek	Latin	Germanic	English
*bhrāter	φράτηρ	frater	*brōthar	brother
*dhē, *dhō	θῆναι	facio	*dōn	do
*ghans-	χῆν	(h)anser	*gans	goose
*dwo	δύο	duo	*two	two *genu	γόνυ	genu	*kniwa	knee
*pād-	πῶς (ποδ-ός)	pes (ped-is)	*fōt	foot *trejis	τρεῖς	tres	*thrijis	three *kun-	κύν (κυ-νός)	canis	*hun-dos	hound

a. There are some exceptions to this law due to the operation of special causes. But a discussion of these, or of the changes undergone by the vowels and non-explosive consonants, would take us too far a-field for the present purpose. Consult Brugmann's Grundriss der vergleichenden Grammatik, vol. 1.

6. The High German Shifting of Consonants. If we examine in turn the consonantal system of High German, we shall find it to have undergone a second shifting of consonants, which differentiates High German more or less completely from all the other Germanic languages. This second shifting consists in the conversion of Germanic d into t, t into s or ts, th into d, and p into f or pf. Thus Gc. dago-*, Eng. day, becomes Ger. Tag; Gc. two*, Eng. two, Ger. zwei; Gc. itan*, Eng. eat, Ger. essen; Gc. thrijis*, Eng. three, Ger. drei; Gc. diupa*, Eng. deep, Ger. tief.

1. The High German shifting began in the 7th century, or earlier, in South Germany, and spread thence northward with diminishing thoroughness. Except the conversion of th into d, it did not affect the Low German dialects. Even in South Germany the time at which the change began, and the thoroughness with which it was carried thru, vary with the different dialects.

a. The two shiftings described in this and the last section are often called, after one of their discoverers, 'Grimm's Law.' The first is known in German as die germanische, the second as die hochdeutsche Lautverschiebung.

2. German words borrowed from other languages previous to the High German shifting shared in the general change, as für, from Lat.

curtus, Eng. curt; but words borrowed after the shifting retain their original consonants, as Titel, from Lat. titulus, Eng. title. Thus the form of a word may give a clue to its provenience and the date of its adoption.

3. English, which has grown out of an amalgamation of Low German dialects carried into Britain in the 5th and 6th centuries, preserves unchanged the Germanic d, t, th, and p, which High German shifted to t, s or ts, d, and f or pf. But in some other respects German has been more conservative than English. This will appear from the following detailed statements.

7. The Labials correspond, in English and German, as follows :

1. Eng. p = Germ. f, ff, pf; e. g. up - auf; ripe - reif; sleep - schlafen; hope - hoffen; plight - Pflicht; camp - Kampf; plant - Pflanze.

a. Pf is the regular representative of original p in words borrowed previous to the High German shifting, as in Pflanze, from Lat. planta; pfropfen, from Lat. propago. A Ger. p corresponding to an Eng. p is evidence of late borrowing; e. g. Pein - pain; Pech - pitch; plump - plump.

b. A preceding f prevents p from shifting; e. g. spin - spinnen; lisp - flüpfeln.

2. Eng. b initial = Ger. b; e. g. bear - Bär; break - brechen; bid - bieten; burst - bersten.

a. While Eng. preserves an initial Gc. b unchanged, it converts a medial Gc. b into v and a final Gc. b into f, ff. Hence Ger. b medial = Eng. v, and Ger. b final (pronounced as p) = Eng. f, ff; e. g. haben - have; Knabe - knave; sterben - starve; ab - of, off; Dieb, thief; halb - half. Exceptions are due to late borrowing on the one side or on the other; e. g. Ebbe - ebb; Giebel - gable.

3. Eng. f initial = Ger. f (sometimes written v); e. g. foot - Fuß; feather - Feder; fly - fliegen; father - Vater; fleece - Wollf.

a. Eng. f, ff, medial or final, may either preserve an original Gc. f unchanged, or it may come from Gc. b (see above, 2, a). In the former case it will appear in Ger. as f, ff, in the latter as b; e. g. hoof - Huf; stiff - steif; wolf - Wolf; wife - Weib; life - Leib; of - ab; calf - Kalb.

b. Eng. ft = Ger. ft; e. g. soft - sanft; drift - Trift; craft - Kraft.

4. Eng. v initial hardly occurs except in borrowed words (vat and vizen should be fat and fixen), where it corresponds to Ger. v, sometimes to f, rarely to w; e. g. verse - Vers; vane - Fahne; vetch - Wicke.

a. Eng. v medial usually represents Gc. b, in which case it corresponds to Ger. b, in a few cases to f; e. g. over – über; salve – Salbe; live – leben; devil – Teufel; oven – Ofen. Medial v = v is evidence of late borrowing; e. g. slave – Sklave.

8. The Dentals correspond as follows :

1. Eng. t = Ger. z, tz, ss, s, ß; e. g. two – zwei; twig – Zweig; sit – sitzen; cat – Katze; eat – essen; water – Wasser; this – dies; that – das; lot – Los; bite – beißen; foot – Fuß.

a. Observe that z, tz, ss, s, and ß are five ways of writing two sounds, viz. the affricate ts and the voiceless sibilant s. The affricate is written z when initial, and also after l, n, r, but tz after a short vowel, where it takes the place of zz from Gc. tz. Hence, tin – Zinn; salt – Salz; mint – Münze; heart – Herz; heat – Hitze (Gc. *hittja); cat – Katze (Gc. *katta). The simple voiceless sibilant is written ss when medial after a short vowel, but ß when final, or medial after a long vowel. In a very few words, however, final s takes the place of ß. Hence, let – lassen; mete – messen; write – reissen; shoot – schießen; shot – Schuß; vat – Faß; that – das; lot – Los.

b. A preceding spirant (f, s, ch) prevents t from shifting; e. g. craft – Kraft; oft – oft; strong – streng; breast – Brust; might – Macht; plight – Pflicht. So, too, the combination tr does not shift; hence, true – treu; tread – treten; bitter – bitter (Gc. *bitr); otter – Otter (Gc. *ötr). Other exceptions are due to late borrowing; e. g. temple – Tempel (from Lat. templum); senate – Senat (from Lat. senatus). Bottom – Boden presents an irregularity that has not yet been fully explained.

2. Eng. d = Ger. t; e. g. daughter – Tochter; day – Tag; ford – Furt; hard – hart; hold – halten; heed – hüten; side – Seite; door – Tür; do – tun; dale – Thal.

a. A preceding n, and sometimes a preceding l, prevented Gc. d from shifting in Ger.; hence, bind – binden; send – senden; wild – wild; bold – bald (but old – alt, and cold – kalt). Notice that in unb – and, altho the final b is pronounced as t, and can not occur medially (as the b of wild may in wildeß), we have no real case of Gc. d shifting to t. It comes under the general rule that all voiced final consonants have become voiceless in Ger. — Except after n and l, Ger. b corresponding to Eng. d is evidence of late borrowing; e. g. Dogge – dog; Dedde – deck.

3. Eng. th = Ger. b; e. g. three – drei; thin – dünn; feather – Feder; loathe – leiden; both – beide; heath – Heide.

a. A very few exceptions to this rule, as father – Vater, weather – Wetter, are due to the fact that Eng. th is an interloper, taking the place (under Norse influence) of an older d. The Old English ancestors of father and weather are fæder and weder. Another small group of exceptions, as thousand - tausend, thaw - tauen, are due probably to an early assimilation of the initial stop to the voiceless consonant which usually preceded it.

4. Eng. s = Ger. f, s, ß; e. g. soap - Seife; send - senden; glass - Glas; less - loß; horse - Rosß; breast - Brust.

a. But Gc. initial s before w is regularly converted in Ger. into sch; hence, swine - Schwein; swell - schwellen; sweat - Schweiß. So, too, in the standard pronunciation before p and t, tho the sound is written f; hence, stead - Statt; steel - Stahl; spin - spinnen; sprout - Sproß. For Eng. sh see below (§ 9, 1, a).

9. The Gutturals correspond as follows :

1. The Gc. voiceless stop k either remains unchanged, being written in Eng. as c, k, ck, and in Ger. as t, k; or else it becomes in Ger. the spirant ch and in Eng. the affricate tsk (written sometimes as ch, again as tch). Hence, Eng. c, k, ck, ch, tch = Ger. t, k, ch; e. g. kiss - küssen; cow - Ruh; bake - backen; seek - suchen; weak - weich; chalk - Kalk; churl - Kerl; lick - lecken; stick - Stück; watch - wachen; ditch - Leich; stretch - strecken.

a. Gc. sk becomes Engl. sh. Ger. sch; e. g. shape - schaffen; shoot - schießen; fish - Fisch; rash - rausch.

2. The Gc. voiced stop g remains unchanged in Ger. when initial; when medial or final, it is usually (but not in all dialects) converted into a spirant, tho still written as g. In Eng. it is generally unchanged when initial, tho in several words it has become, after passing thru a spirant stage, a palatal semivowel (written y). When medial or final, it usually became first spirant, then semivocalic, and the semivowel combined with a preceding vowel to form a diphthong. Our spelling preserves it as y or w. Examples: geben - give; groß - great; gelb - yellow; gestern - yester; sagen - say; Tag - day; legen - lay; Auge - eye; schlug - slew; Bogen - bow; Magen - maw; Vogel - fowl; Regen - rain; folgen - follow; Talg - tallow; Sorge - sorrow.

a. The Gc. combination gj becomes in Eng. a voiced affricate, written dg, in Ger. g; e. g. edge - Ede; ridge - Rücken; bridge - Brücke.

3. The Gc. guttural spirant h appears initially both in Ger. and Eng. as the breath h - h; e. g. heart - Herz; horn - Horn; have - haben. Medially it appears in Ger. as silent h, finally as silent h or as ch. In Eng. it has either disappeared entirely, or it appears in our spelling as gh, which is either silent or labialized to an f-sound; e. g. ſehen – see; zehn – ten; nach – nigh; hoch – high; roh – rough; Flucht – flight; durch – through; lachen – laugh; zäh – tough.

10. The Liquids, Nasals and Semivowels l, r, m, n, ng, j, m, usually correspond in the two languages, the Ger. j being the orthographic equivalent of Eng. y. Observe, too, that the old labial semivowel w has become spirant in modern Ger. Examples: learn – lernen; old – alt; red – rot; heart – Herz; man – Mann; stem – Stamm; lamb – Lamm (the Eng. b is an orthographic superfluity); nut – Nuß; find – finden; sing – singen; long – lang; year – Jahr; yoke – Joch; wine – Wein; wit – wissen.

a. A noteworthy difference is seen, however, in the fact that Ger. retains, while Eng. drops, an original n before a spirant in the accented syllable; e. g. ander – other; fünf – five; Gans – goose; ſanft – soft.

b. In a few words Ger. final n corresponds to Eng. final m; e. g. Buſen – bosom; Beſen – besom; Boden – bottom.

11. The Vowels and Diphthongs. The correspondence of vowels and diphthongs is a much more difficult and complicated subject than that of the consonants. To the beginner it will seem altogether chaotic. Compare, e. g. the pairs: Vater – father; Stamm – stem; Nacht – night; ſchlafen – sleep; ſanft – soft; lachen – laugh. Here German a has six different representatives in English, and conversely English a with its various sounds is diversely represented in German.

1. It must not be supposed, however, that the changes undergone by the vowels, in either language, are any less subject to law than those undergone by the consonants. It is only that the laws are very much more intricate, especially in Eng. with its deceptive historical spelling. There are no simple and general rules that would be of any value, and to give accurate detailed rules would carry us too far into the realm of historical phonetics. The vocalism of Eng. and Ger. can not be studied intelligently without a knowledge of Old and Middle English and of Old and Middle High German.

II.—THE LETTER ON PAGE 147 OF THIS GRAMMAR

Göttingen den 23. Juni, 1833.
 Mein lieber Freund!

Freudlich seht ihr mein langes Bescheiden gebrosen; dein Brief vom 12. dinstag Monats ist mir schon in den Händen gekommen.
 Für die Manuscripten, die du mir aus der Hand gegebenst, danke ich dir herzlich, obwohl andere Freunde mir zum Theil über dieselben Dinge geschrieben hatten. Ich beschreibe aus meinem Briefe, daß es dir gut geht, und daß du keine Gefahr läufst, an der Typhuskrankheit zu sterben. Die Beschreibung deines Raise nach Sicilien war mir sehr interessant. Muß du nicht alles gesehen seht! Und wie schön.

Zeit! Dann ab schied, daß ich nur ein paar Tage dort ge-blieben bist.

Nun ist sehr auf kürzest eine kleine Reise gemacht, - eine Fuß-reise im Goryabin. Viel, laßt mich ich sehr davon so-
 ren. Ich hatte viel von den Tischen, haben einer Geyme gefürstet galten, und sehr natürlich recht häufigig darauf gemacht.

Der aber zwei Wochen vorher ich nicht Tagab darüber mit einem Fräulein, der meine häufigig zu teilen pfien, und wir haben die Parabration, der brüfsten Dichten zusammen in Augen, pfien zu nehmen.

III.—THE SONG AT THE BEGINNING OF SCHILLER'S WILHELM TELL

Es löset sich der Tau, er lachet zum Lachen, Der Knabe spielt ein vom grünen Gassen, Er hört er ein Klingeln;
 Wie Löten so süß.
 Wie Himmeln der Engel
 Im Paradies.
 Und wie er wachet in seliger Lust,
 Da spielen die Wasser ihm in die Brust.
 Und es ruft aus den Tüpfen: Lieb Knabe bist mein!
 Ich liebe den Tüpfel;
 Ich zieh' ihn heran.

English words printed in heavy-faced type are cognate with the German vocabulary-word preceding. A hyphen shows that only a part of the English word is cognate with the German, or vice versa. Brackets enclose cognates which are obsolete, imaginary, or such as do not now translate the German word. An English word printed in Italics is borrowed from the same source as the corresponding German word. For the principal parts of strong verbs see § 331.
